BLACK
DAWN

"Well," said Dave, "things have a way of comin' to light. Some we'll know. You sure had a break, girl, not even knowin' pore dad was, and livin' up in mountains. Did yuh ever figure what yuh were gain' to do never figured on getting away, till Mr. Hooker died. Nor you came," said Lois. "I hat-the men who used to come and me when I was in Mescal, ever at the Cross-Bar."

we tried to keep back the s, but they seemed to come suddenly from his lips: "Just e Mr. Hooker died he made promise that I'd look out for
I told him of course I would.
I first see yuh, Lois, all and up over Black Dawn, and er at me than a hornet, I knew the same you were the only I'd ever wanted.
wanted to ride away with you have you with me for the rest of my lives. Do you think — do think yuh'd take a chance on then we get away from here?"
en, suddenly, looking into the girl's luminous eyes, Dave knew that she loved him, and that everything was going to be well with them, no matter what trials might still lie ahead of them.

He drew her into his arms, and she laid her head upon his shoulder, face upturned to his.
"Yuh ain't—ain't—yuh girl?"
"I reckon I am," she answered.
"I'm so happy, Dave, I didn't know
I could be happy like this. I never cried for anybody else, and I've cried twice for you."
"Twice? I made yuh cry?"
"The first time was when I was sure yuh hadn't killed Mr. Hooker.
And both times have made me happy. I don't want to leave you ever."

After a while he heard her breathing deeply and regularly, and found that she had fallen asleep.
He sat there, holding her tightly, till the pale light of dawn came creeping into the cave.

"There's a mesa in the mountains about a mile away, that I don't think anyone except myself has ever seen," said Lois that afternoon. "I think we'll take the horses there. The grass is pretty well gone from here, and they'll need some good grazing before we start."

"You'll be able to ride in about a couple of days more, honey," said Dave. "Is there a trail through the mountains to the other side?"

Lois nodded. "I found it, too," she said. "It runs right through the Border. Dave. We'll never have to go back to Mescal, and nobody will dream we've come through the mountains."

Dave didn't relish the idea of flight. But for Lois, he would probably have scouted about the Mescal district by night, in the hope of unearthing the clue to Hooker's murder. He was pretty well convinced that whoever had killed the old man would return to the cabin or betray himself in some manner.
And he had more than a suspicion that Sheriff Cogswell was convinced of his own innocence.

But Lois' welfare came first, and Dave realized that the chief task which lay before him was to get her through the mountains to some place of safety. So he said nothing he girl's suggestion, and they mounted the two horses riding bareback and guiding them with halters. Lois led the way along the trail beyond the cave. Finally it ran uphill to a long stretch of grass-covered land between the ravine and the heights.

Releasing the horses, they watched them start grazing eagerly, seated side by side in the warm sunlight.

"What jeh say to our startin' the day after tomorrow, honey?"
asked Dave.

"I'm ready, Dave," answered the girl shyly.

"And yuh'll marry me, soon as we hit the other side of the mountains and find us a minister?"

Lois nodded, her face aglow, then hid it in Dave's shoulder. The golden minutes ran by unheeded. At last when the sun was dipping toward the west, they rose to get the horses. Both came cantering to Lois at her whistle, and the two remounted and rode back to their cave.

"If we're startin' tomorrow, what yuh think of restin' up today an lettin' me take the horses to the mesa?" asked Dave next morning.
Maybe I'll leave them there overnight and walk back this even'.
There's no place they could stray to, is there?"

"No, they'll be quite safe there," answered Lois. "I'll be back around midday to see how you're gettin' away on Hooker's horse.

Arriving at the grazing ground
Dave flung himself down, rolled mud lit a cigarette and lost himself in rosy dreams of the future.

For a half hour after his depar-guessed pretty shrewdly the pur-

CANADIAN RED CROSS URGENTLY NEEDS $10,000,000

The Canadian Red Cross National appeal for $10,000,000 closes on February 28th, when the people of Canada will be asked to contribute just as much as they possibly can to make this objective a certainty.

Coming into the fifth year of a wide-spread war, with more Allied countries desperately in need of supplies and comforts of all kinds, the Canadian Red Cross is stepping up production in every department to meet requisitions as they come in.

This year there are more prisoners of war—$2,500,000 must be spent on food parcels alone, with an additional $1,000,000 for parcels for Allied Red Cross Societies.

Dried blood serum is growing in importance with the advance of our armed forces, and $750,000 will be required to keep this vital service functioning at top speed, as it must.

Hospital supplies and comforts for the Forces require $3,000,000.

With a growing feeling that the war may be coming to a close, there is an even greater need for concentration on Red Cross supplies. The peoples of the occupied countries have been stripped of their possessions. They have literally nothing. With the ending of hostilities, Canadian Red Cross will be faced with an extension of her active war services.

Previous commitments have been kept up, with regard to medical and first aid outpost hospitals and public health. To meet any eventuality, Canadian Red Cross must stand prepared.

There has never been a time in the history of Canadian Red Cross when there was a greater need for the all-out support from loyal Canadians. Last year the objective was reached and passed.

This year the need is greater. Canadian Red Cross is the link that holds Canadian at home and kin overseas. Keep the march!

Only the Red Cross meets this call for vital life saving aid for Prisoners of War parcels, medicines, comforts, blood serum and nursing that spell survival for so many. There is no one else to do the job.

That is why we cannot fail: why we ask you to open your hearts and purses, giving to the limit of your ability. Remember, Victory will not be cheap; the real need lies ahead.

THE WAR - WEEK — Commentary on Current Events

Allies' Anzio Beachhead Withstands Repeated Heavy German Attacks

Two Allied battlefields in the maps above are separated by 50 miles, varying from the mountainous terrain near Cassino to the swamp-land south of Rome. Nazi legions are attacking the Anzio-Nettuno beachhead in force, while Allied armies are seeking a break-through in the Cassino bulge. Lower map shows locations in Italy of close-ups shown at top.

Thanks to the valor and determination of the American and British soldier the immediate danger to the Allied beachhead at Anzio appears to have passed. With the return of weather which permits the resumption of air operations the Allies have renewed their offensive. The fighting is still indeterminate, but the tide seems to be running in our favor, and if this view is correct the Anzio battle has already achieved one important result. It has rolled Hitler off of a quick and impressive victory for which he tried hard—a victory which was to demonstrate his continued striking power for the benefit of Germany's own morale and that of her satellites, and to impress both Russia and the Western Allies with the hopelessness of any new invasion and a new front in Europe. What- ever further results the Anzio battle may produce, the frustration of Hitler's calculations will alone justify its cost, says The New York Times.

But the stubborn resistance which the Germans are putting up, both around Anzio and at Cassino, is a renewed warning that even after more than four years of war Germany is still a powerful enemy. Neither defeat in the field nor the wholesale bombings of German cities and war factories have been able thus far to break German fighting morale. Nor, judging from reports from the front, have German arms diminished either in quantity or in quality, except for the relative decrease of German air power. In fact some German weapons are declared to be even superior to our own. And with the approach of spring, which promises at least temporary respite from Russian pressure Nazi hopes for prolonging the war are rising again.

Fight from Room to Room

The Italian campaign cannot be considered wholly typical of what Allied invasion forces would face in France. For in Italy the Allies have been confronted with the same difficulties which the Germans faced in the mountains of the Caucasus and about Stalingrad. Mountains are natural fortresses which always favor the defense, and cities which the defender is willing to sacrifice can be converted into similar strongholds. That was shown by Madrid in the Spanish civil war, shown by Leningrad, and in supreme measure by Stalingrad. Though on a smaller scale, it is again being shown by Cassino. For here, as at Stalingrad, the fight is proceeding from building to building and from room to room.

Lesson Of Campaign

Nevertheless, the lessons of the Italian campaign and the ascertainable results of the bombings have been such that a good deal of the unwarranted optimism of a few months ago, about the war in Europe being "all but over," has disappeared. Even military quarters are beginning to revise their timetable of victory. And this adds new emphasis to the qualification which General Eisenhower attached to his famous prediction: victory is possible this year, but only if "every man and woman, all the way from the front to the remotest hamlet, does his or her full duty."

An estimate that Japanese factories are turning out aircraft at a rate of 1,200 or more a month came from high quarters, coupled with a report that the Japanese—like the Germans—are concentrating significantly on defensive types.

OTTAWA REPORTS

That Discharged Servicemen Are Advised to Take Jobs Now And Save For Placement on Farms Later

In view of what happened last year, the question of Service men going farming after the war is not to be based on a hasty question mark in rural communities.

As far back as 1911, when the Department of Pensions and National Health sponsored the Order-in-Council known as "The Post-Discharge Rehabilitation Order," careful consideration has been given to farm settlement as to other phases of re-establishment, and the plans set up seek to avoid pitfalls of the period following 1918.

While employment is at its peak men interested in farming who are being currently discharged are advised to take jobs and to save for later investment in agriculture, according to officials in charge of rehabilitation. To date very few have been set up under the Re-establishment Order.

Those eligible must have had previous satisfactory practical experience in farming, or may qualify after successful apprenticeship with a successful farmer. In addition to having served in a theatre of war, or had not less than 12 months' service, or be in receipt of a pension.

The Veterans' Land Act 1942 provides a maximum of $1,800 on land, and a maximum of $1,200 on equipment. A fifth of the value of the land (in the case of $4,800, the amount would be $180), must be paid for in cash and two-thirds of the property value over a period of 25 years with interest at 2 1/2%. The cost of equipment is not repaid, nor is any annual instalment over $105 including interest. A veteran who has a job and wants to buy a small farming property nearly comes within the same limits as to amount and conditions of payment.

A veteran who owns a farm may secure through the Veterans' Land Act funds to pay off a mortgage, make necessary improvements, or buy additional land and equipment. He may borrow up to $5,200 (but not more than 60% of the value of his property), to pay off a mortgage, or up to $2,500 (but

For several weeks purchases of bacon for the United Kingdom have averaged over 20,000,000 pounds, an average of which if kept up for fifty weeks out of the year would mean 1,000,000,000 pounds of bacon. Hon. J. G. Gardiner, Minister of Agriculture told the House of Commons recently. Mr. Gardiner said little value should be attached to rumors of a meat shortage when replying to J. H. Blackmore, Social Credit leader in the Federal House as to whether there might be a beef shortage next year. Explaining the present surplus, he said this was due to lack of shipping and steps have been taken to divert additional ships to Canadian ports not only to handle additional bacon stocks, but also to lift surplus quantities of beef and mutton, and recently the Meat Board was able to accept immediate shipment of some seven million pounds of beef. The Minister felt there is every reason to believe that in future all surplus beef available will be handled and lifted as offered for export. With plans in hand to export also accumulated stocks of mutton and lamb, a better market for this class of livestock is in sight.

Mustang Is Answer To New Nazi Plane

The British-Designed, American-built Mustang plane, apparently is more than the answer to the new German rocket-bomb plane, says The Kansas City Times. In their first fifteen missions the Mustangs have destroyed or damaged eighty-seven German planes with the loss of only six Mustangs. These fighter planes have such a long radius of operations that they have been able to escort American bombers to within 100 miles of Berlin.

TYENDINACA RESERVE

(From Our Correspondent)

A large congregation attended the Memorial Service in Christ Church Sunday afternoon for the late Pte. Russell Loft, a former resident of the Reserve, who over a year ago joined the United States Army, and who was killed in action in Italy. Russell had many friends here, and much sympathy is extended to his relatives, especially to his young wife who resided in Willis, Mich. The Service was attended by the Canadian Legion, Deseronto Branch, the Ladies Auxiliary to the Legion, and the Keweenaw League. Mace and white flowers were on the altar, and the Legion sent a beautiful spray of daffodils and tulips. A large supplied choir led in the singing of hymns, "O God, our help in ages past," "On the Resurrection Morning," "O valiant hearts," and "God save the King." Russell attended Public School on the Reserve and High School in Deseronto, and was employed in Kingston before he went to the United States.

The funeral of the late Miss Bessie Maracle was held in All Saints' Church Thursday afternoon. She was sixty five years of age, and had lived on the Reserve all her life. The bearers were: Messrs. Amos and James Brant, Ira Cook, Nelson Maracle, Allan Sero and Oliver Hill. Interment will take place in the Spring in a cemetery.

After a lingering illness, Mrs. John Walker passed away at her home in Shinnonsville Thursday morning. Mrs. Walker was formerly Miss Lillian McFarlane, and lived for many years on the Reserve. Beside her husband, she is survived by one sister, Miss Mary McFarlane and one brother, William McFarlane, one nephew, Tim, William McFarlane, and one niece, Mrs. Alvin McKenzie. The funeral was held in All Saints' Church Saturday afternoon, and was attended by many relatives and friends. The bearers were, Messrs. James and Barney Brant, Sidney Fitzgerald, Danina Hinchey, Floyd Hill and Arthur Burr. The casket was placed in the vault for interment in the Spring.

Pte. Russell Hill, Calgary, is visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Hill.

Pte. Lloyd Sero, Kingston, spent last week end with friends here.

Mrs. Stuart Hill is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. William Brant in Buffalo.

Mrs. Burden Elliott, Belleville, spent Thursday with her father, Mr. William Bell and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Bell.

Mr. Stuart Hill, who has been employed in Belleville for the past few weeks, has been transferred to Hagersville.

The Trappers' Association held a very enjoyable pre-Lenten Social in the Council House Friday evening, and the young folks had a well attended Pique Macini Tuesday at the home of Mrs. Annie Brant.

TELEPHONE NIGHT RATES

The announcement that from March 1, night rates on long distance calls will begin at 6 p.m. instead of 7 as heretofore, will be of special interest to boys and girls telephoning home from camps and barracks all over the country. The change will be effective also on all lines of the TransCanada Telephone System.

Two main results are expected from this change: the added convenience of the longer night rate period, and lessening of congestion on war busy lines which, because of material shortages, cannot be extended. Further, of course, there will be an obvious saving to users through the one hour's lengthening of the night rate period.

Before you blame your telephone...*CHECK THIS DISTANCE

Engineers designed the mouthpiece of your telephone to give best results at one-quarter of an inch from the lips. When your lips are farther away than this, your voice is transmitted less strongly... less clearly.

Failure to remember these simple facts accounts for the great majority of "trouble" reports.

Help avoid needless service check-ups, and at the same time let those you talk to hear you without strain. Just remember: Talk clearly, normally, directly into the telephone, with your lips just one-quarter of an inch from the mouthpiece.

Giving Wings to Words

Smoking while you talk may cause distorted reception. It also prevents your holding the mouthpiece in correct position, close to the lips.

If you need to reach across your desk as you talk, continue to hold the telephone in correct position, close to the lips.

A wall set can't come to you; stand or sit so that your lips are directly in front of the mouthpiece. Don't "talk across" it.

For clear, noise-free transmission, always keep your desk telephone upright—not at an angle near the horizontal position.

CHAPTER II

Peggy nodded. "I'm perfectly serious. You see, my sister Maxine and I were left orphans when we were quite small, and my grandmother Horton has raised us both. Maxine is the elder, and when she was graduated from a school in Virginia, some friends wanted her to travel with them that summer. Gran knew the family well and let her go. While she was in California she had an offer to go into pictures, which she accepted. That was four years ago. She hasn't been home since." "So she's my grandmother all but died. But Maxine stayed and made good. She changed her name. Maybe you've heard of her, Maxine Trueheart." "Maxine Trueheart! She's your sister? I think she's a honey, don't you?"

"I've only seen her on the screen a few times. Gran won't let me go to movies." Harry's mouth and eyes opened wide in astonishment. "There was no quarrel about it, only Gran is even more particular about me, you see."

"What I don't see is how with all this chaperonage, you've had much opportunity to know any man well enough to get so wrought up about him. Was it someone you met while you were at school?"

Peggy's face became scarlet, and Harry stared in amazement. A girl of his own generation was blushing!

"It isn't any real man," she murmured. "Oh, I might as well tell you," she added impatiently.

"I was graduated in June, and when I came home I kept getting letters from the girls I had known at school telling about their good times, and of course I had nothing to write about. Then I began to write them about the parties that were written up in the little paper here.

"According to my letters I went to all of them; boys were thrown in by the dozen. Two of the girls wrote me recently that they were engaged. One of them was my roommate and we had planned to do everything together. Double wedding and all that. Well, like a nut, I wrote back that no one knew about it, but that I was engaged too. She hadn't mentioned the name of the man she was going to marry. Only called him by his nickname. Needless to say I did the same. I said how sweet he was, and what a heavenly ring I had, and a lot of such bunk. Now laugh and tell me you never heard of anything so silly."

"I don't see anything about that to get so hot up about," Harry replied.

"Well, that's not the worst. This morning I had a telegram from my roommate saying she was coming to visit me for a week, arriving this afternoon; and I can't produce a man, or a ring, or anything."

"That is bad," Harry agreed. "I wish I hadn't signed up for that golf tournament, I'd stick around for a week—engaged to you. I'm pretty good in that line."

Peggy laughed. "That wouldn't help. Gran wouldn't let you in the front door. I couldn't leave even a pretended husband-to-be parked here on the road for a week. There's nothing to it. I'll either have to confess the whole thing, or say I've broken off the engagement, and listen to her rave about her fiancé."

"Isn't there something we can do?" Harry queried, thrusting his hands into his pockets and stretching out his long legs in preparation for thought. "I've got it!" he exclaimed, jumping up suddenly. "Look!" bringing his hands from his pockets he held one of them out to her. There was a small jeweler's box in the palm. He opened the box and Peggy was staring at a beautiful ring with a star design of sapphires set in platinum on each side of a large square cut diamond.

"How lovely!" she exclaimed. "Yes, it is pretty, isn't it? I had it made in New York. But it's no good to me now. At least it won't be until I get home. Then I may try to patch things up. But you can have it for a week. I'm going to be in Lockton that long."

"Oh, I couldn't," Peggy cried. "Thanks a lot for offering, but I couldn't use some other girl's ring." "Why not? She'll never know it. I know you'll be careful with it. You've got to take it. I won't have you embarrassed like that just over a ring when I have one right here that isn't being used anyway. Try it on and see if it fits."

Hesitatingly, Peggy reached for the ring and slipped it on the third finger of her left hand.

"See, it's perfect," Harry cried with delight. "Go on now, show that to your ex-roommate and let her laugh it off. I've got to go on to make Lockton in time to play this afternoon. I'll be back here at noon a week from today. I'll meet you here and you can give it back to me then."

"But—why—I mustn't take your ring this way. I might lose it, or some one might steal it."

"You aren't going to think all that when you get your own engagement ring, are you? Well, why should anything be more likely to happen to this one than if it were your own? Don't be silly. But don't forget to meet me here next Wednesday, or I'll come charging up to the door and 'emand my property from your grandmother. Have a grand time this week and tell me all about it Wednesday."

Peggy was standing now, staring at the ring. "I can't begin to thank you. You're just a peach to do this for me, and I'll be here with the ring when you come back. Good luck at the golf, and I hope your real girl will be as drilled to have this back as I am to have it now. It's the loveliest thing I've ever seen."

Harry jumped into the roadster with its scarred windshield, which they had both forgotten, and drove away with a last wave at the girl who stood watching him disappear around a curve of the road.

Reluctantly Peggy drew the ring from her finger. She must not let her grandmother see it. She would put it on on the way to the station and explain to Nancy that Mrs. Horton knew nothing of her granddaughter's engagement. Nancy would like that. She loved things to be mysterious. Peggy remembered. Harry had thoughtlessly kept the box, so she was obliged to tie the ring in the corner of her handkerchief, and stuff it into the pocket of her torn sweater.

Military Police In The Vanguard

The Military Police — brisk, sturdy and sometimes swaggering chaps with batons in hand and guns on hip have a great deal more to do in war than to patrol the streets and the trains. A British Information Services bulletin tells us of some of their work not witnessed by civilians.

The M. P.'s go in with the first assault troops. They may even lead the engineers and the sappers. Often they jump from planes to be there ahead of the rest. They establish lanes and marshalling yards. They show where the supply dumps shall be placed. They mark the fields with signposts, then shepherd the traffic through.

On D-Day plus one, it is said, the beachhead in Normandy looked as orderly as if our forces had been in possession for weeks. The Military Police were to be thanked for that.

At El Alamein it was the Military Police who after much desert scouting mapped the routes for the British assault units to pass through Rommel's defenses and saw to it that the units streamed through in the planned order. All the way to Tunis they were out in front, keeping the rains clear of broken-down vehicles looking after the filling-in of road craters, eliminating bottlenecks in the towns. The swift marches of Montgomery's forces there, the American-British sweep across Sicily and the big push north from Cassino and Anzio in Italy were made possible by the work of M.P. pioneers.

During August Most Birds Take Holiday

This is vacation time for most birds according to ornithologists of the Royal Ontario Museum. Their family responsibilities are over for the year and the hard work of food-hunting is made easy by the annual peak of the crop of insects, seeds and berries. Even the business of singing is largely suspended. Although most birds are obliged to grow a new suit of feathers in August, this can be accomplished while loafing. By autumn they will be dressed in fresh new attire and fortified for the long trek southward by a reserve layer of fat beneath the skin.

Fuel Tablets

A new fuel tablet for soldiers to heat their food is a synthetic compound known as trioxane, with a binder to hold it in solid form; one flat one-ounce tablet will heat a meal in about seven minutes.

THE LESSON IN ITS SETTING

Time. — David began to reign over Judah about 1000 B. C., and over the twelve tribes about 993 B. C.

Place. — Jerusalem is situated in the inheritance of Judah, midway between the northern end of the Dead Sea and the Mediterranean.

David's Second Anointing

"And the men of Judah came, and there they anointed David king over the house of Judah. And they told David, saying, the men of Jabesh-gilead were they that buried Saul." This is David's second anointing, the first having been the secret one at the hands of Samuel.

"And David sent messengers unto the men of Jabesh-gilead, for Saul your lord is dead, and also the house of Judah have anointed me king over them." It is to the honor of David, that he retained, amidst these new and perilous conditions, his old tenderness of feeling and noble generosity. He thought lovingly of his once relentless but buried foe, and had respect for the men who had striven to pay honor to the dishonored body of Saul.

People Unite Under David

"Then came all the tribes of Israel to David unto Hebron, and spake, saying, Behold, we are thy bone and thy flesh." All opposition had ceased, the rivals of David were dead, and now the leaders and people saw it was to their advantage to unite as one man under so valiant a leader as David.

David's Third Anointing

"In times past, when Saul was king over us, it was than that leddest out and broughtest in Israel . . . and in Jerusalem he reigned thirty and three years over all Israel and Judah."

David the shepherd-king who had so faithfully led, fed and defended his father's sheep on the hills of Bethlehem became an equally faithful shepherd of God's people Israel.

In behalf of the people in God's presence, a mutual agreement or covenant was made between them and David to be true and loyal to each other David is now anointed for the third time.

The City of David

"And the king and his men went to Jerusalem against the Jebusites . . . The same is the city of David." The Jebusites felt so secure within their citadel that they boasted a garrison of the blind and lame could hold it. Nevertheless, the city was taken, and from that time on is often called in the Scriptures the city of David.

The Stronghold Is Taken

"And David said on that day, whosoever smiteth The Jebusites, let him get up to the watercourse, and smite the lame and the blind, that are hated of David's soul. Wherefore they say, there are the blind and the lame; he cannot come into the house." David bids the men show no mercy to the "Throw away my harsh laxatives"

"Out they went, all harsh embarrassing purgatives. For my constipation turned out to be due to lack of 'bulk' in the diet. So gentle ALL-BRAN proved the answer for me."

Yes, ALL-BRAN is for you, if your trouble is due to lack of "bulk" in the diet. Here's what you do. Eat KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN regularly, and drink plenty of water. This pleasant cereal helps to produce smooth-working "bulk," and prepare wastes for easy elimination. You'll want this regularity, so you'll enjoy eating ALL-BRAN daily. scolding Jebusites. The reference to the word "gutter" possibly means the way the citadel was to be scaled. The besiegers were to enter by either by some water-worn gully in the rock or through a subterranean channel which had been constructed to supply the fortress with water.

David Grow Greater

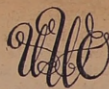

"And David dwelt in the stronghold, and called it the city of David. And David built round about from Milo and inward. And David waxed greater and greater; for Jehovah, the od of hosts was with him." So 'David waxed greater and greater'. How could it be otherwise since the 'Lord God of Hosts was with him'? To have the Lord with us is to be sure of growth, progress and victory.

East Side, West Side? Where Is Luftwaffe?

BBC broadcasts to Europe recently included a story of a German officer who surrendered only two days after he had arrived in Normandy from the Eastern Front.

Asked why he had been so willing to give himself up, he said: "In Russia we were told that the Luftwaffe was in the West."

"In Normandy we are told that the Luftwaffe is in the East. I can't stand that sort of trickery."

WHAT OF THE FUTURE?

Politicians of every party are very free with their promises for a world which the boys overseas will be proud to return to and happy to live in. But none of them have shown just how this sort of world can be achieved.

For the most part, they pin their hopes to some sort of economic, social or political planning. There is the Beveridge Report in England. And, though none quite so famous, the Beveridge proposal has its counterparts in post-war planning here.

The difficulty with such plans is that none are better than the people they depend on. Sir William Beveridge himself declares his whole report depends on the existence of "courage, faith, and a sense of national unity." This means that it depends on the existence of courageous people who live out their faith in God, and who have found a common mind and learned to work together.

Two thousand years ago it was said: "Seek ye first the Kingdom of God and all these things shall be added unto you." If, in this way we get the courage, faith and sense of unity we need, post-war plans will become practical. A world worthy of the sacrifices that have been made will become possible. How you plan will certainly affect such a world. But how you live is the real key for its attainment.

THE MIXING BOWL

By ANNE ALAN

Hydro Home Economist

Hello Homemakers! Plump, juicy and blushing red are home grown tomatoes and now's the time when they are at their best. Sliced, stuffed, or in a cocktail—serve them in every way you can. You won't have a chance like this for another year.

How to can tomatoes: Scald, peel and core. Leave whole or cut in quarters. COLD PACK: Pack raw. Pack solidly in sterilized jars. Add one teaspoon salt per quart. Adjust lids and process in boiling water bath for 45 minutes. Or, for a salad tomato to which stays whole, pack peeled ones into hot sterilized jars, fill with hot tomato juice (made by stewing sore tomatoes and straining), add salt and process only 35 minutes.

OPEN KETTLE: Heat tomatoes to boiling point. Add one teaspoon salt per quart. Boil 20 minutes. Pack hot in sterilized jars. Seal at once. (There is more loss of Vitamin C with this method.)

TOMATO ASPIC

4 cups fresh cooked tomatoes, 1/3 cup chopped onions, 1/4 cup chopped celery leaves, 1 bay leaf, 2 whole cloves, 1 teaspoon salt, 2 tablespoons brown sugar, 2 tablespoons (2 envelopes unflavoured gelatine), 1/4 cup cold water, 3 tablespoons lemon juice.

Combine tomatoes, onions, celery leaves, bay leaf, cloves, salt and sugar. Simmer 20 minutes; strain. There should be 3 1/3 cups. Soften gelatine in cold water; dissolve in hot tomato mixture. Add lemon juice. Pour into greased mold; chill in electric refrigerator. Unmold on crisp lettuce. Serve with old-fashioned potato salad.

STUFFED TOMATO SALAD

6 medium sized tomatoes, 1/2 cup of peas (green, cooked), 1/4 cup of chopped celery, 1/4 cup of diced cucumber, salad dressing.

Scald and peel the tomatoes. Cut a slice from the top and hollow out with a spoon. Mix the tomato pulp and salad dressing with the peas, chopped celery and cucumber and fill the tomatoes with this mixture. Lay the slice of tomato on top and garnish with hard-cooked egg yolks forced through a coarse sieve.

TOMATO SAUCE

1 1/2 cups tomatoes, 1 slice onion, 1 sprig parsley, 1 stalk celery, 1 tsp. pepper, 1 tsp. salt, 2 tbsps. bacon fat, 2 tbsps. flour.

Cook the first six ingredients together ten minutes. Strain. Melt fat, add flour, and when smooth add tomato juice. Cook five minutes.

FRIED GREEN TOMATOES

Slice unripe tomatoes in 1/2 inch slices crosswise. Do not peel. Dip in egg, then in bread crumbs, and saute in bacon fat until nicely browned. Sprinkle with salt and pepper. Serve at once.

TAKE A TIP

1. Wringers for washing machines are valuable. May we remind you of the simple precautions that prevent service work and loss of this labour saver.

Wringers should be set at the proper pressure for the thickness of the clothes. Too heavy a load may lock the rolls and even strip the gears. As soon as the "wringing out" is finished release the rollers. Oil ruins rubber. Do not spill any on rubber parts of the machine—if this happens clean off immediately with soap and water. Do not use any abrasive on stained rubber. Try to take as much as possible off with baking soda and water.

about the things you buy in wartime

Milk IS NOT ELASTIC

Milk is our most valuable food. It must provide us with milk to drink, with butter, cheese, evaporated and concentrated milk and a score of other products.

Canadian farmers have done a magnificent job. They have increased milk production in 1943 by more than 540 million quarts over 1938.

They have done this in the face of a 25% reduction in farm help, equipment shortages, and the fact that it takes two to three years to bring a calf into milk production.

The production of milk and milk products in Canada has achieved a notable record. Careful planning makes the best use of every quart. But we must recognize the conditions imposed by war and realize that in these times we all can't get all we want.

Chairman
Wartime Prices & Trade Board

WHAT HAPPENS TO ALL THIS MILK?

In spite of greater production, the demand for milk and milk products has risen even more, because—

- (a) There's more money to spend;
- (b) More people are working, with changed food habits and increased food needs;

- (c) Our Armed Forces and Allies make heavy demands.
- It has therefore been necessary by rationing, by subsidies, by careful planning and by other controls—to divert our milk supply into channels most suited to our various food needs.

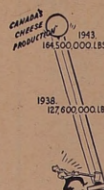

The above graph shows in percentage how the total Canadian milk supply is used.

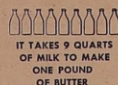

FLUID MILK TAKES 48% OF OUR MILK

Because fluid milk is regarded by nutritionists as the most nearly perfect food, nothing has been allowed to interfere with its sale. Today, Canadians are drinking more milk and a greater percentage of our milk supply is being consumed as fluid milk—than ever before. Fluid milk has the right of way, but don't waste a drop of it.

BUTTER TAKES 48% OF OUR MILK

IT TAKES 9 QUARTS OF MILK TO MAKE ONE POUND OF BUTTER

In the first three years of war, our butter consumption increased 10.3%. So, rationing was established to prevent too much milk going into butter, at the expense of other important milk products, and to insure a fair share to everyone.

The rationing of butter was influenced by the fact that it has less nutritive value than some other milk products, and because we get a generous supply of fats or their food equivalent in other forms.

To maintain a proper balance of consumption between various milk products and to ensure that butter is put into storage for winter use—when production drops—it is necessary to reduce the ration from time to time.

CHEESE TAKES 10% OF OUR MILK

Canada's annual cheese production has gone up by about 37 million pounds since the war.

Cheese is a concentrated food product—easily shipped and stored. That is one reason why we send large quantities to Great Britain to help meet its pressing food needs. While in the last year we exported four of every five pounds of cheese we made, our production has been so increased that we have left for domestic use about three million pounds a year more than before the war.

EVAPORATED MILK TAKES 6% OF OUR MILK

More than twice as much (152 million lbs.) was used by Canadians this last year as in 1938 (74 million lbs.). And yet, there has not been enough.

Where has it all gone? It's an important food for babies—and there are 50,000 more of them a year. Larger quantities have gone to areas where fresh milk is not available. Armed Services have added new demands. In spite of this, our exports of evaporated milk to Great Britain, Newfoundland and the West Indies, etc., are maintained at pre-war level.

ICE CREAM AND OTHER MILK PRODUCTS TAKE ABOUT 1 1/2% OF OUR MILK

The manufacture of ice cream is restricted to the 1941 level because milk is needed for other purposes. Milk Powder and Condensed Milk are taking more milk. Milk sugar is used in the manufacture of Penicillin and for other wartime purposes. Casein (a milk by-product) is used in making glue for aeroplanes.

90% OF THE MILK PRODUCED IN CANADA IS CONSUMED IN CANADA

Canadian Weekly Newspapers Render Great Patriotic Service

The weekly newspapers of Canada are rendering a fine service in helping to maintain morale on the fighting front and at home, says the Globe and Mail. Perusal of town and village papers reveals an inspiring interest in the welfare of the armed forces. They are giving leadership in every direction—cigarettes, socks and sweaters for the men who fight on land, on sea, and in the air; bundles for Britain, jam for British children, comforts for "bombed-outers." Steadily they support such worthy causes as the Kinsmen's Milk for Britain Fund, the Evening Telegram British War Victims' Fund, and the Queen's Canadian Fund.

It would take columns to tell of the valuable work which the rural press of Canada has done to stimulate recruiting, to raise money for comforts, to sell Victory bonds, and the like. They have kept up a sustained effort since the commencement of the war. Many a lad fighting in Italy or France or sailing in the corvettes which guard the Atlantic coast testify to the pleasure he has been given by letters and parcels which might never have been sent but for the promptings of the weekly editors. Some of these editors fought in the Great War. They know what a letter from home means to a lad in a far country.

Canada is indeed fortunate in possessing a weekly press which is capable of rendering great patriotic service at such a time.

Lunch With Queen On 'Initiative' Task

Recently two British Army airborne sergeants were ordered to go to a country house and obtain the signature of the owner. The owner was out, but a woman's voice invited them in to lunch. They had lunch and left afterwards with a note which read: "This is to certify, that Sergeants — and — came here to obtain the signature of —. Unfortunately he was out." The note was signed by Queen Mary.

The order given to the two sergeants was an "initiative task" given to British Army personnel to test their resourcefulness and initiative in carrying out unusual orders. The men receive no suggestions on how to arrive at their destinations — they are merely told the time limits for their jobs.

WHAT SCIENCE IS DOING Suits From Seaweed

The Scottish Seaweed Research Association has been formed by industrialists and chemists to explore the practicability of making use of the seaweed that is collected around the rocks of parts of the western coast of Scotland, says The St. Thomas Time-Journal.

High hopes are entertained for success. Although seaweed is about 85 per cent salt water, the rest is rich in a product named algin.

From this algin it has been found possible to produce a material from which a sturdy textile is made. Not only that, but algin seems to have some of the qualities of plastics, and from it there can also be made material suitable for dental plates, transparent paper, varnishes and a host of other things, another product that is mentioned being poultry feed.

Factories for reducing the seaweed to algin and its products are to be established in the areas where this type of seaweed is found, and it is believed that when one or two chemical problems have been solved, a valuable new industry will be created for the crofters of Scotland.

Capital invested in the United States motion picture industry totals $2,061,500,000.

NOTICE TO EMPLOYERS AND THEIR MALE EMPLOYEES

By an order signed on August 15th, 1944, by the undersigned Minister of Labour under authority of National Selective Service Mobilization Regulations:

1. Commencing August 22nd, 1944, every employer is required to check the documents held by each newly engaged male employee, within 7 days of the employee's engagement, to determine if such employee possess documents to show that he is in good standing under National Selective Service Mobilization Regulations (that is, in relation to the Military Call-up);
2. Every employer must report on Schedule 9 to the Registrar for his Mobilization Division, concerning any employee found not to possess documents as referred to;
3. Every employer is required similarly to check the documents held by each male employee newly engaged between May 1st, 1944, and August 22nd, 1944, and to report to the Registrar for his Mobilization Division by August 29th, 1944, on any such employee found not to possess documents as referred to;
4. Any male employee here referred to, is required by the Regulations to present his documents to his employer for purposes of inspection;
5. Penalties are provided for any employer or male employee who fails to comply with these Regulations.

By an earlier order, employers were required to check the documents held by their male employees, and to report by May 1st, 1944, on doubtful cases as well as cases where employees did not possess documents. The procedure for the present continuing check, although being notified to employers in "Notice to Employers and their Male Employees", which is now being mailed, is identical with that set forth in "Employers' Guide", which covered the check made before May 1st, 1944.

Employers are asked to remember that they do not report on men who do possess the necessary documents—only on those who fail to present documents for examination, or where there is doubt that the document presented actually proves good standing.

The employers of Canada co-operated very satisfactorily on the first check, made up to May 1st last. This co-operation was decidedly helpful, and is very much appreciated. Further co-operation is now earnestly requested.

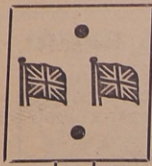

Schedule 9 and details as to documents which prove good standing, are available through the Employment and Selective Service Offices.

Zone Meeting of Ladies' Auxiliary in Deseronto

The Annual Zone Rally of the Ladies' Auxiliaries of the Canadian Legion was held in the Legion Hall Mill Street, on Thursday, with 102 delegates attending, 6 from Brockville, 29 from Picton, 23 from Belleville, 16 from Kingston, and 25 from Deseronto.

The meeting was called to order by the president of the local society, Comrade C. J. Knight, and the flag presented while members sang Rule Britannia with Comrade Perlick at the piano.

Two minutes silence was observed for fallen comrades, the auxiliary prayer was repeated and one verse of "O Canada" was sung.

Comrade Knight welcomed Comrade C. M. Norley, past provincial president, Toronto, and Comrade V. M. Camken, representative of Zone 13, Belleville, who was asked to take charge of the meeting and who gave an interesting address of welcome to all present.

The presidents of the auxiliaries were asked to come to the presidential table at the front of the hall and included Comrade Coburn of Brockville; C. Norris, of Kingston, representing Mrs. Benstead, who was unable to be present; C. Mooney, Gananoque; C. Hedges, Picton; C. Camken, Belleville; and C. Knight, Deseronto.

Secretaries were called on to give their various reports and also explained how their money was raised and how spent, some giving to Red Cross, Red Shield, general and Service Men's Club work.

Comrade Coburn, of Brockville, and C. Hedges, of Picton, nominees for Zone representative, spoke briefly. C. Coburn congratulating the local auxiliary on having their own hall and C. Hedges spoke on rehabilitation of our soldier boys and also felt there would have to be a rehabilitation of wives and children as all have been separated so long.

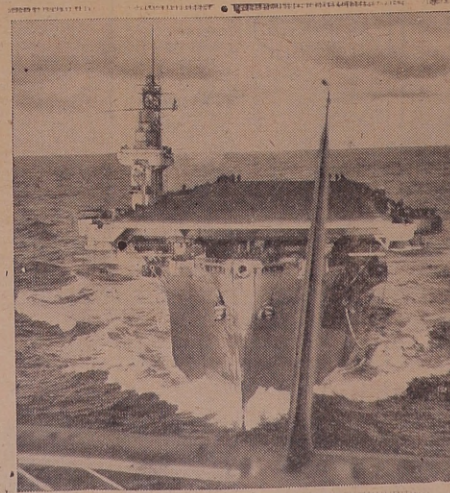

C. Norris brought a message from C. Benstead, Kingston, wishing the Rally every success. C. Mooney also expressed pleasure at being at the Rally.

C. Camken, Zone Representative, (resigned) brought greeting from her Auxiliary and said she was sorry to leave the district. (C. Camken is going to Toronto to reside.) She then introduced Provincial Past President C. Norley, of Toronto, who expressed her pleasure at being present with the Deseronto Auxiliary which she had organized 8 years ago. She spoke of the unselfishness of the Auxiliaries telling them they were too modest and should tell the public of what they do. She also spoke of the work to be done after the war, sympathized with those who have lost loved ones and told of the sacrifices of the people in England and asked all to stick together to insure peace. She also spoke highly of the work of C. Camken, who has been untiring in her work as Zone Representative. C. Camken thanked her and also gave the report for Zone 13 and told of the organizing of Gananoque three months ago, also of the success of the Belleville Canadian Legion since reorganizing. Two motions were passed one from Belleville, one from Deseronto, to be forwarded to convention to be held in North Bay in November.

C. Norley was in charge of the Question Box.

Comrade Hedges, of Picton, was elected Zone Representative for the coming year, defeating C. Coburn, Brockville, who was the first to congratulate her.

SYNOPSIS

Peggy Horton, working off her temper knocking balls about the golf course, shatters the windshield of a parked automobile. Harry Wilson, the owner, insists that she tell him what is wrong. She explains that she has written her school roommate that she is engaged. Now the roommate is coming to visit her. Really Peggy is kept in such strict seclusion by her grandmother that she never meets any boys — and isn't engaged. Her sister, Maxine Trueheart, is a successful screen star. The young man insists that Peggy borrow the ring his fiancée has just returned and pretend it is her engagement ring.

CHAPTER III

Peggy turned to walk up the road to the main entrance of Rosewood, but she had gone only a few feet when she heard the honk honk of an automobile horn behind her. Stepping quickly to the side of the road she turned her head to see if it were Harry returning. A planned and achieved, that Rosewood should be what it was now. Furniture and books had not been all bought at once by one person. They had been acquired by different people of different generations, and the place breathed now through that variety of tastes, harmonious in its completeness. There were ledgers in an old desk in the "office" — a one-story room that formed an ell to one side of the house — that told how these men had planted and built.

The rose garden, which occupied the space that was formed by the angle between the house and the office, had always been the pride of the women of the Horton family. The beds were filled with plants that ranged from the simple old-fashioned roses to a few rare and costly ones. Each mistress of Rosewood had added her own individuality by making some minor changes which had enriched the friendliness, without detracting from the formal outlines of the garden. The first Mrs. Elliott Horton had planted the low box-hedge around three sides, thus insuring greater privacy for herself and family. Then Gran's mother-in-law had built a latticed summer house against the center of the hedge at the far end, with a path leading from it to the open end of the garden, near the house. It was Gran who had an opening cut in each side of the hedge, a path crossing from one opening to the other. In this way the garden was used more frequently than it would otherwise have been.

RELIGION IN THE LIFE OF A NATION
PRINTED TEXT, 2 Samuel

GOLDEN TEXT. — Jehovah will be unto thee an everlasting light, and thy God thy Glory. Isaiah 60:19.

Devotional Reading: Isaiah 60: 15-22.

Beginner Topic: For God's House.

Lesson Material: 2 Samuel 7.

Memory Verse: I was glad when they said unto me, Let us go unto the house of Jehovah, Psalm 122:1.

THE LESSON IN ITS SETTING

Time.—Inasmuch as our lesson does not contain any data for determining exactly in what part of David's reign these events occurred, except that they were before the birth of Solomon, it is difficult to assign a particular year for the episodes here described. Generally speaking, we believe the events did not occur far from the year 990 B.C.

Place.—While other towns are mentioned in our lesson, the principal city here is Jerusalem.

Revelation From God

"According to all this vision, so did Nathan speak unto David." Nathan told David all that had been revealed to him by God. A vision is to be distinguished as a method of revelation from a dream.

"Then David the king went in, and sat before Jehovah; and he said, who am I, O Lord Jehovah, and what is my house, that thou hast brought me thus far?" David is asking what merit there is in him that Jehovah should have blessed him so richly up till this moment. He felt he was totally unworthy of such consideration. He owed all to God's grace.

Source of All Blessing

"And this was yet a small thing in thine eyes, O Lord Jehovah; but thou hast spoken also of thy servant's house for a great while to come; and this too after the manner of men, O Lord Jehovah." God had done great things for David in the past, but this was a small thing in God's sight, he thought, compared with what He now promised to do for the House of David.

"And what can David say more unto thee? For thou knowest thy servant, O Lord Jehovah. For thy word's sake, and according to thine own heart, hast thou wrought all this greatness, to make thy servant know it." It is God who, out of the goodness of his heart, has planned all these blessings for the House of David. God has wrought great things for David to let him know that he loved him and cared for him.

The Greatness of God

"Wherefore thou art great, O Jehovah God: for there is none like thee . . . and thou, Jehovah, becamest their God." God manifested his power in Israel's behalf in wonderful ways, when he brought them out of Egypt and destroyed their foes by a great miracle. In the wilderness he fed them with manna. He caused water to gush forth from a smitten rock. He destroyed their enemies and caused them to possess the land of Canaan. No heathen nation could point out any deliverance wrought by its deity to be compared with God's amazing deliverance of His chosen people.

David's Prayer

"And now, O Jehovah God, the word that thou hast spoken concerning thy servant . . . and with thy blessing let the house of thy servant be blessed for ever."

In the life and Psalms of David, we see how consistently he sought to magnify the Lord. He realized he owed everything to God. It was God, not man, who overthrew all the foes of Israel and unto Him belonged all praise.

The words of men often prove to be false. Some deliberately choose to speak falsely; others speak in good faith and make promises but fail to fulfill them, sometimes through forgetfulness, or other times through circumstances beyond their control. But David knew he was dealing with One whose essential character is truth. Because David knew God was faithful and true he could rest in His promises. If we only believed more deeply that God's words and promises are true, and their fulfillment is sure, what a difference it would make in our lives.

CANADA'S STABILIZATION PROGRAM

Today, it can truly be said we are fighting a global war. The years of waiting are over, and the culmination of all the plans means attack by the United Nations on every front. It is sometimes easy to forget in the excitement of the opening of the second front, the part that planning has played in this scheme.

Apart from the controls which apply mainly to the production of war materials, a whole system of controls has been gradually built up to ensure that the civilian economy remains stable. The most important of these are:

1. Price Control
 2. Wage and Salary Control
 3. Heavy Taxation, and increased saving—through Victory Bonds, etc.
 4. Control over the distribution of materials and supplies.
- The rest is up to the individual Canadian. To make the controls work means continued self-restraint. Each Canadian should remember that the way to make controls work is by:
- Paying taxes promptly.
 - Cutting out all unnecessary spending.
 - Buying all the Victory Bonds and War Savings Certificates possible.
 - Buying and selling at legal prices.
 - Not trying to get more than a fair share of scarce supplies.
 - Supporting both price and wage control.
 - Not pressing claims for higher profits or higher pay because of wartime conditions.

Zone Rally for 1945 will be held in Brockville.

The afternoon meeting closed by presenting the standard while all members stood at attention and the National Anthem sung. The ladies then marched to the United Church Sunday School Hall where dinner was served by members of the W.A.

C. Knight presided and called on Mr. J. B. Hough to propose the toast to the King, all joined in the National Anthem.

Rev. H. A. Bunt paid tribute to the work the women are doing in this war, 43,842 women are in the armed services.

Canon C. E. S. Radcliffe congratulated the local Auxiliary on the splendid work they are doing for our boys of the services in town.

Rural Dean Pringle of Tyendinaga asked the ladies to still carry on after our boys come home to give them a welcome home and not to get discouraged.

Comrade Norley asked for the support of the citizens in the local work and noted that there were 109 Auxiliaries in Ontario and their motto "Service".

C. Norley also thanked the W.A. for the splendid dinner and Mrs. J. B. Hough, President, responded.

C. Norley made the dinner draw, C. Farrell, of Kingston, winning the lovely black leather purse.

They then returned to the Legion Hall where Bingo was enjoyed, in charge of Zone Commander H. Fraser.

This was followed by a dance with C. Perlick at the piano.

Caretaker I. Claus was then presented with a gift by the auxiliaries.

C. Camken made the draw for the general fund Rally and the blanket was won by AC. Robert Bonner; pillow slips by Mrs. F. Covert and plate donated by Mrs. J. Asten, of Washington, D.C., won by Mrs. S. C. Hughes.

DEADLY NEW CANADIAN WEAPON REVEALED

Long on the secret list, a powerful new weapon, the "Sexton," a 25-ponder full-tracked, self-propelled mount, has been revealed to the world by Munitions Minister C. D. Howe. Designed by Canadians and built only in this country, it has already been made in sufficient quantities to supply the Canadian Army, and is now being made for the British Army. A modification of the Canadian-designed Ram tank, the "Sexton", a 25-ponder full-France. The gun for the new mount is virtually the same as the 25-ponder which stopped Rommel at El Alamein. It is shown being installed into the mount in the lower photo, while above a line of the completed mounts lumbers out to the test ranges.

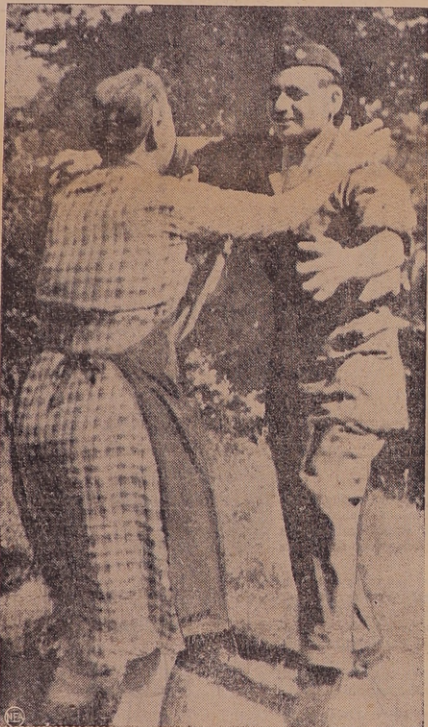

NAZIS UP TO DEADLY TRICKS

These photos show two of the tricky new mines Germans are using in Italy. Two-part mine pictured above is anti-personnel weapon. Wooden peg is driven into ground, mine is placed on it, above ground, and cord tied between two mines. When trip cord is disturbed, it pulls the pins and both mines explode simultaneously. Other two pictures show a new anti-tank mine, also used against other vehicles. Its bottle-shaped shell has open bottom, in which there is the electro-magnet seen in picture at right. This enables mines to adhere to any steel part. In photo below, an Allied soldier demonstrates, on Army tank tread, how the mine is used.

REUNION IN FRANCE

Fondest hopes are realized as a happy mother welcomes her soldier son back to his home in Alencon. The soldier, serving in the French Army, helped to liberate the town from Nazi rulers.

IN FRANCE

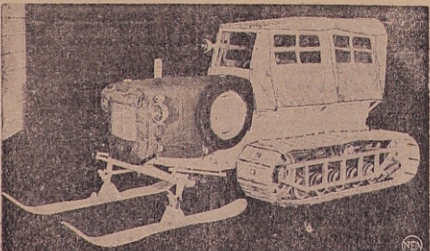

Lieut. (Nursing Sister) Billie Bell, of Guelph, Ont., shown here, was one of the first Canadian nursing sisters to arrive in France. She is now doing duty with a Canadian Hospital there.

INVASION LEADER

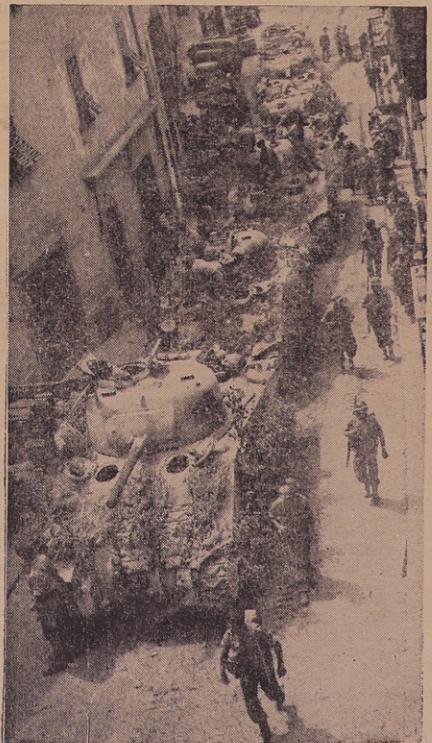

Maj. Gen. Alexander Patch, according to reports from Allied Headquarters in Rome, is commanding the allied invasion forces in southern France, including the American 7th Army, which carried out the invasion of Sicily.

TRACTOR TOGGED OUT FOR WINTER

Model M-7 snow tractor, above, designed for use by the armed forces in Arctic areas, is heavily insulated against cold, has six forward and two reverse speeds ranging from four to 41 m.p.h. Coupled with a snow trailer, the M-7 is used for rescuing downed flyers and carrying supplies.

ANOTHER ITALIAN TOWN FALLS TO ALLIES

The Italian town of Montespertoli, overlooking the valley of the Arno to the west of Florence fell to Canadian tankmen and British infantry after fierce fighting. Here both tanks and infantry move forward through the town in pursuit of the retreating Huns.

Christmas Gifts For Overseas Parcels

"Do not open until Christmas". That exciting phrase should soon be making its appearance on parcel mail despite the fact that many places in Canada are just recovering from the hottest spell on record. Postmaster General William P. Mulock advises that it is time to make plans for Christmas gift parcels to members of the Armed Forces Overseas. The Christmas mailing period this year is

SEPTEMBER 15 — OCTOBER 25
Naturally parcels sent to those in the more remote theatres of war should be sent the earliest. Suggested "deadline" mailing dates are:—

SEPTEMBER 15—The far East, India, Burma, Ceylon, etc.

OCTOBER 5—The Middle East area, Egypt, Iran, Iraq, Syria, etc.

OCTOBER 10—Central Mediterranean Forces.

OCTOBER 25—The United Kingdom and France.

In view of the rapid progress of the war these dates might possibly be subject to change.

Last Christmas season (Oct.—Nov.—Dec.) over 12,000,000 lbs of parcel mail alone were despatched to the Forces Overseas from Canada. This year an even greater volume is expected. Therefore, EARLY MAILING IS NECESSARY to enable Postal Officials to cope with the handling, and to carry out arrangements for transportation on trains and ships. Remember that cargo space is still at a premium. Bear in mind this year that the mail must travel greater distances—many of our troops are farther afield—on different fronts fighting under the conditions of mobile warfare—plenty of time must be allowed between mailing and delivery.

A suggestion to further help our boys and girls on Active Service receive their gifts from home is to voluntarily cut down, as far as possible, on the size of the package, even though the maximum weight at the special rate of 12 cents per pound is 11 pounds. This will enable authorities to ship a greater number of parcels in the cargo space available.

A completed Customs Declaration should be attached to each parcel.

All mail should be fully and clearly addressed in ink, without misleading abbreviations. Place a return address on the cover of each parcel and also a slip among the contents giving the name and address of the sender and the complete Armed Forces address that appears on the parcel. Prepay all mail correctly. By refraining from writing to a member of the Armed Forces Overseas that gifts are being sent, until actually mailed, much worry can be saved the soldier. Do not disappoint our men by mailing too late for Christmas delivery.

These Chefs Turn Out 75,000 Pies A Year

PASTRY-MAKING being the fine art that it is, as any housewife who has slaved over a hot stove will agree, it should occasion little surprise that as Chief Pastry Chef for the Canadian Pacific Railway's sleeping and dining car service, the company has a graduate of the Ghent (Belgium) School for Chefs. He is Henry De Rycke, shown right, with his four assistants and some of the pies.

So the next time you sit down in a C.P.R. diner and order pie, whether it be chicken, raisin, blueberry, apple or what have you, recall that you will be eating the pastry of Henry De Rycke, pronounced like strike-ee who has been a pastry chef in such romantic places as Monte Carlo, Ostend and Holland to say nothing of Canada. "From Winnipeg to Saint John—to Boston, Quebec City, too—they eat my pies!" Mr. De Rycke tells you with a sweep of a flour-dusted hand.

Mr. De Rycke enrolled in the Ghent School in 1912, graduated at the end of three years in time to enlist in the Belgian Army on his 18th birthday. Nothing happened to him in the war. "I was no hero," he modestly admits. "I cooked!"

A keen motorcyclist, De Rycke travelled extensively in England and on the Continent after the Great War came to Canada in 1928 and liked it so well he's never gone back. Right now, in his kitchen, which is, temporarily, one of the kitchen-cars built years ago for the Harvesters' Excursions to Western Canada by the C.P.R., he and his four helpers turn out an average of 250 pies per day. Affectionately known to all the C.P.R.'s Glen Yards people at Montreal as "the pie car," Henry looks forward to the post-war years when he expects he'll be able to whet the epicure's appetite with French pastry, curlicues on the cakes, and so on. Meantime, out roll the pies in an unending stream.

What Does Inflation Mean to You and Me?

Why, we couldn't buy enough food to keep our families healthy under inflation. For wages and salaries never catch up to prices when they start to soar!

How would we like to pay $1.10 a dozen for eggs? You say it can't happen? Don't forget it's already happened right here in this Dominion, during the last war. And it will happen again... unless we're on our toes to keep the cost of living down. Every Canadian must face this challenge! It's our responsibility.

But be of good heart. Living costs have risen LESS in Canada than anywhere else. Canada leads the world in the fight against inflation.

HERE'S HOW IT'S DONE—

In 1941, Canada determined to control the cost of living. Price ceilings were established on wages, rentals and commodities; subsidies were paid on essential foods; goods in short supply were rationed... so that everyone could get their fair share at a price they could afford to pay!

But control of prices is a two-way responsibility. It needs your support if it is to continue working effectively.

So make this Pledge Today!

I PROMISE to give my support to keeping the cost of living down. I will buy only what I need—I will observe the ceiling whether buying or selling goods or services. I'll pay off old debts, save for the future, invest in Victory Bonds and War Savings Certificates—and will support taxes which help lower the cost of living.

Keep Your Dollar Value High!

Distribute Ration Books October 17 to 19

Issuance of a new ration book, designated as "No. 5" has been scheduled for October 17, 18 and 19, for Belleville and district.

The new book will cover a period of rationing of fifty weeks instead of thirty weeks as in the case of former books.

The expansion of time from thirty to fifty weeks represents not only a tremendous convenience to the general public but a huge saving in time and effort on the part of local ration boards.

TIME FOR APPLICATION EXPIRES SEPTEMBER 30

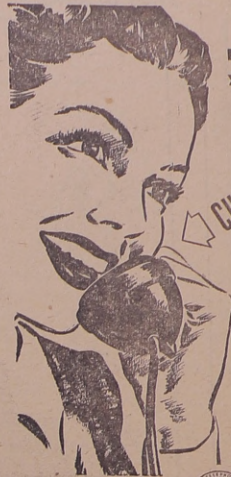

Hunters are reminded that to obtain small arms ammunition under the relaxation of the rationing regulations recently announced they must apply to their Local Ration Board before September 30, bringing with them their gun registration certificates and ration books. The permits thus obtained may be used for the purchase of the ammunition specified until December 31 next. It is brought to notice that non-residents without guns registered in this country are not entitled to buy ammunition here, although those who receive permission from the RCMP may import ammunition for sporting purposes. However, Americans who regularly visit Canada and who already have guns registered in this country will be treated the same as any other applicant upon presentation of their gun registration certificates.

'Tang o' the Salt'

Did you ever get up in the morning, with the tang o' the salt on your lips,
Did you ever crawl over the rocks on the shore, then climb right up to their tips.
Then gazing out over the Ocean, you scan the horizon so far,
And you smack o' your lips, with the taste o' the salt, a flavour that is without par.
No matter how stormy the Ocean, or peaceful or calm it might be,
There's beauty galore, right down by the shore, when gazing out over the sea.
Oh ye who've never been seaward, no matter what Ocean t'would be,
Don't know what you're missing, when living inland, instead o' being down by the Sea.
"Dedicated to the Boys from Newfoundland now training for Pilots at No. 2, I.T.S., RCAF, Regina, Sask, 1940."

Before you blame
your telephone...

CHECK THIS DISTANCE

Engineers designed the mouthpiece of your telephone to give best results at one-quarter of an inch from the lips. When your lips are farther away than this, your voice is transmitted less strongly... less clearly.

Failure to remember these simple facts accounts for the great majority of "trouble" reports.

Help avoid needless service check-ups, and at the same time let those you talk to hear you without strain. Just remember: Talk clearly, normally, directly into the telephone, with your lips just one-quarter of an inch from the mouthpiece.

On Active Service

Giving Wings to Words

Smoking while you talk may cause distorted reception. It also prevents your holding the mouthpiece directly in front of the lips.

If you need to reach across your desk as you talk, continue to hold the mouthpiece in correct position, close to the lips.

A wall set can't come to your stand or sit so that your lips are directly in front of and close to the mouthpiece. Don't "talk across" it.

For clear, noise-free transmission, always keep your desk telephone upright—near at or near the horizontal position.

KEEP ELECTRIC APPLIANCES FIT FOR DUTY.... USE THEM WITH CARE

● Give your Electrical Appliances good care and save repairs. The supply of new electric appliances is very limited. They cannot be built in quantities until their manufacturers... now engaged in making weapons of war... turn from the battlefield to the homefront.

Do your part—don't overload your washer or operate it longer than necessary. Be sure to oil the motor. Don't let leaky or dripping taps make your hot water heater work overtime. Keep your washer, your iron, and other electric appliances in good working condition by giving them the extra care that keeps them fit for duty.

For appliance repairs... see your local electrical dealer.

Hydro Home Economist

Hello Homemakers! Co-operation and working together for a common cause are more important to-day than at any time during the last decade—and the women of Ontario are rising to the occasion. An analysis of our mail will vouch for that.

Good old-fashioned neighbourliness and willingness to share with others are expressed in your letters. They are reminders of those days when neighbours everywhere exchanged a loaf of bread for a jar of preserves over the back fence.

It is significant of this growing togetherness in these times that Mrs. M. looks up old recipes gathered during the last war and sends them for you and me. We do appreciate all suggestions and discussions pertaining to our problems.

SPICED COTTAGE PUDDING

Suggested by Mrs. C. B.

1 cup shortening, 3-4 cup sugar, 2 tablespoons honey, 1 teaspoon cloves 1-4 teaspoon cinnamon, 1 teaspoon baking soda, 2 cups sifted flour, 3-4 cup water.

Cream shortening, add sugar and cream well together. Add honey. Mix cloves, cinnamon, baking soda and flour. Add water alternately with flour and spices. Stir well and pour into greased cake pan. Bake in a slow oven of 325 degrees F. for 1 hour. Serve hot with Grape Sauce.

GRAPE SAUCE

Suggested by Mrs. D. M.

8 cups grapes, 6 cups granulated sugar.

Wash and crush grapes of any variety. Cook slowly on electric element turned low for 15 minutes. Press through a coarse sieve. To the pulp add the granulated sugar. Mix well and cook for 15 minutes, stirring frequently to prevent scorching or sticking. Seal in sterilized jars for future use. Serve with puddings or ice cream.

MELON AMBROSIA

1 cup melon, cubed; 1 cup diced watermelon, 1 cup sliced orange, 6 tablespoons powdered sugar.

Mix all ingredients and chill thoroughly. Pile into sherbert glasses and serve garnished with fresh mint leaves. Yield: 6 servings.

DAMSON PLUM CONSERVE

(Requested)

2 pounds Damson plums, 1 chopped orange, 1 pint water, 1 cup raisins, 2-3 cups sugar, 1-4 cup nut meats (if obtained).

Pit and halve the plums, put through food chopper or cut in small pieces. Cook the chopped orange with the 1 pint of water for 20 minutes. Add plums and raisins and cook until about one-half the liquid has evaporated. Add sugar and cook rapidly until mixture will heap up on a spoon. Add nuts and pour into hot sterilized jars. Paraffin and cover.

Varieties of apples good for cider are Baldwin, Golden Russet, and Gravenstein.

Varieties of apples good for baking are Tolman Sweets, Northern Spy, McIntosh Red, Baldwin, Wealthy and Baxter.

CODDLED APPLES

2 cups boiling water, 1 or 11-2 cups sugar, 6 apples.

Make a syrup by boiling water and sugar together for 5 minutes. Core and pare apples, lower into syrup and cook slowly. Cover and watch carefully. When tender lift out apples, add a little lemon juice to the syrup and pour over the apples.

TAKE A TIP

1. To plant slips of geraniums, etc., put some lumps of charcoal in the pot—wood ash charcoal keeps the earth sweet.

2. For potted plants on the window-sill, use glass gliders that you buy for furniture. They are convenient to use on a narrow ledge.

3. Always water plants with a little warm water—preferably at night.

4. Do not forget to pot some parsley. It grows easily and supplies a summer green for winter salads.

about the things you buy in wartime

THE STORY OF CHILDREN'S UNDERWEAR

When you go to a store to buy and can't get the things you want, remember that war upsets the whole machinery of production and supply. This is the whole world. As Canada is devoting over half her production making things for war it is inevitable that civilian supply must be reduced. We just can't produce all the things required to fill the greatly increased civilian demands, but production efforts are being directed to see that the best use is made of materials and labour that are available for the production of civilian goods. Remember these facts when you have difficulties in your shopping.

Chairman
War-time Prices & Trade Board

OBVIOUSLY babies and children must have underwear. So—the Wartime Prices and Trade Board has given special attention to the production of these garments.

The problem has not been so much one of a lack of raw materials, but of getting the raw materials (wool, cotton, rayon), spun into yarns—and then knit into garments. Canada has never produced all the wool, cotton and rayon yarn she requires. We have always had to get a substantial part of our requirements from other countries, even in peacetime. But since the war, there has been an acute shortage of underwear yarns everywhere.

There has been a greatly increased demand in addition to production difficulties. The efforts of the Board to meet the problem are given below.

THE INCREASED DEMAND RESULTED FROM:

More babies . . . It's apparently always the way in wartime.

Reduced use of second-hand or "hand-me-down" garments.

Extra buying . . . Perhaps too many people wanted to be "on the safe side."

Less home sewing . . . Mothers have been working outside the home.

Huge demand for underwear by Armed Forces.

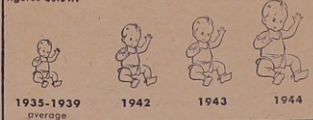

MORE UNDERWEAR: but still not enough!

The reason is that it just has not been possible to produce with the skilled workers and machines available to the United Nations enough yarn and garments to meet the increased demands all over the world.

WHAT HAS BEEN DONE ABOUT IT

- ✓First of all the Board found out the kind and quantity of garments Canadian children must have.
- ✓This showed that the public is asking for more than is actually needed.
- ✓So plans were made to see, by directing production all down the line, if we could meet the swollen demand as nearly as possible.
- ✓Each manufacturer was told to produce an increased number of garments.
- ✓A constant check is kept on mills to see that they are producing the required number.
- ✓Manufacturers not previously making children's underwear were induced to go into its production. An additional 600,000 garments will be provided this year from these sources.
- ✓Negotiations were conducted with production authorities in other countries for supplies of yarn to Canadian knitters for use in children's underwear.
- ✓Primary cotton mills were required to divert spinning facilities from fabric manufacture to the spinning of underwear yarns.
- ✓Arrangements were made through National Selective Service to direct more labour to the underwear mills.
- ✓A special campaign was launched to enlist part time workers.
- ✓Distribution to retail stores was organized to ensure equitable supply to all areas.

The greatly increased supply of children's underwear resulting from these efforts is shown by the relative sizes of the figures below.

FRESHER, CHEAPER FOOD for your table by men who think of tomorrow

TOMORROW'S EVERGROWING GARDENS... Why should garden-fresh vegetables be available only in summer? Why should rich, ripe strawberries be a luxury in winter? Men who think of tomorrow are doing something about it. In Scotland, where seasons are short, it has been possible to grow six to eight crops of vegetables a year by heating truck gardens with underground steam pipes—under glass in winter, open to the air in summer.

MEN WHO THINK OF TOMORROW are planning to feed the world better than it has ever been fed before, to make it healthier than ever before. It is a glorious future to which we may look... but only after the war is won!

Are you working at your "war job" as hard as you can?

Are you saving and turning in wastepaper to help meet the serious shortage this country faces in the manufacture of containers for war materials?

Are you collecting and turning in every last drop of fat from your kitchen to help feed the hungry machines that turn it into TNT?

Are you heeding the Government's plea to curtail your personal travel so that troops and supplies can move freely over our already congested transportation systems?

Have you added your blood to that of millions of others to provide life-saving plasma for our wounded?

And have you increased your purchases of War Savings Certificates and Victory Bonds to the limit of your ability... and are you holding on to them?

Only by working as hard as we can at these and scores of other "war jobs" will we be sure of Victory... and the ever-ripening fruits of Victory. Let us all be MEN WHO THINK OF TOMORROW!

This Royal Canadian Air Force officer, his wife and their baby too, judging by the satisfied expression, are boosters for the new "magic eye" doors installed at the Windsor Station in Montreal by the Canadian Pacific Railway as an aid to luggage-laden travellers. The new installation, first of its kind in a Canadian railway station, depends on a photo electric cell to act as a switch and set compressed air working to open the doors. Interruption of a beam of light, invisible to the naked eye, is the main factor in the photo electric cell working and causes the portals to swing open without them being touched.

Both capitalism and communism are fighting words, says the New York Times Magazine. They are symbols, expletives, banners of conflict.

Before the argument can be conducted in a reasonable tone of voice they must be explained. Capitalism is not happily named.

For if a capitalist society is one that lays particular stress upon the accumulation of capital, then Soviet Russia is the most capitalist state that ever existed.

A black and white photograph of a young girl standing on a cobblestone street, reaching up to touch a large wooden door. Above the door is a sign that reads "Wenmach" and "Übernachtung" with a swastika symbol. The girl is wearing a light-colored dress and a dark skirt. The background shows a building with a balcony and a flag.

The image captures the two massive towers of the Westwork, the flying buttresses of the choir, and the central facade. The architecture is Gothic, with intricate stonework and pointed arches. In the foreground, a large, open square is filled with people, some standing and others walking, providing a sense of scale to the massive structure. The background shows other buildings of the Parisian neighborhood, and the overall scene is bathed in the warm, slightly faded light of an old photograph.

ONTARIO FARMERS
1000 MEN WANTED
Now!

THIS is an appeal to THE FARMERS OF ONTARIO. The Packing Plants of Ontario, which process and ship your livestock for export, ARE SERIOUSLY SHORT OF MEN. Every available Farmer of Ontario is urged to offer his services for employment in one of the Packing Plants in this province as soon as the essential work of the farm is completed. OVER 1,000 men are required to start in the month of September alone. Good hourly wages will be paid. Transportation to the plant will be provided. Assistance will be given in arranging board and room.

With full staffs, the Packing Plants of Canada have ample capacity to handle even the tremendously increased numbers of cattle, sheep and swine, which Canadian farmers have ready for market this year. When operating to capacity the Packing Plants can keep the market cleared and livestock can be slaughtered, processed and shipped at its most profitable time, when it is at its market peak. Thus, losses which occur when animals are held beyond the peak—through additional feeding costs, through falling away from peak condition and through the danger to price structures when supply threatens to exceed demand—are avoided.

Last year several hundred Ontario farmers volunteered for work in the plants in processing their own products and protecting their own interests. Production for export this year has increased by 40%. Available man-power has shrunk by 28%.

The Ontario Farm Service Force, in conjunction with Employment and Selective Service has undertaken the task of raising sufficient help from Ontario Farmers to keep Packing Plants operating to capacity this year. This department of the Ontario government's Department of Agriculture feels that this extension of its service is as vitally important to the interests of the farmers of this province as anything it has yet undertaken. The need of meat as a primary essential food to our Allied Armies, to the people of Great Britain and to the starving millions in countries being liberated by our victorious armies, is the basic consideration. In addition, efficient operation in the processing and marketing of livestock is necessary in protecting the greatest export market ever opened to Canadian farmers.

Your services are needed from now until spring. If you cannot devote that full period of time, a month or more will be of great assistance.

OFFER YOUR SERVICES AS SOON AS POSSIBLE. If you cannot go to work at once, call or write, stating that you will come, and at what date you will be available. Remember you will be serving your own best interests as well as playing a vital patriotic part in serving your country.

Mohawk Fair Was Financial Success

Notwithstanding Tuesday's heavy rain and Wednesday's intermittent showers, the Annual Mohawk Fair was highly successful, both financially and from an entertainment standpoint. Delicious meals were served in the newly decorated Guild Hall; and in the Council House, festive with flags and streamers, were long well-filled tables of exhibits of fruit and flowers, home cooking and needlecraft, which were much admired.

An exhibition attracting much attention were the articles made by the five Homemakers' Clubs of the Reserve. That so many useful and beautiful articles of clothing could be made from discarded clothes was a revelation in skillful designing and sewing.

Several events of much interest took place on the grounds. Three families of nine members each, those of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Brant, Mr. and Mrs. Lazarus Brant and Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Hill, were entered for the largest family contest. The latter won by draw. The prize for the biggest feet went to Buddy Maracle, who wore a neat 12 1/2 size. Mrs. Gordon Rupert was the prize winner for the largest lady; Mr. John Hill for the oldest man, and Mrs. Albert Lewis for the oldest woman on the grounds. Much amusement was occasioned by the Ladies' Nail Driving Contest. The winners were Mrs. Herman Hill, Mrs. Raymond Leween and Mrs. Augustus Brant. In the Tag-of-War between the No. 1 I.F.S. at Camp Mohawk, and a team from the Reserve, the Airmen won. In the foot race, Pat Maracle came first, Everett Maracle second, Huron Brant third.

Great interest was centered in the Baby Show. First prizes for girls were won by Elaine Sero, Marion Rose Hill and Marilyn John. Second prizes went to Doreen Topping, Janice John and Elizabeth Maracle. The boy-baby prize winners were Glenn Gordon Maracle, Harold Fairbanks, Ralph Brant, Robert Maracle, Kenneth Claus, Clare Brant and Michael Brant. The sweepstake prize winning babies were Janice John, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Everett John and Robert Maracle, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Maracle. An admiring audience were the judges for the sweepstake prizes.

In the Running Race for horses, Midnight Royal came first, Royal Revenge, second; Midnight Flash, third; and Little Eva, fourth.

In the Ladies' Fancy Work Section there were twenty-four exhibitors and nearly eight hundred entries. The special prize for a bath mat was won by Mrs. Robert Hill.

Small Number of Donors at Clinic

The committee in charge of the Blood Donor Clinic regret very much the small number of donors turning out to the regular monthly in the Legion Hall on Thursday last.

LAC M. Sharkin, LAC Clazon, Cpl. Ballantyne, Sgt. Bourne, Flt. Lt. Jarvis, Sgt. E. Lalonde, Sgt. Smart, Flt/Sgt. S. Edgeley, LAC Wilson, Cpl. Brawne, LAC Smith, Cpl. Challen, LAC Robertson, Sgt. Moote.

From Marysville, Mrs. C. Kennedy, Mr. R. Kennedy, B. Murphy, John Roach, Deseronto, N. Langton, W. E. Irwin, Joan Malley, Mrs. E. Roach, G. Walker, Mrs. Leaban, Mrs. J. A. Williamson, Mrs. Stewart, B. Claus, H. Hodges, C. Malley, Miss N. Houle, J. R. Bradshaw, Mrs. Eva Brant, Perry Badgley, Miss Peggy Moore.

Mrs. W. Root donated last month but the name was omitted.

Members of the Ladies' Aid of the Presbyterian Church made and served the refreshments for donors and assistants.

Others assisting besides Doctor and nurses from Kingston were Mrs. C. Metcalfe, Mrs. S. Wessman, Mrs. W. Poste, Mrs. Stewart, R.N., Miss Peggy Moore, Graduate Nurse.

Army Newspaper Mentions Local Boys

The following is a clipping taken from one of the army papers printed in Italy and is particularly interesting to those who have boys in the R.C.H.A.

The three boys that we know of are Gunners, Norman Purvis, Everett Martin and Gordon Brant whose parents all reside in town. The article is written by Capt. H. A. Hyman and reads as follows in connection with the Royal Canadian Horse Artillery the only permanent force artillery regiment Canada has fielded in the present war.

This regiment carried its 25 pounders from the Pachino peninsula up Sicily across the Messina Straits, blasted its way up Italy, joined the gun chores for the Battle of the Moro River valley and did its share to rip up the Gustav and Hitler line positions.

Its history dates back to 1871 when there were two stations of the Royal School of Artillery, one in Quebec and one in Kingston. These were formed into A and B batteries, R.C.A., which were the nucleus of the permanent force in Canada.

Later C. Battery was formed as a coast defense battery at Esquimaux, B.C., and it was D. battery that did police duty during the Alaska Gold Rush. Later A. and B. batteries both took part in suppressing the Riel rebellion. In the winter of 1879 their 12 pounders were mounted on sleds. Two of the batteries participated in the Boer War. On the outbreak of the first Great War the R.C.H.A. brigade was organized to serve with the Canadian Cavalry brigade. Not until after the Battle of Amiens in August, 1918, did opportunity occur for horse tactics, but during the pursuit that followed, the cavalry brigade went through and on October 21 at Le Chateau advanced 20 miles taking.

That would certainly be considered a modest profit on a business of two million dollars.

Yet, in terms of percentage, the two results are exactly the same.

And, percentage is the only factor in which the Producer is interested.

As to Item 2,—the charge of monopoly also has its origin in the size of the larger companies. The trend in the Packing Industry has been continuously toward large units. It is not surprising if the Farmer is disposed to listen to this charge. He realizes that competition between those who buy his live stock is, for him, the most vital consideration of all. And he may fear that a small number of large companies would give less assurance of competition than a large number of small companies.

The fact is that each large company is not a unit, but a group of units. For instance Canada Packers operates seven different plants located in widely separated areas (from Montreal to Vancouver). Within each area its local unit competes with many other units.

And the further fact is, that in addition to the companies operating multiple plants, (there are three of them) a large number of other companies operate single plants. Many of these single plants do a large and increasing share of the business in their own field. It is entirely misleading to represent the Industry as dominated by the larger companies. The latest report of the Dominion Bureau of Statistics (1942) shows 148 plants as follows:—

Ontario	67
Quebec	29
Alberta	13
British Columbia	11
Manitoba	11
Saskatchewan	8
Nova Scotia	4
New Brunswick	4
P.E.I.	1

148

Nothing in the history of the Industry gives ground for the fear that the development of large units results in lessened competition. From its beginning the Packing Industry has been the most fiercely competitive industry in Canada. And competition between large units is more (not less) keen than that between small units.

Two proposals to transform the Industry have been suggested by those who constitute themselves its critics. In principle they are diametrically opposed.

The proposals are:—

- that Canadian live stock should be processed in a large number of co-operative plants, as in Denmark;
- that the Packing Industry should be nationalized.

Every Packer would welcome the development of co-operative plants. Only one exists at present,—The First Co-operative Packers at Barrie, Ontario. It is unfortunate that there is not at least one in each of the chief livestock producing Provinces. Such plants would be sources of information regarding the facts of the Industry which Farmers would accept without question. The existence of a number of co-operative plants would lead to a greater measure of understanding between Producers and Packers than has ever existed in the past.

However, the establishment of co-operative plants would of necessity be a slow development. The reason lies in the highly competitive nature of the business, and the fact that the difference between profit and loss is a small fraction of a cent per pound. As Farmers became aware of the risks of loss on the one hand, and of the very low margin of profit on the other, the desire to launch co-operative plants would be less keen.

It is worth repeating, however, that no single development would do so much to promote a realization of the common interest of Producer and Packer, as the establishment of a number of co-operative plants.

As to the second proposal, it is hard to think of an Industry less suited for nationalization. The objection which comes to mind first is the danger of loss from spoilage if a Government organization were handling daily, tens of millions of pounds of perishable foods. The danger would arise because the chief safeguard would be removed, by reason of which such losses are avoided.

That safeguard is competition.

The reason such losses are avoided under a system of competition is that the penalty of not avoiding them is ruin. Under a state-owned system the National Treasury would foot the bill.

However, the chief penalty of eliminating competition would fall upon the Producer. To him the loss would come as the result of lowered efficiency.

The net profit of the Packing Industry as it exists, probably does not exceed 1 per cent. That is the total price which the Producer pays for the Packer's efficiency. Can anyone doubt that nationalization would result in a loss of efficiency equivalent to several times 1 per cent?

The Producer would be the only person to absorb this loss. It would come to him in the form of a lower pay-back out of the sales dollar.

The foregoing has been an attempt to set down the facts of the Packing Industry. It has dealt chiefly with the obligations, and the mutuality of interest, which obtain as between Packer and Producer.

The argument has been that the Packer has played a large and constructive part in the development of the Canadian Live Stock Industry, and that he has done this at a very low percentage of profit on his sales.

But, in a report to Shareholders, it is fitting that some reference should be made to the position and interest of the Investor.

The Capital Investment in the Packing Industry in Canada is $96,000,000 (Dominion Bureau of Statistics, 1942). Those who supplied this Capital did so with the hope of getting a return on their investment. And for this no apology need be made.

The attraction of the Industry from the Investor's viewpoint is that turnover is rapid. Capital is turned over many times in a single year, so that a small percentage of profit on turnover produces a satisfactory yield on capital. In the case of the successful companies, the investment has been profitable.

These facts have been sufficient to attract adequate funds to the Industry, in spite of the further fact that large sums have also been lost. The hazard of the Industry lies in the fact that the difference between profit and loss is a minute fraction of a cent per pound on the product sold.

By reason of the great increase in live stock deliveries, the plant of the Industry has been under constant strain. This has involved a corresponding strain upon Employees of all ranks. The loss of experienced men, and their replacement by inexperienced men, has brought an inevitable decline in plant efficiency.

In contrast with war industries, demand for the products of the Packing Industry will be maintained,—perhaps increased,—following the close of the war. It will be a happy day for both Company and Employees when experienced men return, and the large volume can be maintained without the severe physical strains of the past year.

The Company has maintained its profit sharing policy begun in 1934. For the first time, Bonus distributed to Employees exceeded Dividends to Shareholders.

Dividends were $800,000
Bonus was $937,000

Sale Of Feeder Cattle To Be Held At Little Current

The largest co-operative sale of feeder cattle ever planned in Central Canada will take place at Little Current, Manitoulin Island, Ontario, Sept. 26-27. At that time, members of the newly formed Manitoulin Livestock co-operative will offer for sale approximately 1900 head of Shorthorns and Herefords contributed by three to four hundred cattle producers. Past experience in co-operative marketing of turkeys and sheep on the Island, it is believed, assures the success of this new cattle enterprise. The beef cattle of Manitoulin Island have long been noted for their excellent type. In addition to their high health standards, practically all the cattle on the Island are free from warble flies due to an intensive campaign put on a few years ago.

EDITORIAL COMMENTARY

The Deseronto Post aims to be an independent, clean newspaper for the home, devoted to public service.

BASIS FOR A SOUND NATION

"Seventeen thousand homes destroyed by buzzbombs in one day." "Whole towns erased by artillery and retreating Germans." This is the news behind the stories of the recent great advances. Returning War correspondents say it's impossible to grasp the effect of all this destruction on the people and the countries.

Sound homes are the only sure foundation for a sound nation and a sound family of nations. The log house in the forest—the pioneer home—is a symbol of all that is good in Canada. On these pioneer homes and the communities they formed have been built our Canadian way of life. Then, homes were the springboard from which a nation was built. Today they must become the springboard for building a new world.

During these last five years men and women have had something greater to fight for than ever before. Can that fighting spirit, which has given incentive, direction and purpose to so many people, be carried on after the cease fire is sounded? What would happen, if, for instance, it was put into fighting for sound homes and community life?

TIME BOMBS

If some of us really don't care what ideologies other nations take up, it may be that we really don't care about our own.

Voluntary order and agreement here at home are as necessary as obedience to military orders at the front.

The home front is a false front unless men are true to each other and to Canada's ideals.

We talk about reorganizing plans for peace. It is not quite as simple as that. We have got to remake people.

Most business men still plan for production. If they would plan for their people, production might take care of itself.

If you live entirely for yourself, your lifework is entirely too small.

Some folks who need a magnifying glass to see their neighbors' good points would find the real trouble if they used the looking glass at home.

5TH ARMY: THE ANZIO BRIDGEHEAD OFFENSIVE.

British and American Forces launched their successful offensive from the Anzio Bridgehead on May, 23rd, 1944. ing 15 villages. Since that day the R.C.H.A. has always made October 21 a regimental holiday subject of course to the exigencies of the service.

During the balmy days of peace the R.C.H.A. was devoted to training, conducting schools and its drivers and horses turned out for the annual training of the militia.

Mechanization commenced in 1930 and was completed by 1934 when the last of the riding troop disappeared.

Among many officers who served with the R.C.H.A. during this period were Lt.-Gen. H. D. G. Crear, C.B., D.S.O. and Lt.-Gen. G. G. Simonds C.B.E., D.S.O.

The R.C.H.A. was mobilized for overseas service August 8, 1939 and went overseas for the third time on December 10 of the same year with a Canadian Infantry Division under command of Lt.-Col. (now Maj. Gen.) J. H. Roberts, D.S.O., M.C. who had been a section commander in a battery in 1918.

The regiment took part in the expedition through Brest to Sable in June 1940, and on its return to England managed to rescue all its guns.

Since then it has taken part in the Sicilian and Italian campaigns.

Though completely mechanized its men are still proud to wear the shoulder flashes of the Royal Canadian Horse Artillery and retain the spirit of the "Gallop Guns" which they have inherited.

CANADA PACKERS LIMITED

REPORT TO SHAREHOLDERS

The seventeenth year of Canada Packers Limited closed March 30th, 1944. Both in respect of Dollar Sales and weight of product sold, the year established new records.

Sales were $206,155,937.74
Previous high (Fiscal 1943) $169,141,670.71
Increase over previous high 22%
Weight of product sold, was 1,582,932,568 lbs.
Previous high (Fiscal 1943) 1,328,616,840 lbs.
Increase over previous high 19%

Dollar sales were three times, and weight of product sold, twice, those of the last pre-war year.

Profit after taxes and depreciation was $2,187,586.76
Equivalent to 1.06% of Sales

From this was set aside for Wartime Inventory Reserve 500,000.00
Equivalent to 34% of Sales

Leaving Net Profit $1,687,586.76
Equivalent to 82%
i.e. 4/5 of 1% of Sales

Except that of the low depression year,—Fiscal 1932,—this is the smallest net profit in the history of the Company, in terms of percentage of sales.

Nevertheless, because of the record sales, the sum of the net profit was the highest but one in the Company's history.

One other record was established.

Income and Excess Profits Tax was $3,023,214.06

This was $600,000 above the previous high of Fiscal 1942.

Income and Excess Profits Taxes for the five war years have been $9,531,025.76

In each of the war years, a sum has been set aside out of profits for Wartime Inventory Reserve. The item this year is $500,000.00.

Several inquiries have been received as to the nature of these items.

By the Department of National Revenue these items are treated as profits, and upon them full taxes have been paid.

And they are profits in every respect except one, viz. that all or part of them are certain to be lost at some period following the end of the war.

During the war, live stock prices have advanced to levels which cannot be permanently maintained.

For example, present prices of cattle and hogs (on the Toronto market), compared to those of the last pre-war year are:—

	1939	1944
Good Steers (1,050 lbs. down)
live weight	$ 6.77	$11.70
B.1 Hogs—dressed weight	11.90	17.20

As prices advanced, greater than usual profits were made. But most of the excess has been paid to the Department of National Revenue as taxes. There is no complaint regarding this. In war time the Government must take the extra war profits.

However, when the decline comes in the post-war period, losses will be made, the counterpart of the extra war profits.

From this there will be no escape.

The Wartime Inventory Reserve is set up as a buffer against these anticipated losses.

The sums set aside for this reserve have been:

Fiscal 1940	$ 579,000.00
1941	380,000.00
1942	1,310,000.00
1943	650,000.00
1944	500,000.00

Total $3,419,000.00

Whether this total is too much or too little, no one at present can tell. But the following facts have a bearing:—

- (1) To convert this year's inventory (March 30, 1944) to the price basis of the last pre-war year (March 30th, 1939) would require a reserve of .. $6,600,000.00
- (2) In the deflation year 1920-21 following the last war, the four Companies which now comprise Canada Packers, made a combined loss on operations of $5,500,000.00

On January 2nd, 1944, the final payment was made upon the Collateral Trust Serial Debentures. The Common Shares are now the Company's only outstanding securities. This is an important event in the Company's history, and the occasion seems appropriate for carrying out a plan which the Directors have had in mind for several years, viz. to make possible a wider distribution of the Company's Shares.

To this end, Shareholders will be asked at the forthcoming Annual Meeting to approve a By-law to subdivide and reclassify the issued and outstanding 200,000 Shares of the Company.

Each Shareholder will receive with the notice of the meeting, a copy of the By-law which contains full particulars of the proposal.

The year under review is the fifth war year.

There seems good reason to hope that the end of the war in Europe may now be in sight. It is therefore an appropriate time to look back over the war period as it has affected the Live Stock Industry, (of which the Packing Industry is the marketing branch).

The outstanding wartime feature of the Live Stock Industry has been the phenomenal increase in production. The first word should be a sincere tribute to the Farmers of Canada.

When Germany overran Western Europe in the early months of 1940, one phase of the disaster was that Great Britain was deprived of important sources of food. In this respect the most serious loss was that two-thirds of her external Bacon supplies were cut off.

Canada was the only source from which those Bacon supplies could be replaced.

An urgent appeal was made to the Farmers of Canada, and the measure of their response is indicated in the following table:—

TABLE I

Prior to 1940, the heaviest shipments of Bacon to Great Britain in any one year had been 192,000,000 lbs.

Following the appeal of 1940, shipments have been as follows:

During 1940	344,000,000 lbs.
" 1941	460,000,000 "
" 1942	524,000,000 "
" 1944 (5 months estimated) ..	900,000,000 "
" 1943	560,000,000 "

This increase in exports of Bacon is all the more phenomenal, when it is remembered:—

- that record increases have occurred also in production of all other forms of live stock and live stock products,—Cattle, Sheep, Poultry, Cheese, Butter, Eggs;
- that these enormous increases have been achieved with a farm population reduced 26 per cent. (Labour Gazette, May 1944).

Apart from the Farmer's patriotic response, three factors have been important in bringing about these phenomenal increases in live stock production. They were:—

- (1) that for live stock and live stock products there has been an unlimited demand, whereas until recently cash outlets for grain have been restricted.
- (2) that throughout the war period there has been a substantial extra profit in marketing grains through the medium of live stock,—as against selling them in the cash market.
- (3) that throughout there has been the stimulation of advancing prices. The measure of this advance is seen in the following table, which sets up the average price per 100 lbs. (Toronto market) of cattle and hogs, for the period 1934 to 1944:—

TABLE II TORONTO MARKET

The combined effect of the increase in production, plus advance in price, is reflected in the following table (Dominion Bureau of Statistics):—

In the marketing of live stock, the Packing House is an essential link. For live stock as such cannot be consumed. The Producer sells his animals to the Packer, who processes them and markets the products. The Packer, in short, is the Farmer's marketing agent.

It follows that the operations of the Packing Industry are of vital interest to the Producer. Unfortunately, no complete Profit and Loss record exists for the whole Industry.*

In cases where information is lacking for the Industry as a whole, the records of Canada Packers will be used. These have been published in full, each year since the formation of the Company in 1927.

Because of its importance that of Canada Packers, for the year under review, is here reproduced in simple form.

The statement shows the distribution of each $100.00 of Sales. Out of each $100.00 of Sales, the following sums were paid:—

To Producers, for live stock ..	$83.60
To Suppliers	$3.08
To Employees	6.77
To Service Organizations ..	3.45
To Bondholders	.01
To Taxing Authorities	1.59

The above items were paid out to persons other than shareholders. They total $98.50

The remainder was retained by the Company for the benefit of Shareholders .. 1.50
Add income from investments

Gross Profit out of each $100.00 of sales

From this sum of $1.51 there was set aside:
For Depreciation

Remainder, Net Profit

* The Dominion Bureau of Statistics publishes an annual review "Slaughtering and Meat Packing."

This review contains much useful information, but includes no statement of profit of the Industry as a whole. Such a statement could easily be added, and the value of the report thereby greatly enhanced. Publication of total results need involve no disclosure of the results of individual firms.

This story of the year's operations is reduced to still simpler terms, if condensed and transposed as follows:—

TABLE VI

Packer's Selling Price	$100.00	A
minus Operating Expense $14.90		B
minus sum retained by Packer	1.50	C
	16.40
leaves a remainder which is paid to the Farmer for his live stock	$ 83.60	D
(For convenience in reference, these items are designated A, B, C, D.)

Sales from the processing of live stock comprise only about 60 per cent of the business of Canada Packers. Other Canadian farm products comprise a further 30 per cent.
In the calculation of Tables V and VI it is not feasible to segregate the percentage of the dollar paid for live stock only. The margin of error is small. The basis of the calculation is the same each year; so figures are comparable from year to year.

It is hoped that every Farmer who reads this report will carefully examine Table VI.

In it is condensed the 'economics' of the Live Stock Industry.

The Live Stock Industry is a joint operation between the Farmer who produces, and the Packer who processes and sells. Much discussion regarding the Industry seems to take it for granted that the interests of the Producer and the Packer are opposed. The fact is their interests are not opposed, but parallel.

As to the interest of the Producer, there can be do doubt. He wishes to get the highest possible return for his live stock,—in other words he wishes that Item D should be as high as possible.

The factors which bring this about are revealed in Table VI. They are:—

1. That Item A,—the total sum for which the products are sold,—should be as high as possible.

In this at least, the interests are parallel. For the Packer constantly strives to get the highest possible price for his products.

2. That Item B,—the Packer's operating expense,—should be as low as possible. In other words, that his efficiency should be as high as possible.

It is certain the Packer works constantly, in his own interest, to improve his efficiency.

And in this he is working equally in the interest of the Producer.

3. That Item C,—the sum retained by the Packer,—should be one which the Producer cannot challenge.

Here, on the surface, the interest of the Producer and the Packer may seem opposed.

And it is true that if the Packer receives more than he should, to that extent the Producer receives less than he should.

How much does the Packer receive?

No record is available for the total Industry. However, the results of Canada Packers have been published annually since the formation of the Company in 1927.

In the 17 years—
the highest Net Profit was 2.8% of Sales the lowest Net Profit was 7% of Sales average Net Profit for the 17 years was 1.4% of Sales

For the year under review, it has already been seen that Net Profit was .82%, i.e. 4/5 of 1%

Probably in no other major industry is the percentage of profit so small. And to the Producer, it is only the percentage which matters. The Producer is concerned with one question only. That is: how much does he get back out of each sales dollar?

As stated above, the profit of Canada Packers in the period 1927 to 1944, has been 1.4% of Sales Probably for the whole Industry the percentage of profit was less.

But suppose it were more.

An outside estimate would certainly be 2%

What would the benefit have been to Producers if, over this period of seventeen years, the Packing Industry had made no profit whatever?

The answer to this question is arrived at by a simple calculation.

In that seventeen years, total cash sales of live stock were (Dominion Bureau of Statistics) $3,403,000,000.

Average per year $200,000,000.

If a profit of 2% is assumed, it follows that the profit of the total Packing Industry has been 2% of 200 million dollars, i.e. $4,000,000. per year

So that, if the Packing Industry had made no profit whatever, the maximum benefit to Producers would have been $4,000,000. per year

The number of farms producing and selling live stock is approximately .. 500,000.

Therefore, if, in these seventeen years, the Packing Industry had made no profit whatever, and if all its profit had gone to Producers, the addition to Producers' income would have been $8.00 per farm, per year.

And if, as is more likely, the profit of the Industry did not exceed 1%, the advantage to Producers would have been $4.00 per farm, per year
Many Farmers will be astonished by this statement.

Over a period of many years, charges have been made from time to time:—

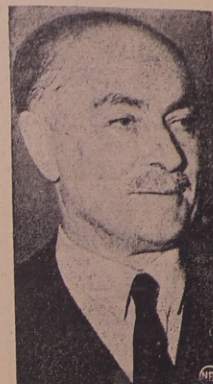

- (1) that the Packing Industry takes a heavy and unfair toll of profit on the Farmer's live stock.
- (2) that this is made possible by monopolistic conditions and practices.

It is not surprising if the effect of these statements has been to create in the Farmer's mind, a feeling of uneasiness.
In regard to Item 1,—a semblance of support for the charge is found in the amount of the profits of the larger companies. Those of Canada Packers are generally the target. In the year now being reviewed, the profits of Canada Packers were $1,687,000.
To the individual Farmer, who compares it with his own profit, this no doubt seems a stupendous sum.
In relation to the total sales, however, it is a very small sum.
Those sales were $206,000,000.

If Sales had been two million instead of two hundred million dollars, the relative profit, at the same percentage would have been $16,870

Mrs. L. Abbott, of Sarnia, returned home on Tuesday after spending the past week at the home of her friend, Mrs. Thomas Merry, Mill Street.

PREPARATIONS BEING MADE FOR VICTORY LOAN

Clearing the decks in preparation for the Seventh Victory Loan campaign which will get under way across Canada on October 23rd, headquarters of the county Victory Loan organization has again been set up in the old Standard Bank building at the corner of Front and Bridge Streets, Belleville. As yet little organizational work has been done in the county with the chairman of the county campaign still to be chosen. It is expected, however, that Mr. J. Trudeau, chairman for the Sixth Victory Loan last spring, will soon call a meeting for the purpose of naming the various committee heads. Organizers for the county, Mr. Clarke Kinnear and Mr. Don Lee and Mr. Ted Woolley are expected to begin organizational work early this week.

RELATIVES WILL MEET RETURNING VETERANS AT HOSPITAL AND DEPOT

Under new arrangements finalized at Military District No. 3 Headquarters, Kingston relatives, who have been informed when a member of their family is returning from overseas, are invited to go directly to No. 3 District Depot, Fort Frontenac, instead of to the Outer Station, two miles north of the city.

At the District Depot, relatives and returning soldiers will be given refreshments, and the same system will prevail at Kingston Military Hospital.

All relatives, who have been notified that they have a member of their family returning on a train, are asked to co-operate with military and civil authorities by going directly to No. 3 District Depot at Fort Frontenac. This will facilitate plans as drawn up through the co-operation of city officials and a special district army committee.

BREVITIES

EVENTS AND TOPICS OF THE WEEK IN TABLOID

Deseronto was well represented at the Napanee Fair being held the first three days of this week.

Duck hunting season really came in with a bang on Monday morning as residents were awakened early by the shooting and some report good luck already.

The Deseronto High School opened for the fall term on Monday morning with Principal J. B. Hough in charge. There is one new teacher on the staff, Miss Phyllis Hough, Napanee. Mrs. M. Beavage and Miss K. Swinton are here for another year.

Tomatoes are still coming in but it is expected this week will finish them. The crop has been twice that of last year. Canning of pumpkin will not take long this year as very few were grown. It is expected that pork and beans will be canned here this fall at the local factory.

Picking Milkweed

Public School pupils have been asked by the government to assist in the picking of milkweed pods to be used in the making of life jackets to take the place of Kapok which we are unable to get due to the war on Japan.

Several of the boys around have already filled many bags and if you see them with orange coloured bags striking off for the country you will know what they are after.

Milkweed pods in peacetime were considered weeds and grew where nothing else would.

The pupils will receive 20 cents a bag for the pods when properly dried. Bags may be secured from Principal R. C. Bowen or Agriculture Representative.

ST. MARK'S GUILD

A very successful Afternoon Tea was held at the home of Mrs. T. Gault Prince Street, last week and was under the auspices of the Ladies' Guild of St. Mark's Church.

The guests were welcomed by the hostess and the President of the Society, Mrs. F. P. Lawrence, who also invited them to the pretty tea-room. Mrs. T. Naylor presided at the Tea-table centred with a yellow calendula and was assisted in serving by Mrs. D. English, Mrs. E. Robinson, Mrs. Beavage and Mrs. N. Rutledge.

Beautiful daffodils of various hues decorated the living room.

Catholic Women's League

The Regular Monthly Meeting of the Deseronto sub-division of the Catholic Women's League, was held at the home of the President, Miss Nora Fox, on Tuesday, September 19th, at 8 p.m. with a good attendance of the members present.

The President opened the meeting with prayer for the Armed Forces.

After the Roll Call the minutes of the previous meeting were read and adopted and the Treasurer's Report read which showed a good balance on the books.

The Diocesan per capita tax and the budget tax were authorized paid.

Letters were read from some of the boys overseas who had received cigarettes from the League.

Mrs. C. J. Brennan was appointed alternate delegate for the Diocesan Convention to be held in Perth early in October and nominations were held for the executive to be elected at the Diocesan Convention.

Rev. Father Martin was present and addressed the members after which he stated the Y.M.C.A. Convenor at the Camp had asked if the League would help with Bingo at the Camp once a week to which the members agreed.

It was decided to have a Card Party at the Hall on October 5th. Mrs. E. M. Roach was appointed Convenor and arrangements were made for the party.

The members present consented to do some work at the Parish Hall and a Rummage Sale was discussed, details to be left until later.

The meeting then adjourned with a prayer by Rev. Father Martin for deceased members.

FIRST SEASONAL FROST BLACKENS GARDEN PRODUCE

Tomato, cucumber and pumpkin vines in the Bay of Quinte district were blackened over the week-end as this district was visited for the first time this season by frost. First appearance of frost was on Friday night with farmers reporting no extensive damage, but on Saturday and Sunday nights the thermometer dropped lower to blacken green vines in the low-lying areas.

Officials were unable to say what damage would be caused to the tomato crop. They were quite certain, however, that tomatoes in low areas would be spoiled by the frost. Approximately 65 per cent of the tomatoes have now been brought in to the canning factories, it was estimated, with the crop having turned out better than was expected earlier in the season.

Corn in the Bay of Quinte area is now practically all cut with silo filling virtually completed.

Belleville Presbyterian Executive Meeting

An executive meeting and Worker's Conference of Belleville Presbyterian was held in Bridge Street United Church on Tuesday, September 19th, with fifteen members of the executive and several presidents of auxiliaries in attendance.

A beautiful basket of gladioli graced the piano and the president, Mrs. Stanley Spafford, presided over the two sessions.

The morning worship was taken by Mrs. Earl Bailey using the theme "Giving and receiving" with Mrs. J. N. Lovelace at the piano.

Definite plans for the fall Rallies are not complete but they will be held the second or third week of October at Ivanhoe, Foxboro and Napanee.

Rev. Fred Lane, Home Mission Secretary, told of the work of his department in the North country.

Several items of special interest from the nineteenth annual report of the W.M.S. activities of the Dominion of Canada were presented and all were urged to read the valuable information found in its pages. There are 2,483 auxiliaries with a membership of 62,335 W.M.S. women and the total membership of all missionary organizations is 165,690, of this Belleville Presbyterian has 76 auxiliaries and 2069 membership.

Each officer answered Roll Call with a statement of her duties and problems.

The treasurer, Mrs. H. A. Bunt, said the finances were $6188.42 for the first six months. A special increase is being asked from all auxiliaries.

The ladies of Bridge Street served an appetizing dinner which all enjoyed.

Mrs. Thomas Wilson based the afternoon worship on "Stewardship of All of Life."

The various secretaries brought messages from their departments which included post war plans, enrolling all missionary members for Temperance, the advisability of ordering magazines early, sending in interesting material to the press secretary for publication in the monthly, Fall C.G.I.T. Rallies, Japanese Christian in Canada and the great need for candidates.

W. M. S. Meets

The regular monthly meeting of the W.M.S. of the Church of the Redeemer was held at the home of the President, Miss Warren, who opened the meeting with hymn and prayer.

Following the reading of the minutes by Mrs. James Whitton the financial report was given by the Treasurer, Mrs. I. Allum.

The president reported that the annual bazaar of deaconesses supplies had been sent to Kingston and that the Thankoffering meeting will be held on the 13th of October.

After the singing of a hymn Mrs. Allum led in prayer and Mrs. Topping and Mrs. Allum read passages of scripture and commentary on them from the book "Every Day".

The president then gave an interesting reading entitled "What does a Deaconess do," giving an idea of the duties expected of her.

The Lord's Prayer in unison closed the meeting after which the hostess served refreshments.

The road to the airport is under repair at present. The road is being straightened, widened and it is expected a hard surface will be placed on top. This is indeed good news for those who have to travel the road often.

Canada Sending Clothing To France

Twenty tons of Canadian made clothing will be sent for relief of French children in the liberated areas of France, it was learned at Red Cross headquarters in Toronto last week. The shipment is vanguard of 110 tons of clothing, medical supplies and food being shipped to Normandy by various organizations and is a gift of the Canadian Red Cross.

Maj. Gen. C. B. Price, overseas commissioner of the Canadian Red Cross Society, reported in a cable to the Red Cross that the shipment includes 1,000 layettes, 500 boys' kits, and 500 girls' kits. The layettes contain everything from blankets to diapers.

Canadians.. Wake Up!

Recent surveys show that not one Canadian in ten knows what State Socialism really is. These surveys also show that the more misinformed the people are, the more they are in favor of what they think State Socialism is. Every Canadian should get posted on this subject at once, because you will be called upon to vote for or against it in the coming general election. Your verdict on this issue will decide the destiny of Canada. That's no small matter.

The Society for Individual Freedom has been organized for the purpose of acquainting the people of Canada with the true significance and ultimate consequences of State Socialism.

State Socialism would take from you every last vestige of your liberty.

State Socialism Spells 'Dictatorship'

The Society has absolutely no connection with any political party, nor is it sponsored by any one group or class. It represents private citizens from every walk of life.

WHAT THEY WANT THEIR SCHOOL TO BE

The school bell is ringing once again—a reminder of the high hopes we have pinned on education. From way back in our country—and from now on in the countries of war-torn Europe—we think of what the school can make of its children. Few, however, ever turn the cart around and think of what our children can make of their school.

Here is a letter written by officers of a high school student council in one of our large cities. It is addressed to their school principal:

What We Want Our School to be Next Term

1. A school with one supreme aim—to set a pattern of honesty, unselfishness and unity for the nation.
2. Students thankful for the chance to learn. Perfection in the classroom beside perfection on the football field.
3. Students who have changed a "get" spirit to a "give" spirit, who give their best wherever they are and love their school enough to want nothing but the best for it.
4. Students who know what is right and do it.
5. Teachers who are not blinded by what students can't do, but will inspire them to do what they can and do it well.
6. Teachers who realize that they are training the state-manship of tomorrow, and that the character they give the students today will mould the future of the world.

If youngsters everywhere thought as much and cared as much about their school as this, what would happen to the juvenile delinquency, divorce and crime rates? What a smile it would bring to the face of the returning soldier. What new hope it could give to the bomb-shattered classrooms of Europe.

As one of these same youngsters put it, "We may be too young to fight overseas but, golly, there's plenty to fight for right here at home!"

ABOUT THE THINGS YOU BUY IN WARTIME...

"I think it can be safely said that the sugar supply position is the most difficult situation we have to face today in any rationed commodity. You can't get all you want in wartime. If one pound will do, don't buy two."

Chorson

The sugar situation is NOT sweet

FOUR-FIFTHS OF THE SUGAR CANADA CONSUMES HAS TO BE IMPORTED

This map shows where Canada, Great Britain and the United States got their sugar in the good old days of peace. Our three countries take practically all the exportable sugar from these major sugar-exporting areas.

But supplies have either been cut off by enemy occupation of the country—as in the case of Java and the Philippines, or their production radically reduced by shortage of workers, as in the case of Hawaii, Porto Rico, Australia, Trinidad, Fiji.

ROLLING ON SUGAR

The war has brought some unusual demands on the United Nations' sugar pool. Vast quantities have been taken for making industrial alcohol used in the manufacture of synthetic rubber (tires, etc.) as well as T.N.T. and smokeless powder. For instance, the explosive to fill five 16-inch shells requires as much sugar as is produced on an acre of the finest sugar land. This year Cuban sugar alone used for making industrial alcohol will equal Canada's normal sugar imports for more than two years.

DO WE NEED MORE SUGAR?

A century ago the whole world didn't consume as much sugar as Canada does today. Our sweet tooth has been acquired in quite recent times. Sugar rates high for its energy value, but starchy food is a good substitute.

THE SUPPLY IS SHARED

All sugar supplies are pooled and under the control of the Combined Food Board of the United Nations, which allots supplies to Canada, United States and Great Britain on a uniform basis.

SUGAR BANK

At the time of "Pearl Harbour" the United Nations had a reserve stock-pile of about 3 million tons, but for the last 3 years we've been using more than has been produced—and dipping heavily into "reserve." Liberated nations will have to dip in too. Extra good crops could improve the situation, but greatly increased supplies are not in sight. If current consumption keeps up, we could be very short of sugar next year. We must do the utmost to conserve our supplies.

WE'RE LIVING ON OUR SUGAR CAPITAL

RATIONING WAS STARTED BECAUSE OF SHORTAGE OF SHIPS. IT MUST BE CONTINUED BECAUSE WORLD STOCKS ARE DEFICIENT

CHAPTER V

Peggy found one of William's grandsons down by the gate waiting to open it for her. His little calico shirt tails flapped in the breeze above the patched pants that had once belonged to an older brother. His white teeth in their black setting shone in the sunlight. She waved the light whip towards him as she drove through the gates.

Once on the highway Peggy drew a long breath and settled down to the business of thinking. "That's what I get for borrowing things," she muttered, remembering how she had always been taught never to borrow from anyone.

There was only one thing to do. Stop at Carver's jewelry store and see if the ring could be straightened. She had no idea how long it would take. But she would go there immediately. She had heard that since young Jim Carver had come home from college and gone into business with his father they had branched out considerably in the jewelry business. Perhaps that would include being able to straighten a platinum ring.

In spite of the many cars in Marshville, no one ever thought it strange to see Peggy Horton in the old pony cart. She had driven it ever since anyone could remember seeing her about, and no one connected a Horton with anything but horses. There were still a few horse rails about the old square in the center of which stood a fountain that had served as a drinking fountain for the horses of former days. Now it was only a source of cooling beauty. Stores, bank, post office, and the old wooden two-story hotel surrounded the square on all four sides, the streets entering from the corners.

Peggy, stopping before the hitching post that was the closest to Carver's, jumped out and tied Pat, exchanging greetings with one or two people as she did so. Then walking rapidly, she entered the store.

She was glad to see that Jim Carver was not there. He would probably have asked a lot of questions. Old Mr. Carver, with his bald head bent closely over a book, was seated alone at the back of the store.

"Why, hello, Miss Peggy," he called, coming forward to greet her, after carefully marking his.

JESUS' PROGRAM FOR MEETING LIFE'S PROBLEMS

Matthew 4:1-11; Luke 4:34-35;
Luke 4:16-30.

PRINTED TEXT, Matthew
4:1-4; 6:31-34; Luke 4:16-21.

GOLDEN TEXT.—Man shall not live by bread alone, but by every word that proceedeth out of the mouth of God. Matthew 4:4.

Devotional Reading: Hebrews 2:10-18.

Memory Verse: For thou, Jehovah, hast made me glad. Psalm 92:4.

Triumph Over Temptation

"Then was Jesus led up of the spirit into the wilderness to be tempted of the devil . . . but by every word that proceedeth out of the mouth of God." The principle involved in Christ's reply was that He would work no miracle to satisfy His own will. In self-denial He would follow God, submitting to His will, and trusting that His mighty power would help in the time of need in the way that His wisdom might see fit.

God's Outward Blessing

"Be not therefore anxious, saying, What shall we eat? . . . and all these things shall be added unto you." Our Lord says that if men will really seek the kingdom of God and his righteousness all these material things, which the heathen nations seek exclusively and which are necessary for life, will be added. As a rule, God's outward blessing goes with the inward; and he who by patient industry has honestly sought his daily bread has found it.

Please God To-Day

"Be not therefore anxious for the morrow: for the morrow will be anxious for itself. Sufficient unto the day is the evil thereof." Christ says 'to-morrow and all its wants will be provided for you by your heavenly Father; therefore think of it without anxiety and try to do right and please God to-day.

Jesus In Nazareth

"And he came to Nazareth, where he had been brought up . . . to set at liberty—them that are bruised." From the word here translated 'anointed' comes our English word 'Christ' which means literally 'the Anointed One', and thus the 'Sent One'.

The Acceptable Year

"To proclaim the acceptable year of the Lord." This was the time when men—sinners broken, ruined, lawless, hopeless men—would be acceptable to God if they would believe in Christ and accept His way of grace. And the acceptable year of the Lord if not ended. Any man in the world to-day will be accepted of God if he will take Christ for his Saviour and allow God to cleanse him from sin.

The Scripture Fulfilled
"And he closed the book, and gave it back to the attendant, and sat down: and the eyes of all in the synagogue were fastened on him. And he began to say unto them, To-day has this scripture been fulfilled in your ears."

Jesus quietly announced that the prediction of the prophet Isaiah was that day fulfilled in Him before their very eyes. The people doubted that this man, a carpenter's son, is the one of whom the prophet spoke. But Jesus reveals his profound knowledge of what they were going to do and how they would reject Him, and He would go on to those who would accept Him. And Jesus immediately took Himself out of their midst for His time had not yet come.

Germans Destroy Russian Theatres

Before the war the Rostov Region had nine drama theatres and many cinemas attended annually by 145,000 workers, collective farmers, students and others.

The magnificent theatre in Rostov dedicated to Maxim Gorky had a seating capacity of 2,000 and the largest stage in the Soviet Union.

With pedantic consistency and bestial brutality the Germans attempted to destroy every institution of Russian culture and science. After the Nazis were routed it was found that of the nine theatres in the Rostov Re-

RELIGIOUS TEXTBOOKS BEING DISTRIBUTED

The Ontario Department of Education last week started distributing teacher's guide and textbooks on religious education in grades one of public schools throughout the province.

These textbooks will be used by the teachers in conjunction with the manuals recently distributed. Guides for Grade two and upwards, are expected to be ready within the next few months.

The grade one guide is entitled "The Friend of Little Children" and is to be regarded as provisional and experimental.

The Department, it is stated is keeping a close watch on the new course of religious study in the public schools and after three weeks' experience there has been little reaction either for or against from the teachers and the public.

We can be fired by our work even while we're frozen in a job.

FEW APPEALS MADE FOR APPLE PICKERS

Although the Bay of Quinte district is well known as an apple producing area and farm labor has been short all summer, farmers this season are having little difficulty in finding sufficient workers to pick their apples. At least this would appear the case considering the few appeals which have been made to Selective Service officials in Belleville. Very few inquiries have been made thus far for apple pickers by farmers, it was stated this week by Mr. H. H. Reed of the Selective Service.

Voluntary Blood Donor Service

The following letter was received from the Voluntary Blood Donor Service headquarters of Kingston, by Gordan Walker, chairman of the Voluntary Blood Donor Service here.

Dear Mr. Walker:

At a recent meeting of the Canadian Red Cross Society, the National Committee of Voluntary Blood Donor Clinics made a very definite request that every effort be put forth to not only maintain the supply of Blood Plasma, but would welcome any increase that could be obtained throughout the Dominion. The findings of this committee were to the effect, that stocks of Plasma were completely depleted because of the very heavy drain on supplies due to activity on all fronts and the many robot bomb casualties. The British Isles are supplying whole blood daily, being flown to France, and daily planes from United States are supplying whole blood as well to these fronts. We are requested to get every ounce we can as quickly as possible.

May I congratulate you and your various committees for the splendid co-operation you have given us in the past, and to make a further request, that we double our past efforts.

Victory is near, but the price will be high for our armed forces, but through your continued effort many lives of our loved ones may be saved.

Sincerely

James L. Taber

NAPANEE FARMER HELD ON CHARGE OF EXTORTION

Held on a charge of extortion, Chauncey Oliver, 27-year-old Napanee farmer, was lodged in the Napanee jail Monday and held without bail. Police officials alleged Oliver sent threatening notes to Geo. J. Tustin, M.P., for Prince Edward-Lennox, demanding sums amounting to over $5,000. Chief Thos. Moore, of Napanee, revealed today. Mr. Tustin had first received extortion notes as early as last March, but it was not until recently any particular attention was paid to the demands.

Provincial Police assisted in the arrest of Oliver when Constables Caruthers of District Headquarters in Belleville and Suggett of Kingston, recently placed a decoy parcel and immediately placed him under arrest.

Yesterday Oliver appeared before Magistrate J. P. Garvin and was remanded in custody until October 12. Inspector Harry Storey, of District No. 8 O.P.P., headquarters Belleville, assisted Chief Moore of Napanee in the solving of the matter, that had been in the police hands for some weeks during which time the case was thoroughly studied before the decoy parcel was finally placed in the suggested area.

FEDERAL ELECTION MAY BE DELAYED

Persons in Ottawa, who a few weeks back were confidently forecasting a Federal general election this year, now consider that the developments on the western front and Prime Minister Churchill's warning in London on Thursday that the war against Germany may extend several months into 1945 have wiped out any prospect of a vote that soon.

March now is being talked about as the likely election month. While Prime Minister MacKenzie King in his speech on the 25th anniversary of his selection as national leader, August 7, made it clear he did not desire a Federal election in the heat of the war in Europe, neither did he desire parliament to extend its life, which automatically ends next spring.

TAKING A LEAF FROM NAZIS' BOOK

By their sensational breakthrough near Sedan, Germans in 1940 demonstrated to the world the uselessness of "wall" fortifications such as France's vaunted Maginot Line. They simply flanked it with an end run and poured down behind the line, leaving the French looking pretty silly, with their big guns all pointed the wrong way. Only ones who didn't seem to learn the lesson were the Germans themselves, who put their faith in the Siegfried Line and the Rhine fortifications, only to have the Allies flank them near Kleve, and get into position for an end run drive behind the fortified lines into the great Ruhr Valley industrial area. Map above shows similarity of German operation against Maginot Line and how Allies worked same trick on them.

Sapphires and Diamonds

CHAPTER VI

She turned and reached for the screen door but the young man stepping quickly forward held it open for her, and she brushed past him with head erect. To her dismay he followed her. Mr. Carver, behind a small glass window in the front of the store where he repaired watches, looked up as they entered.

"Back already?" he asked. "Well, I've got it all fixed for you." He glanced at the stranger who stood a little beyond Peggy. "Want something?" he asked.

Peggy's heart was racing. What would the idiot say?

"I broke the crystal in my watch and wondered if you would fix it for me," was the surprising reply.

In spite of herself Peggy turned her head. Sure enough he held the watch in his hand and the crystal was cracked. Also he was smiling directly at Peggy. She was furious.

"Well, I'll be with you in just a minute," Mr. Carver told him. "Look at this," he added, turning to Peggy again. "I was just comparing that stone in the ring with one I have. Come around here and see it," motioning to her to come behind the counter.

On the table before him on a small piece of tissue paper lay a square-cut unset diamond.

"Those two stones are just a match for each other," he continued. "I thought Jim had lost his senses when he bought that stone. They don't look like diamonds to me, cut that way. But since I saw this ring I know how they can look. I drew off the design here." He chuckled as he showed her a sketch on a sheet of paper. "You didn't know I was such an artist, did you? Do you reckon it would be all right for me to copy this ring?" he asked wistfully.

"I think that would be all right," Peggy answered. Mr. Carver seemed so anxious to do it and Harry would never know. Taking the ring which he carefully wrapped in tissue paper, she dropped it into her bag. "Thank you so much, Mr. Carver. How much do I owe you?"

"Oh, nothing at all, nothing at all. Thank you for bringing it in and letting me get that design. Remember me to your grandmother," he called after her.

With a nasty "Thank you," Peggy hurried out without a glance at the other occupant of the store.

She found that she was still upset over her tilt with this stranger. She realized that by turning her head to see if he were telling the truth about the watch the score between them had been evened, and unconsciously she wished for a "next time" so that she could put the young man in his place.

Untying Pat she drove quickly to the railroad station. Before she alighted from the pony cart she opened her bag, and after looking quickly about her to see that no one was watching, unwrapped the small package and slipped the ring on her engagement finger.

The train whistled in the distance and Pat pricked up his ears. Not that Pat minded trains or automobiles, but he had no intention of letting people think that he was growing old and uninterested in things.

"You'd stand just as well if I didn't hitch you, so old fraud, but I reckon you'd be insulted, wouldn't you?" Giving him a friendly pat she tied the reins to a hitching post and hurried around the station.

She scanned each passing coach with eyes bright with excitement. At last she caught sight of the platinum blonde head of Nancy under a black hat. She was standing in the aisle of one of the cars. Nancy leaned over to wave through a window and waving in reply Peggy ran to the foot of the steps. The two girls stopped for an enthusiastic greeting. The conductor touched Peggy on the arm. They must move, someone else was getting off. Peggy glanced up, then recognizing the other passenger she cried out in amazement.

TABLE TALKS

Flavorful Meals

Inexpensive cuts of meats can be made tender by several methods.

Round steak can be pounded with a small hammer or mallet to break down the tissues, then braised with liquids and seasonings to savory goodness. Stewing is another good method for cooking this type of meat. Adding tomato juice, spices, mushroom soup and other liquids gives peak flavor.

Here are recipes which may be made with utility beef, but which will have just as much flavor as the more expensive cuts:

Swiss Steak
Round or Arm steak, cut 2 inches thick
Flour
Salt and pepper
1 onion, thinly sliced
2 tablespoons lard
2 cups tomatoes
1 carrot, diced
½ cup corn
1 small green pepper, sliced
½ cup water

Mix flour, salt and pepper; pound into steak. Brown steak in lard. Add vegetables and water. Cover pan and cook in slow oven (300 degrees) for 2½ hours. Add more water if needed. Serve with vegetables poured over steak.

Serves 6.

Short Ribs With Vegetables
3 pounds short ribs of beef
3 teaspoons salt
2 tablespoons pepper
2 tablespoons lard
8 medium-sized potatoes
8 small onions
4 parsnips
2 carrots

Wipe meat with damp cloth, sprinkle with salt and pepper and brown in hot fat. Add water, cover and allow to simmer an hour. Prepare vegetables. Add whole potatoes, onions, parsnips and carrots cut in half. Season vegetables, cover and continue cooking until vegetables are tender. Serve meat on platter garnished with vegetables.

Serves 6.

"Peggy!" the other girl cried. "Why, little Peggy, you've grown up! How marvelous that you should be here. I didn't write or wire that I was coming because I wanted to surprise you."

"Well, you certainly did," Peggy replied tremulously. "Oh, Nancy, I'm sorry. This is my sister, Maxine. You know, Maxine Trueheart."

"Not to you all, darling. I'm still Maxine Horton when I'm home." Nancy's blue eyes were wide with excitement. She was going to visit in the same house with the famous Maxine Trueheart. She would get her autograph and wouldn't she have a lot to tell when she returned home!

Miss Trueheart was lovely, Nancy thought, as she watched Maxine searching for her trunk check. She did look something like Peggy, she admitted reluctantly. The same wide brown eyes, the same chestnut colored hair. But Maxine's was short and wavy in the same set waves as her own. And Maxine's mouth was more beautiful than Peggy's. Perhaps one reason for that was that Maxine used lipstick—not much, Nancy noticed, and rubbed a little from her own over-red lips. Peggy's mouth was minus any make-up.

Zoology Lesson

The Australian soldier was telling the United States nurse all about it.

"Why, look at the kangaroo," said he, "the only animal in the world from whose hide you can cut a fur coat in one piece with a built-in-pocket."

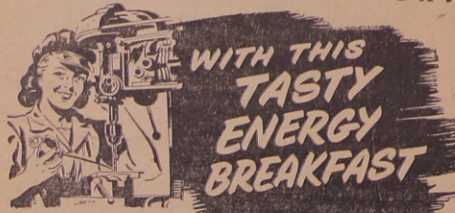

"But," she asked, "suppose you wanted two pockets?"

"Oh, Sister," said he, reproachfully, "Surely you've heard of twins!"

Nothing "Sacred" But German Soil

That the Germans should dare today to speak of "holy" German soil when they've desecrated the soil of almost every country in Europe is something that has infuriated the Russian soldiers more perhaps than anything else.

CHRONICLES of GINGER FARM

By Gwendoline P. Clarke

Will you sit and visit with me a while? We shall be quite comfortable. There is a nice wood fire blazing cheerily in the open grate. There now, you sit in this big red upholstered chair and I will take the other. It is a comfortable old chair, isn't it? It came from England, you know, a sort of family heirloom. So many times I have sat in that chair by just such another fire as we are sitting by tonight, only then it was in a home in a small English village—Partner's home, to be exact. Now the chair is here . . . but the old fireplace, and the house to which it belonged—what has happened to it? The old folks have long since gone. . . the house may have been blitzed. But we have our memories—even a blitz cannot reduce memories to rubble.

You know it is a funny thing about those Old Country fire places. Visitors say you get your face roasted while your back stays chilled to the bone. I suppose it is true, and yet, strangely enough, I never remember suffering with the cold at home. Maybe it was because we wore warmer, heavier clothing than in Canada—I used to wear hand-knitted woollen stockings in winter. Or it may be that since we never knew any greater comfort we never missed it. I might have a different story to tell were I to visit England now.

Don't you love our Canadian autumn? The crisp, frosty morning air is such a welcome change after the damp heat of the long summer days. The changing colours . . . the return of the noisy but gorgeous jays . . . the feeling of completion—of thankfulness that "all is safely gathered in".

Already weather prophets are warning us what to expect—an early fall and a hard winter. Well we'll worry about that when the time comes. In the meantime there is work to do—both at home and abroad. Our W. I. has begun its fall activities, last week we were quilting—ready for the Fall.

And there are twenty-one ditty bags to fill. If we could only be around to see just one of those bags being opened! Or a quilt—if we could follow one quilt to its destination. To an air-raided shelter, or maybe one that was handed out to some homeless soul who might need it to wrap around an aged mother suffering from a nervous chill.

A Red Cross worker told me the other day so many people are willing to sew or knit for the services but when it comes to work for the civilians they are just not interested.

Ye gods!—it doesn't seem possible. After all we have heard, and read—to say nothing of what we see on the screen is it possible that even yet we have such a lack of understanding; of sympathy? We are supposed to be fighting a common enemy—is it then still necessary to ask—"Am I my brother's keeper?"

Stick-In-The-Mud

The army trucks built by the British automotive industry are claimed to have a running life several times longer than the best German trucks, says the Montreal Gazette.

Testimony to the truth of this statement came from the Nazis. A regimental order of the German 156th Motorized Infantry fell into Allied hands.

It read: "For this reconnaissance, as indeed for every other desert action, only captured British trucks are to be employed, since German trucks stick in the mud too often."

The estimated population of the United States as of July 1, 1943, was 133,942,410 persons, an increase of over 2,000,000 since 1940.

FIRE PREVENTION WEEK—OCTOBER 8-14

Once again by Royal Proclamation the week of October 8-14 has been set aside as Fire Prevention Week for the purpose of drawing our attention to the needless waste of human lives and property caused by fire. The proclamation states that during the past ten years four hundred and seventy thousand fires have destroyed Canadian property to the extent of more than two hundred and sixty-four million dollars and that during the same period two thousand eight hundred and sixty-nine persons have lost their lives through fire and it is estimated that at least ten thousand others have been seriously injured as the result of fire.

This week every Canadian citizen will be exhorted by the press, by speakers over the radio, by movies and by other means to use every care with fire, not only during Fire Prevention Week but every week in the year. Let him take this advice to heart so that the needless tragedies of the past may be avoided and that Canada in the post-war era may emerge as a country safe from fire.

'Petite Bebe'

I told you 'bout my Grammere—a little while ago,
How I love her dearly—an she, me take in tow.
Now a different story—I have for you today,
It is about my Bebe—of him too much I say.
But he is so cunning—that is the word I think,
He love to scare his Mama—an then he never blink.
Ma foi he have such big eyes—they look like saucers yes?
When they look at you that way—you say, "Mon Dieu He Bles."

All the day his little feet—go pit a pat around,
Sa priste he never seem to tire—when he cover ground.
He run upstairs an down stairs—also inside an out,
He running in his sleep I think—around an round about.
Sometimes he have a tumble—then to Mama, he go,
He try to tell her all at once—when his hurt he show.
Then she kiss him on it—no matter where it is,
Because he is all part of her— and she is fill' with bliss.
When he sleep in bed at night—we hold our breath sometime,
We are afraid the Angels come—ma foi, we almost pine.
An then we kneel an pray by him—we are afraid to touch,
He look just like L'Enfant JESU—we love him very much.

Waste Paper Sought

250 tons of wastepaper will be the objective of a salvage drive to be held in the Bay of Quinte District on October 10th it was announced by E. Wray VanLoven, Provincial Organizer of Salvage Campaigns for National War Services, who emphasized the importance of salvage, particularly at this time due to the increased need of containers for war equipment since the invasion.

With the shortage of paper becoming more acute, people must not relax their efforts with the date of Victory nearing, but must continue to furnish necessary material for conversion to war equipment, particularly wastepaper, he stated.

In urging the support of all citizens in its efforts to secure the quota set by the Government, Mr. VanLoven said: "We are simply asking the citizens to make a survey of their attics, cellars and sheds and dig out all the wastepaper they have, bundle it in neat parcels and place them on the curb facing their residences on the date set for the drive in this district."

Into One Pocket—Sure!
but OUT of the other

Each of us is both consumer and producer.

As a producer each of us would like to get MORE money for our goods or services.

As a consumer each of us wants the costs of living kept down.

But we can't have it both ways.

As long as goods are scarce and money plentiful, prices have to be controlled or they'd jump sky high.

If prices are to be kept down, then costs of production including salaries, wages and raw materials must also be controlled.

One Person Can Start It!

When any one of us—

- offers to pay more than legal prices;
- asks higher returns for his services;
- asks higher prices for his goods.

He helps start a chain that forces every one else to do the same and nobody is better off.

THIS IS ONE OF A SERIES ISSUED BY THE GOVERNMENT OF CANADA TO EMPHASIZE THE IMPORTANCE OF PREVENTING FURTHER RISE IN THE COST OF LIVING NOW, AND DEFLATION LATER.

Announcement of change in Spirits Ration

EFFECTIVE OCTOBER 2nd, 1944

COMMENCING October 2nd, 1944, and until further notice, every individual permit holder will be permitted to purchase monthly one bottle of spirits (25 or 26 ounces) or two half bottles as available.

As a result of the restrictions imposed by the Dominion Government under the Wartime Alcoholic Beverages Order P.C.11374, it was necessary to reduce the monthly ration of spirits to 13 ounces to assure adequate supplies of spirits until the end of the year. In increasing the ration it should be explained to the public that unless the restrictions imposed by the Dominion Government are removed a similar restriction will be necessary again next year, although the Board, except for the Dominion Restriction, would be able to make available for distribution stocks of spirits in excess of the present ration.

In any event, however, the ration becoming effective on October 2nd can be maintained throughout the winter months, so it is hoped that the public will co-operate by not buying in excess of actual requirements.

Thrift...

IS PRACTICAL PATRIOTISM

How many ways can you save
.....to LEND TO CANADA?

 In the homes, all over Canada, loyal, patriotic women are discovering new ways to economize . . . new ways to save money to lend to their country. A little saved here and a little saved there provides money to lend to Canada to help pay for the war. Small sums from millions of Canadians mount to billions when totalled up.

The amount that you may lend to your country may seem a small sum to you, but pennies make dimes and dimes make dollars, and Canada needs every single dollar that every Canadian can save and lend. Canada's need for borrowing is greater now than ever before. Every Canadian must lend, and lend more than before. Money you save and invest in Victory Bonds will benefit you in a personal way, too. You will have cash, when the war is over, to buy things you want for your home . . . things you are doing without now . . . cash to pay on a new home . . . to pay on a new car.

WORTH WHILE Wasn't it?

● Citizens of Ontario have responded splendidly in support of necessary restrictions in the use of electricity. Inconvenience from "dim out" conditions, darkened store windows and partly lighted streets have been patriotically accepted in order to save power for the tools of victory. The additional voluntary savings of power by Ontario people also contributed substantially to the victories in Europe.

Your Hydro, which had the responsibility of carrying out the orders of the Dominion Power Controller in Ontario, is grateful for the co-operation of Hydro users.

One trying phase of the war is passing. Now, by conserving and concentrating our efforts for final victory, we may look forward with confidence to an early day when abundant power will be available for peacetime use. The added strength that we have built for war can then be used to bring greater light and safety to more Ontario streets and homes, and take over innumerable tasks on farms, in our homes, and industries.

Plan now to take full advantage, after victory, of the added leisure, convenience and safety that abundant electricity can bring to you.

UNRRA—What It Is, What It Does

An Explanation by the Montreal Gazette of What UNRRA Stands For and How It Functions

UNRRA is first of all an international organization, dedicated to the task of bringing prompt aid and relief to the people — all the people — of countries liberated by the armies of the United Nations in this war.

This help includes the provision of food, clothing and shelter, aid in the prevention of disease and pestilence, the return of prisoners and exiles to their homes, assistance in the resumption of urgently needed agricultural and industrial production and the restoration of essential public services.

What Is Unrra?

It is a practical organization based on the practical knowledge that there can be no secure peace, no fruits of victory for the victors, until the people of these countries can be restored to normal and self-sustaining existence.

UNRRA is temporary in function. It ceases to be with the solving of relief and rehabilitation problems in liberated territories.

UNRRA does not supply aid free. Any liberated nation whose Government is in position to pay in foreign exchange must pay for all supplies distributed.

How Is Unrra Financed?

Many people ask "How is UNRRA financed?"

The answer is simple. Funds consist of contributions from each member country of 1 percent of its national income for the year ending June 30, 1943. The United States contribution is $1,350,000,000. Great Britain's is $350,000,000. Canada's is $77,000,000. Besides this all member countries contribute, in proportion, to administrative expenses as they arise. The total sum to be contributed, for what is calculated to be the entire relief period, is $2,000,000,000.

How Is Unrra Set Up?

Others ask: "How is UNRRA set up?"

That is simple also. It is a council consisting of one member from each of the 44 nations. This council decides policies, meets twice a year; is meeting now in Montreal.

Who Does Actual Work?

Who does the actual work — the real relief?

That is done by Field Missions, consisting of permanent, salaried officials under a chief officer who, has broad powers and is responsible to the director general. Such a mission (600 people) is now in Cairo preparing to move into the Balkans as soon as the military authorities say the word.

UNRRA does not operate in enemy countries at the moment. According to its constitution it may operate only in liberated countries. It may decide during this present session to operate in ex-enemy countries — in Italy or Germany. There is some disagreement about this subject among the delegates but officials are confident that a solution will be worked out.

UNRRA operates only at the request of the military during the military period of liberating a country. After the military period it is at the request of and in agreement with the national authorities of liberated countries.

It procures its supplies through the appropriate agencies of its member nations. It gets its food, for instance, like everyone else through the Combined Food boards.

Philosophy of Unrra

The constitution of UNRRA says that it must carry out its relief and rehabilitation program without discrimination of any kind.

Its philosophy has been summed up by Director-General Lehman who said: "The guiding light of UNRRA must be the principle of helping people to help themselves."

Peat production in Sweden last year was about 1,100,000 tons.

An Older London Coming To Light

Even amid the horrors of air raids and robot bomb attacks, now believed to be virtually over, some old points of interest are coming to light in London, says The Brantford Expositor. On several occasions, German explosives have torn craters which have exposed forgotten relics of the great city's past.

At one place two bastions and part of an ancient Roman wall have been revealed, together with some masonry ordered by Alfred the Great. Foundations of buildings destroyed in the Great Fire of 1666 have also been literally brought into view again. To say that history is buried beneath London's pavements is no mere figure of speech.

National Fire Prevention Week

The official proclamation making October 8-14 National Fire Prevention Week urges that all farm buildings and their surroundings be carefully inspected and all fire hazards remedied. Check chimneys for loose bricks, the electric wiring in house and barn, the metal sheer back of the stove, and other possible fire hazards.

PROCLAMATION

Paper Salvage Day

Monday, Oct. 16, 1944

Emergency - V - Drive

WHEREAS we are fast approaching the gravest hour of this war when we shall administer the blow to end savagery and brutal tyranny—

AND WHEREAS a grave shortage of salvage paper impedes our efforts in transporting food, water, medicines, blood plasma and other vital supplies from Canadian Laboratories and factories to our men holding the invasion beach-heads—

AND WHEREAS the Department of National War Services has requested the Town of Deseronto to immediately increase its collection of wastepaper to meet this emergency—

BE IT HEREBY PROCLAIMED that Monday, the 16th day of October, 1944, be emergency Paper Salvage Day in Deseronto, when all citizens of this municipality shall enlist to make that day a success.

Fathers and Mothers, Boys and Girls are asked to assist in making available every ounce of salvage paper, newspaper, magazines and periodicals, cardboard cartons and wrapping papers—

Special Committees composed of public-spirited citizens will unite to clear stores, offices and factories of every last piece of salvage paper, including records of no permanent value.

WE APPEAL FOR A UNITED EFFORT IN THIS EMERGENCY. Let each of us—every boy and girl, every man and woman—do his part in this essential service.....SALVAGING PAPER.

ONTARIO FARMERS

Now!

THIS is an appeal to THE FARMERS OF ONTARIO. The Packing Plants of Ontario, which process and ship your livestock for export, ARE SERIOUSLY SHORT OF MEN. Every available Farmer of Ontario is urged to offer his services for employment in one of the Packing Plants in this province as soon as the essential work of the farm is completed. OVER 1,000 men are required to start in the month of September alone. Good hourly wages will be paid. Transportation to the plant will be provided. Assistance will be given in arranging board and room.

With full staffs, the Packing Plants of Canada have ample capacity to handle even the tremendously increased numbers of cattle, sheep and swine, which Canadian farmers have ready for market this year. When operating to capacity the Packing Plants can keep the market cleared and livestock can be slaughtered, processed and shipped at its most profitable time, when it is at its market peak. Thus, losses which occur when animals are held beyond the peak—through additional feeding costs, through falling away from peak condition and through the danger to price structures when supply threatens to exceed demand—are avoided.

Last year several hundred Ontario farmers volunteered for work in the plants in processing their own products and protecting their own interests. Production for export this year has increased by 40%. Available man-power has shrunk by 28%.

The Ontario Farm Service Force, in conjunction with Employment and Selective Service has undertaken the task of raising sufficient help from Ontario Farmers to keep Packing Plants operating to capacity this year. This department of the Ontario government's Department of Agriculture feels that this extension of its service is as vitally important to the interests of the farmers of this province as anything it has yet undertaken. The need of meat as a primary essential food to our Allied Armies, to the people of Great Britain and to the starving millions in countries being liberated by our victorious armies, is the basic consideration. In addition, efficient operation in the processing and marketing of livestock is necessary in protecting the greatest export market ever opened to Canadian farmers.

Your services are needed from now until spring. If you cannot devote that full period of time, a month or more will be of great assistance.

OFFER YOUR SERVICES AS SOON AS POSSIBLE. If you cannot go to work at once, call or write, stating that you will come, and at what date you will be available. Remember you will be serving your own best interests as well as playing a vital patriotic part in serving your country.

For full information or offering your services, apply in person, phone or write to your nearest office of

Deseronto Memorial Rink Fund Established

The Deseronto Chamber of Commerce will establish the above fund, this was decided at a regular supper meeting held at Jackson's Restaurant on Tuesday evening. The Chamber of Commerce set aside $500 as an opening donation to the fund.

The method of raising the money was decided by asking for public subscriptions rather than by selling stock, rink with a memorial plaque in a conspicuous place in memory of the boys that are giving their lives in this world war.

The rink committee is composed of Edgar Irwin, George Jackson and Ed. Roach. Finance committee is Mark Detlor, Clare Malley, Gordon Burley and Cecil Duffield.

The type of rink proposed, for which plans are submitted, is to be of regulation hockey size, galvanized iron roof and walls, wooden truss and support construction. There will be ladies' and gents' dressing rooms along with hockey players' quarters, galleries, standing room and reserved seat section.

The location is to be decided by the rink committee, who will also function as a group to prepare work on the foundation, which will be done this fall. The remainder is to be completed next summer.

Monthly Meeting Board of Education

The regular monthly meeting of the Board of Education was held at the High School on Friday evening with Chairman Cuthbert-Sager presiding. Others present were Mrs. T. L. McCullough, Mrs. C. F. Dimmell, Rev. F. G. Robinson, J. C. Reynolds and Secretary, Mrs. F. Babcocks.

Minutes were read, bills presented and ordered paid if found correct.

A letter was received from Mr. K. O. Birkin, former Public School Inspector, regarding entrance exam fees.

Report from Principal R. C. Bowen was read. There are 213 pupils enrolled this year, some suggestions were also given for taking care of the extra number of pupils. Supplies listed by Principal Bowen were left with him to order. Extra seats are also needed.

Regarding Cadet Inspection it is not compulsory to attend and the matter was left with pupils and teachers.

Mr. McKenzie reported that a few of the older students attending Public School wish to leave school but sufficient reasons were not given. By law school students must attend until they are 16 years of age.

A letter was read from the Chief Director of Education regarding Cadet Training.

Principal J. B. Hough reported 72 students attending this year, 12 more than last year.

Several suggestions given for the improvement of the school will be attended to. School windows are hard to open since they have been painted, this will be attended to.

After further lengthy discussions meeting adjourned.

The Annual Harvest Thanksgiving Services will be held in St. Mark's Church next Sunday with services at 11 a.m. and 7 p.m. Rev. Rural Dean Pringle will be the special preacher. Members of the congregation will meet on Friday afternoon to decorate the church for the service.

ELLEN MAUD COLEMAN

The death occurred in Cobourg last week of Ellen Maud Coleman, relict of the late Thomas J. Coleman, who passed away at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Clayton McGregor.

Deceased who had not been in good health for the past year was born in Lonsdale 64 years ago and was the daughter of the late George Thompson and his wife Elizabeth Smith. Following her marriage many years were spent in this vicinity until ten years ago she went to Toronto to reside and remained there until a short time before her death.

She is survived by two daughters, Mrs. Clayton McGregor of Cobourg, and Mrs. I. R. Elder of Owen Sound, also one sister, Mrs. Albert Cronk and two brothers, John and Fred of Napanee.

The funeral took place from her daughter's home in Cobourg to Riverside Cemetery in Napanee on Saturday afternoon. Those attending were Mr. and Mrs. Albert Cronk and Mr. and Mrs. I. R. Elder of Owen Sound, who remained for the week-end with Mr. and Mrs. Albert Cronk, Dundas Street.

GEORGE GAULIN

The funeral of the late George Gaulin, whose death occurred in Belleville General Hospital last week, took place from his late residence at Point Anne on Thursday morning to St. Michael's Church, Belleville. Monsignor Nicholson sang the Requiem Mass and was assisted in the sanctuary by Dean E. M. Lacey of St. Patrick's Church, Napanee, and Rev. G. T. Martin of St. Vincent de Paul Church, Deseronto, where deceased had attended church for many years.

Pall-bearers and flower bearers were 14 members of the Point Anne Softball Team of which he was manager for some years.

The floral tributes were beautiful and numerous, received from Head Office, Sales Office, Office Staff and employees of Canada Cement Co. where he had been employed for the past 22 years, Belleville Softball Team and Association and many others. Many Mass Cards were also received.

Interment took place in Belleville Cemetery with Father Baker and Rev. Father G. T. Martin conducting the service at the grave.

Church Notes

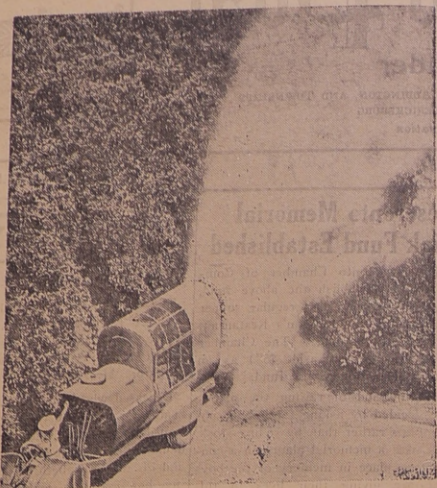

Thanksgiving Sunday was fittingly observed in all churches with many visitors attending with their friends.

At St. Mark's Church Canon C. E. S. Radcliffe conducted the service assisted by Mr. R. Ha'l who read the lessons. Flowers on the Altar were given by Mrs. C. J. Knight and Mrs. W. Field.

In the United Church, Rev. W. H. Clarke conducted the service in the absence of Rev. H. A. Bunt who was in Milford conducting the anniversary services at a former charge. The solos in the morning anthem "O come let us sing" were taken by Miss Fern Robinson and Allan Aylsworth. In the evening Gerald McCaul, president of the Y.P.A., conducted the service and all who attended were much impressed with the service and the sincerity of the young man in charge.

In the Church of the Redeemer, Mr. K. J. Matthews student in Arts at Queen's University, conducted the service and will continue for a year taking charge also at Camden East where he will reside for the winter. The sermon, hymns and prayers were in keeping with the Day. Autumn flowers decorated the church.

POSTWAR SUPER SPRAYER

Reminiscent of the Army's big smoke screen projectors is this newly developed insecticide sprayer which will insure better fruit and citrus tree production. Slated for postwar production, the machine uses a powerful motor and 10 airplane propellers to throw a giant spray. Experimental model is pictured being operated by its inventor, George Daugherty, Food Machinery Corporation executive, in orange grove at Azusa, Calif.

CHAPTER VII

Nancy glanced at Maxine's hands as the station agent took her check promising to send her trunk up later. Her nails, Nancy saw, were beautifully buffed, but there was no rich liquid polish on them. She remembered thankfully that she was still wearing her gloves and that she had a bottle of nail polish remover in her bag. Then she glanced at Peggy's hands.

"Peggy!" she cried. "Your ring!" In the excitement Peggy had forgotten the ring. For a moment she stared uncomprehendingly at Nancy, then down at her hand, at which the other girl was looking so intently. Maxine, too, was staring in surprise at the ring. She picked up her sister's hand that was hanging foolishly at her side. "Peggy!" she cried. "You engaged? I had no idea. Why hadn't you written me?"

Over and over to herself Peggy was saying, "Why, oh why did I ever do anything so silly? Maxine will be utterly disgusted with me when I explain." She knew she would explain everything at the earliest opportunity. She could not let Maxine believe something that was not true. About she said:

"It's quite recent. No one knows. You know how Gran is. Don't mention it to her. I'd better take it off now before I forget it. Gran doesn't know anything about it, you see."

She wanted to get the ring out of sight to forget about the whole thing. Opening her purse she dropped the ring inside, then closed the bag firmly.

Maxine was watching her anxiously. "Is he nice?" she asked seriously. "Someone we will all like?"

"Oh, yes," Peggy assured her. "I'll tell you all about it later. Come on, let's hurry. Gran will be so excited about your coming."

She had not noticed Nancy's unusual silence.

Maxine waved to old friends as they drove through Marshville, who, stopping to stare a moment in surprise, waved back in excitement.

"Tell me about Gran," she demanded, settling herself beside Peggy.

"She is still the sweetest thing on earth and I don't believe you will notice any difference in her at all. She continues to run the house — and me."

Both girls laughed. "Does she still get her express packages every week?" Maxine asked.

"Every Monday. Rain or shine." "And you have never found out what is in them?"

Peggy shook her head. "I never expect to. I have even given up wondering about them. That package just comes every Monday and William takes it to Gran's room and that's that."

"Does he heart?" Maxine cried. "If she wants a secret — when was it she started getting those express packages? About the time of her seventeenth birthday, wasn't it? Well, if she wants a secret from the time she was seventeen until she is a hundred, I guess she can have it without our prying into it."

"It's grand to be home," she continued as they turned in at the gates of Rosewood.

William came hurrying out of the house when he heard the sound of wheels, and stared at Maxine unbelievably.

"De Lord be praised," he cried rushing forward to assist her to the ground.

Mrs. Horton had come to the open door to greet Peggy's friend but she could see only Maxine. She opened her arms wide and the girl rushed into them, literally picking the fragile old lady up in her arms. "Gran, Gran!" she cried.

Mrs. Horton's eyes were wet with tears as she eagerly drank in every detail of her granddaughter's appearance. She held her off from her for an instant to study her again, then smiling she reached up and patted Maxine's cheek before tucking her eldest granddaughter's hand beneath her arm. It was not until she reached out with her other hand for Peggy, who, with Nancy,

LONE SURVIVOR

When the Allied Airforce bombed Cassino in Italy, only three men of 100 men of the 2nd Company, 3rd Nazi Paratroop Regiment of General Heiderich's famous First German Paratroop Division, survived. Since then one was killed by Canadian shell fire, another died of wounds and this Nazi, Senior Private Ernst Markert, 18, surrendered to the Canadians only after his last round of ammunition had been fired. He had seen his entire company wiped out, retreated more than 200 miles, and still believes in Hitler and that Germany will win the war. He is a member of the Hitler Youth Movement and wears the Iron Cross of the Second Order for service at Cassino.

had been standing near by, that she seemed conscious of the presence of an outsider. A shadow crossed her face. But it was only a shadow.

"Forgive me," she exclaimed, extending her hand and smiling graciously. "I am delighted to have you with us."

Maxine was taken to her old room after she had been to the kitchen to see Aunt Jenny, formerly her nurse, and the other servants who had gathered there to welcome her. Peggy took Nancy upstairs with her.

"Come on," she said as they entered Nancy's room. "I'll help you unpack before we go down for tea."

"Tea?" Nancy asked in surprise. "Yes," Peggy replied simply. She was bending over a suitcase and did not see the wry face her guest made.

"Let me see your ring again, Peggy. I didn't get a very good look at it at the station."

Peggy gritted her teeth at the thought of the ring, but answered hastily: "Oh, not now. Gran might come in, or something. I'll show it to you later. But where is yours?" she asked suddenly turning to Nancy. It had just occurred to her that she had not noticed a ring on Nancy's finger.

With a toss of her head the other girl explained. "I gave it back to Pidge."

"You mean you aren't engaged any more?" Peggy dropped on the side of the bed. Why hadn't she had sense enough to say that?

"No, I'm not," Nancy answered crossly. "Although I know he is still in love with me. You haven't told me the name of the man you are going to marry," she continued.

CHRONICLES OF GINGER FARM

By
Gwendoline P. Clarke

Dishes are done, floors swept, beds made, so I thought I might get a little time at this column before thinking about our next meal. But now I see the mailman at the gate—that means an interruption. You know . . . there is something about the mail — something that makes you feel you just have to get it when it's there. There may be only a paper—on the other hand there may be letters. And what letters mean to a mother you don't need me to tell you. Some families are content to wait until the men come in from the field before getting the mail. That is something I can't do. Of course, I must admit, getting the mail does rather interfere with one's morning work, and of course, if there are letters you just have to read them. But if there are none then you just work that much harder to forget your disappointment. This morning I won't have to walk down for the mail. I see Partner walking up the lane with the mail tucked under his arm. Excuse me one minute — I must see what there is . . .

Well, I may as well get on with my work—there's "No Letter Today". Maybe tomorrow. Yes, that is what we always say, isn't it — maybe tomorrow. But tomorrow is twenty-four hours away.

Last week was quite a week. Tuesday morning I got up wondering which of the many jobs on my waiting list should be tackled first. And then soon after breakfast, there came a knock at the door. It was the paperhanger. Would it be convenient to have the ceilings done today? He had a painting job across the road but it looked so much like rain he was afraid to start. "Come right on in," was my answer, "of course I am not ready, but I soon can be!" And that, my friends was no idle boast. Almost in less time than it takes to tell, the living-room furniture was out in the hall. The next day the weather was still threatening so we got the hall done, upstairs and down, sideways and ceiling too. That's what comes of having paper in the house ahead of time. "Be prepared" is a real good motto, don't you think? Imagine being so lucky as to get a paperhanger these days.

Saturday was a big day—the day of our local fair. It was fine and warm, and there was a splendid attendance. Daughter and a friend came from Toronto to take in the show but we didn't see them until we got home. "Meet your friends at the fair." Sure, that's fine—if you can find them! Sometimes one sets more by staying put than by moving around. One time when Partner and I were resting our weary feet we saw two men and a woman making their way across the race-track. They were "Hilly-billies" if I ever saw any. One of the men was very dirty and unshaven, the other younger and slightly cleaner, and the woman shuffled after them clutching a shabby purse tightly to her person. Sober and harmless but somewhat confused and nervous. Was this a big day for them . . . had they come out of the hills specially to attend the fair? I couldn't help wondering as I watched them, but they went their way and we went ours, so I suppose that is all I shall ever know. Just one fleeting glimpse of "how others live".

Kaiser's And Hitler's Submarine Warfare

In the early months of 1917, the Kaiser came within a hairline of victory with his submarine warfare. In this war Hitler has made far greater use of the U-boat. The full part it played in the Nazis' near-victory in 1940-41 won't, of course be known until after the war, but it will doubtless be found to have been tremendous.

Suffice it for now that the joint Roosevelt-Churchill figure of 500 German submarines destroyed since September, 1939, compared with only 203 sunk from 1914 to 1918! Then against this place the solemn warning: "The U-boat fleet is still of impressive size."

FIGHT ON, CANADA!

This war has called out the greatest expenditure of energy history has ever known. What will happen to all that energy after the war?

Will it stand in stagnant pools of unemployment? Will it be stored up in giant pressure tanks of discontent that finally burst out in some sort of civil war? Or will it dribble out in thin trickles of competitive effort—every man for himself again and nobody united for the whole?

There is another use for energy. Everybody can pitch in behind a fighting purpose to wage peace, just as we pitched in unitedly to fight the war.

What purpose? Everybody knows we can't build a new world on broken hearts or broken trusts. Then what about a fight to build sound homes, a sound family in the nation and a sound family of nations.

All this, of course, is quite opposite to the things we used to do in peace. That is what makes it a fight. That is how we can carry on with a fighting purpose in peace long after the guns stop firing. That is how we can enlist the energies of our demobilized millions and rally our civilians too. Fight on, Canada!

Stupidity isn't always a lack of brains. It is often just the love of ease.

We all make footprints in the sands of time. But some leave the imprint of a great soul—others just the marks of a heel.

If you look only for people's approval, you will always be blind to their needs.

TIME BOMBS

If you use a lot of steam in blowing the whistle, you won't have as much to turn the wheels.

If we plant character in our home, it will blossom in the nation.

When it comes to the pattern for a new world, we have to live it before we can give it.

To get another man to care more, care more for him.

We would not have so many things upon our minds, if we had more people on our hearts.

Men, in difficulty, look for a plan. God always seems to look for a man.

"You may be in the right, and I in the wrong," said Oliver Cromwell, "but if we be divided, we shall both be in the wrong."

Just being a bear around the house doesn't keep the wolf from the door, nor wolves from the daughter.

It is important that our sons who are fighting for a new world live through the battle, but still more important, after the battle for a new world lives on in us.

When you love another person you know it.

IT'S TRUE—For the first three months of this year Long Distance lines handled calls at a rate which would represent an increase, over the full year, of nearly three and one-half million calls.

Murder on the Boardwalk

BY ELINORE COWAN STONE

Last Week: Jasper escapes from the police and the others are allowed to go home. Bill tells Christine he saw Wilmet near the studio at 9.0, at Jasper was trailing her. She realizes the inspector was certain she knew Jasper.

CHAPTER X

"Then," Christine said slowly, "if you're right, Bill — if he is skulking in the dark somewhere — and if he does kill some one else, I'll be — well, a sort of accomplice, won't I — because I didn't tell the police who he was and have them lock him up?"

"Nonsense! Not telling all you know doesn't constitute you a criminal. If it did, most of us would spend a lot of time behind bars."

But in spite of Bill's light words, his voice was tense with worry. A newsboy came along the Boardwalk shrilling, "Wuxtry! Read all about it! Moider on the Boardwalk! Wuxtry! Wuxtry!"

Bill bought a copy. "Here's a good light," he said; and they stopped to read. Most of the first two pages were devoted to the sensational murder of the wealthy and exclusive widow, Mrs. Emma Talbert.

At one of the items Christine stared with blanching cheeks. "You said awhile ago," she faltered at last, "that not telling all I knew didn't make me a criminal... What would this make me?"

"An unknown person," the item read, "has mailed to this office a document purporting to be the will of Mrs. Emma Talbert. According to that will, the dead woman's entire fortune — except for a substantial bequest to the butler who has served her for years — is left to her only relative, Miss Christine Thorenson."

"It couldn't make you anything found relief.

Presently, he said, close to her ear, "You've got me, Christine. You'll always have me — if you want me... I didn't mean to tell you — not for months — because I didn't dare think you'd believe me... I hardly believed myself that it could happen all at once that way. But this is what I've wanted from the first."

Because she had been so sure from the beginning that Bill was safe and wholesome as the fresh sea air and sunshine; and because she realized all of a sudden that this was what she had really wanted from the beginning, too, Christine did believe him, and clung to him as the one sure, sane refuge in a world suddenly gone insane.

And because this was Surf City, concerned first and only with its own interests, its own amusement, its own desires, the Boardwalk crowd eddied and passed without a backward glance.

At length Christine sat up, protesting between tears and laughter, "Bill — all these people! I couldn't have believed I'd ever do a thing like this."

And Bill said, a little unsteadily himself, "So far as they're concerned, we're not even here... Anything could happen to any one on this Boardwalk, and no one else would even notice."

Later, in the crisis that rushed upon them with such cruel inevitability, Christine was to remember his words.

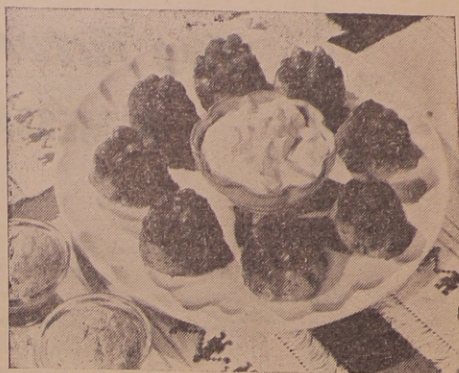

When they finally reached Christine's door, Bill took her almost roughly into his arms again.

"I wish to God I didn't have to leave you alone," he said, his voice hoarse with trouble. "Promise me that you'll be careful, Christine — if you have any idea what the word means."

A Vote For Variety

Are you a one-way cook? When you start with cherries do you always arrive at cherry pie? Don't be so set in your ways. Venture into new flavor fields. It makes menu planning much more exciting! Try a cherry pudding. Not just an ordinary one but this one made with All-Bran. It has a nut-like taste that is a perfect foil for cherry flavor.

SOUR CHERRY PUDDINGS

1/3 cup shortening 1 teaspoon vanilla extract
 2/3 cup sugar 1 cup sifted flour
 1 egg 2 1/2 teaspoons baking powder
 1/2 cup All-Bran 1/2 teaspoon salt
 3/4 cup milk 3/4 cup drained, cooked cherries

Blend shortening and sugar together thoroughly; add egg, beat well. Soak All-Bran in milk; add flavoring. Sift flour, baking powder and salt together; add to first mixture alternately with All-Bran and milk. Put five or six cherries in bottom of each greased custard cup and fill two-thirds full with batter. Bake in moderate oven (375°F.) about 25 minutes. Serve hot with Cherry Sauce.

CHERRY SAUCE

1 1/2 cups cherry juice 1-1/3 tablespoons cornstarch
 1/8 teaspoon salt
 Add juice to cornstarch and stir until smooth. Add salt. Cook slowly, stir until mixture is clear and cornstarch is thoroughly cooked. Serve hot over Cherry Puddings.
 Note: Use sweetened, canned cherries. Water may be substituted for part of juice if necessary.

tine set systematically about the examination of her belongings.

I'm a superstitious fool, she thought in the release of her new happiness. But I've got to be sure.

At length she found it — in a big manila envelope into which, before she had left New York, she had hastily stuck some canceled checks she didn't quite want to throw away.

"It" was a thick sheaf of thousand dollar bonds. There was nothing to indicate whose they were; and Christine did not look through the bundle to find out how many there were. After the first frightened look, she dropped them as if they burned her fingers and sat staring, her shaking hands tight at her throat.

Her first impulse was to call Bill; but there was no telephone in her room. To reach one, she must go into the public hall and risk being overheard.

She did the only other thing that occurred to her. Making sure that her rather flimsy door was locked, she pulled the heavy bureau in front of it, and went to bed.

Christine did not hope to sleep; but after a while she did.

She was hardly dressed next morning before she was summoned to the telephone. It was Bill calling.

"Bill," Christine said swiftly, "I've got to see you. Something —"

"Listen!" Bill's voice was sharp with warning. Don't use words that mean anything over the telephone. You've probably got a reporter in each pocket... And don't be worried when you read in the paper that the shoes of one William Yardley have been found to fit in to one pair of footprints found by the police."

And the other pair, Christine remembered, were Cousin Emma's.

CANADA'S VETERANS Their Post-War Opportunities

This is the first of a series of advertisements to inform the people of Canada of plans to re-establish men and women of the armed forces. To get the full details save and read every advertisement.

For complete information write for the booklet "Back to Civil Life."

The Future After Discharge — A MESSAGE TO RELATIVES OF THOSE IN THE ARMED FORCES

When your boys and your girls come home, when they lay aside the uniform, when they go out into the world as normal peace-loving Canadians, what lies ahead? Can they pick up their lives as civilians, where they laid them down, months or long years ago? Are there plans to help them do the things they wanted to do before the war? Will they have security? Can they continue education, or receive needed training? Will they be assisted in home owning, or to establish their own business, and will they be enabled to pick up their family life once again?

These are questions which concern all those Canadians who have loved ones in the services. They are questions which this series of advertisements is designed to answer.

OPPORTUNITY IS THE OBJECTIVE

Canada has been making plans for your boy's and your girl's return to civilian life since early in 1940. These plans are in effect and operating now. The aim is that every person who has served shall have opportunity. Thousands, already back in civilian life, have benefitted by training, by maintenance grants, by advice of departmental officials, and by the social security provisions. There is ample help for those men and women who want to help themselves.

ASSISTANCE ON DISCHARGE

When your boys and girls are discharged from the services, they will be given:

1. A clothing allowance of $100.00 (if discharged after August 1, 1944).
2. Their pay to date of discharge.
3. One month's additional pay, if they have 183 days' continuous service, as a rehabilitation grant.
4. A railway warrant home or to the place of enlistment.

Dependents will receive:

1. Their normal dependents' allowance to date of discharge, with assigned pay.
2. An additional months' dependents' allowance, with assigned pay, if there has been 183 days' continuous service.

Your boy or girl will be allowed to retain certain items of uniform. They will be given a complete medical and dental examination and will be eligible for free needed treatment for a year after discharge. Those discharged not physically fit, in need of continuing treatment and unable to work, will have their pay and allowances of rank continued for at least a year if necessary and, if the disability is pensionable, for as long as curative treatment is beneficial. All are interviewed by Veterans' Welfare Officers and told of the re-establishment programme.

WAR SERVICE GRATUITY

On discharge, those enlisted to serve outside Canada, or those who served in the Aleutian Islands, are eligible for a war service gratuity. It provides $7.50 for each thirty days' service in Canada and the Western Hemisphere and $15.00 for each thirty days' service overseas or in the Aleutian Islands. For those with overseas service or with service in the Aleutian Islands, there is an additional seven days' pay and allowances for each six months of such service. Payments will be made at the end of each month in the months following discharge. Complete details of the war service gratuity will be given in a later advertisement.

RE-ESTABLISHMENT CREDIT

In addition to the war service gratuity, there is a re-establishment credit of $7.50 for each thirty days' service in the Western Hemisphere and $15.00 for each thirty days' service overseas. This is for things such as the purchase or repair of a home, the buying of furniture, a business, or government life insurance, and for certain other purposes which will assist your boy or your girl in becoming re-established. This credit, which is reduced by grants given for training or education, or under the Veterans' Land Act, is primarily for those who do not wish assistance under these three plans.

RETURN TO FORMER JOBS

If your boy or girl held a civilian position before enlisting, and was not engaged to replace somebody already in the forces, and if the position still exists, and your boy or girl is capable of filling it, it is the employer's duty, under the law of Canada, to reinstate him or her in that position with seniority. Application for reinstatement must be made to the former employer within three months of discharge from the forces or from hospital.

Veterans' Welfare Officers are stationed in key centres throughout Canada. They are the friends of ex-Service men and women. It is their duty to advise and assist all ex-Service personnel with their re-establishment problems. If there is anything about the Rehabilitation programme which you do not understand, consult your nearest Veterans' Welfare Officer.

TRAINING AND EDUCATION

The surest way to permanent employment—the thing your boy or girl will want—is a skill to get and to hold a job. Canada's plans give opportunity to acquire needed skill either at university or in preparation for a business or industrial career. Fees are paid by the state, along with living allowances, while training or continuing education.

WHILE ILL OR UNEMPLOYED

There is protection against illness or unemployment by maintenance allowances which can be drawn against in the first eighteen months after discharge. There is also protection under the Unemployment Insurance Act for those who enter insured employment and remain in it fifteen weeks.

HOME OWNING AND FARMING

There is provision to assist city and other workers to have homes of their own, either on small acreages of land outside the high taxation area, or in town, under the National Housing Act. Full-time farmers can be given financial assistance in full-time farming, while commercial fishermen may secure financial help in getting their own homes, on small acreages of land, and in buying needed fishing equipment.

FREE TREATMENT

In the year following discharge, service men and women are eligible for free treatment, hospitalization and allowances for any condition, even if not the result of service. Pensioners are entitled to this for life for their pensioned disability.

THE POLICY ON PENSIONS

Canada's Pension Act is administered by an independent commission, all former members of the services. Any permanent disability suffered overseas, not a result of misconduct, is pensionable. Where service is in Canada only, the disability must be a result of service.

THE MIXING BOWL

By ANNE ALAN

Hydro Home Economist

Hello Homemakers! Since the children have settled down to scheduled school hours, we have been thinking more about turning on the oven to pop in something that may be fresh and varied from the standard supper dishes of the past month. We can dream about rich pastry cases filled with creamed shrimp and mushrooms, or for dessert fruit and whipped cream—we can still get along without them. There are very suitable substitutes—pop-overs and plain pastry puff shells. The food that is put into these cases may be hot or cold, plain or sweet.

But no matter what you use as fillings, you need to make sure the shells are not tough and heavy. The secret of successful pop-overs and puffs is two-fold—proper beating to incorporate plenty of air and careful baking to hold the shape of the pop-over and puff made by expanding the steam inside. The expanding steam causes the mixture to rise and the combination of gluten in the bread flour and the intense, even heat of the oven does the "puffing". Then reduced heat for the rest of the baking allows the puff to cook inside.

POP-OVERS

1/4 teaspoon salt, 1 cup sifted bread flour, 7/8 cup milk, 2 eggs, 1/2 tablespoon melted shortening.

Sift salt and flour together. Add milk gradually, beating until mixture is smooth. Beat eggs until light and add to first mixture. Add shortening and beat well. Pour into hot greased muffin pan and bake in electric oven 30 minutes at 475 degrees F., reducing the temperature to 350 degrees F. for 15 minutes. Yield: Nine pop-overs.

CREAM PUFF SHELLS

1/4 cup butter, 1/2 cup water, 1/8 teaspoon salt, 1/2 cup bread flour, 2 eggs unbeaten.

Combine the butter, water and salt in saucepan and bring to boiling point. Sift in flour and cook, stirring constantly until smooth mixture forms.

Stir vigorously until mixture forms a ball in the centre of the pan.

Remove from electric element and let stand five minutes. Add eggs, one at a time, beating vigorously after adding each egg. Mixture should be very stiff. Drop by spoonfuls on buttered cookie sheet. Makes eight large puffs or 18 small ones or 24 afternoon-tea size. Bake in very hot oven (450 degrees F.) for 15 minutes. Reduce heat to 350 degrees and bake for 20 to 25 minutes longer. Small puffs will not take quite as long to finish baking. When cool, cut slit in side of puff and fill with cream custard filling, salad mixture.

TAKE A TIP

1. Use sweet cider to flavour gelatin moulds for variation...
2. If cocoa is to be substituted for one ounce of chocolate in a sauce recipe, use one quarter cup cocoa and mix with cornstarch and sugar.
3. Bake beets occasionally. Wash, trim and roast as you do potatoes.
4. Increase the amount of salt in a recipe when you substitute shortening for butter.

You hold the mortgage
You collect the interest

A Victory Bond is a mortgage on Canada... all of this country's resources guarantee payment of principal and interest. And money you lend to Canada, when you buy Victory Bonds, is the safest investment you can make.

You can borrow on Victory Bonds for seasonal farm requirements or any bank will pay cash for your bonds should you need cash at any time.

Money is a vital war weapon. Canada needs every dollar that every Canadian can save and lend... more than ever before. As the war increases in intensity, Canada's need for money increases, too. Our country's all-over borrowing needs are increased by over three hundred and twenty million dollars at this time. We must each be ready to lend again, and to lend more.

Thousands of small grains make a bushel of wheat. So with the money that Canada must borrow, from Canadians, to pay for the war: small sums loaned by individuals mount up to billions. Lend all you can... money you have saved and money you can save... but do not think that small loans are unimportant. Put your savings into mortgages on Canada—marketable mortgages. You will be doing a worthwhile war job... and you will get your money back... with interest.

WHAT SCIENCE IS DOING

Self-Righting Rafts

All-metal life rafts are being built in Los Angeles, Calif., by the hundreds as standard equipment for the American merchant marine to provide increased safety for crews forced to abandon torpedoed and bombed cargo ships and tankers, writes Kimmis Hendrick, in the Christian Science Monitor.

The rafts seat 20 men. They are stored with more than half a ton of articles, ranging from storm oil and fishing kits to magazines and food. And a Bible. They are so constructed that no matter how they hit the water when launched, they come out right side up. Bottom and top are exactly alike.

Each one weighs 2,425 pounds empty, allows for 20 men weighing 3,402 pounds all told, plus 1,055 pounds of equipment.

The rafts are of cockpit or well-deck type: they are self-righting; equipment is available whichever side is up. They are unusually buoyant. Each occupant has at least four square feet of room. Four men can handle 10-foot oars without interference from other passengers.

The rafts are built to withstand dropping 45 feet into the water without springing leaks.

Rafts are equipped with sails containing 100 square feet of canvas; as said before, they have cars. In case of storm, masts can be lowered horizontally to support a canopy that covers everyone on board.

Have You Heard?

Explaining to his civilian friends his role in the artillery, a dusky soldier said:

"Ah opens de big gun, puts in a big shell, close de gun, pulls de trigger, steps back and says: 'Mistah Hitlah, recount yo' army!'"

Mrs. McBloop: My Husband.

A lady war worker, engaged in the making of precision instruments, went to a ball game on her day off. A decision of the umpire displeased her. "Ya big bum," she hollered. "He was safe by a thousandth of an inch!"

Blonde: I'm his secretary.

Canada's Prosperity Is Not An Accident

It is not accidental that Canada has achieved its high standard of prosperity and comfort under a system of private capitalism operating under democratic rule, claims the Kitchener Record. The system has its operational faults and abuses, but basically it is strong, popular and successful.

What we need now is a sound plan for putting that system back on a peacetime basis with fewer faults and abuses than it had before, and a willing and co-operative belief in it by all of us who must make it work.

Fill that need—as undoubtedly it will be filled—and we need not go looking for red bogymen under the bed.

Fatherly Advice

Navajo Indian Judge Many Children received notice that a son had been wounded in action. He sent him this message: "If you are wounded in the leg and can't march, you should tell the army and come home. If you are not wounded in the leg, get up pronto and shoot some more Japs."

Announcement of change in Spirits Ration

EFFECTIVE OCTOBER 2nd, 1944

COMMENCING October 2nd, 1944, and until further notice, every individual permit holder will be permitted to purchase monthly one bottle of spirits (25 or 26 ounces) or two half bottles as available.

As a result of the restrictions imposed by the Dominion Government under the Wartime Alcoholic Beverages Order P.C.11374, it was necessary to reduce the monthly ration of spirits to 13 ounces to assure adequate supplies of spirits until the end of the year. In increasing the ration it should be explained to the public that unless the restrictions imposed by the Dominion Government are removed a similar restriction will be necessary again next year, although the Board, except for the Dominion Restriction, would be able to make available for distribution stocks of spirits in excess of the present ration.

In any event, however, the ration becoming effective on October 2nd can be maintained throughout the winter months, so it is hoped that the public will co-operate by not buying in excess of actual requirements.

They're TALKING ABOUT . . . a Ten-Cent Dollar!

They speak of it glibly...but what does it mean? It means that every pay-day if your boss paid you in crisp new one-dollar bills each of them would buy only a measly ten-cents' worth of goods. All those savings you've made with ten dimes to a dollar would shrink to the size of one. That's inflation! So we're lucky in Canada that price ceilings and other anti-inflationary measures have kept our dollar value HIGH. In fact, a dollar goes further to-day... buys more goods than the dollar of 1918. Look at these prices, a pound of cocoa to-day compared to the it was then. The same quality towels now, were then. Yes, we get a good dollar's worth to-day. And remember—you protect your dollar value when you refuse to pay more than the ceiling price...denounce black markets... buy Victory Bonds... save... pay off debts and help keep the cost of living down!

Make This
Today!

I promise to give my support to keeping the cost of living down. I will buy only what I need. I will observe the ceiling whether buying or selling goods or services. I will pay off old debts, save for the future, invest in Victory Bonds and War Savings Certificates. And I will support taxes which help lower the cost of living.

Keep Your Dollar Value High!

Services at St. Mark's and All Saints'

The Annual Harvest Thanksgiving Services were held Sunday, October 15 at 11 a.m. in the Parish Church of St. Mark, Deseronto.

The church was tastefully and beautifully decorated with wheat, oats, apples, vegetables and flowers. Many thanks to the ladies who gave their valuable time to pay honour to the Sanctuary of God Almighty—the raised Altar with its white hangings lit up by electric light, with bread and grapes and four vases of grand Chrysanthemums on the grandine or step above the Altar looked lovely and drew forth the heartfelt prayer and praise of the congregation—the Organist and surpliced choir rendered a good service in the joyful spirit of the glorious season.

Rev. Rural Dean Pringle, Rector of Tyendinaga, preached an excellent sermon from the text St. Matthew, 9:37 "Harvest is great, the Labourers are few."

The congregation thoroughly enjoyed the service.

The offerings were liberat.

Canon Radcliffe assisted by F.S. J. Hall conducted Divine Service at All Saints, Tyendinaga, at 11 a.m.

Chamber of Commerce Memorial Rink Fund

At the last regular meeting of the Chamber of Commerce the officers were disappointed, but not depressed, that so few turned out. This meeting was for the purpose of discussing a new rink.

A project of this size is worthy of the support of every citizen of Deseronto and district. It will stand for years to come as a memorial to our boys who enjoyed sports. Many of them have joined the colors and paid the supreme sacrifice that we at home might continue to enjoy that freedom which we have always known.

It will also serve as a Community Hall, a place that all can use the year around.

The proposed structure will have a floor space approximately 90x175, with seating capacity for 1200.

Is this too much for a Town our size? NO!

Remember we have to live somewhere so why not make life worth while as we pass by.

The officers and members of the Chamber of Commerce and the Town Council take this opportunity to thank those who responded to their appeal for accommodation for the personnel of the Air Force by arranging rooms, apartments, etc.

We have approximately one hundred and twenty-five families of air-men living in town, many of them with children of school age.

We feel amply repaid for our efforts in helping to establish the airport on its present site.

To the boys in air force blue and their families, we extend a hearty welcome.

Our regular meetings are held on the second Tuesday of the month at Jackson's Restaurant where dinner is served at 7:00 p.m. We extend a cordial welcome to all who would like to help the Chamber of Commerce to serve our community.

CHAPTER VIII

Peggy wondered desperately if she could manage a faint, or a fit. Anything to get Nancy away from the subject of her ring and her engagement. And she would have to keep this up for a week. Each day would call for more details, probably. If she could only go back to this morning when she had had no ring!

"Well, I can't tell you his name yet," she answered aloud.

"Won't I meet him while I'm here?" Nancy wanted to know, watching her closely.

"No, you see he doesn't live here. That's why. He's away, and I don't know just when he is coming. I'm awfully sorry but you see that is the way it is. He doesn't live here, and he is coming, but I don't know when, and there are several complications." That seemed a good line, Peggy told herself, and she had better learn it well. "Come on, let's go down," she added.

"There seem to be complications," Nancy muttered as they left her room. They stopped by Peggy's room while she put away her hat, gloves and bag, then went downstairs to join the others on the back terrace for tea.

Maxine, of course, was the center of everything during the rest of the afternoon and evening. Nancy seemed morose, but she always was when she was not the center of things, Peggy thought unapologetically. Only once did she enter the conversation.

"I've often been told," Nancy said, patting her blonde hair, "that I am a lot like Carole Landis. Do you think I am? I've sometimes thought I might go into pictures. You remember, Peggy, at school I was always in all the dramatics? Of course, I don't know just how to get in, but you could probably help me there," she said to Maxine.

"Well, I'm afraid not," Maxine answered slowly. "You see there are so many pretty girls who want to get in, and they have such bitter disappointments. I just happened to fit a part they needed someone for, and some studio executive saw me when we were going through a studio, and asked me to come back for a screen test. It was just a break, but of course that doesn't happen often."

"Have you no other friends in California, Maxine, except these people of the stage with whom you work?" her grandmother asked.

"Oh, yes, of course. But, Grand dear, you must realize that many of the people connected with the studios are delightful. The directors and people like that. I wish you knew some of them!"

Mrs. Horton shook her head. "No, they do not seem to have hurt you, but I am afraid they do not appeal to me. I have no desire to meet anyone connected with pictures."

Peggy was silent for the most part. Content to listen, and eagerly awaiting an opportunity to have a talk with her sister.

In the triangle between the service wing which made an ell on the opposite side of the house corresponding to the office, and the terrace, Gran had her herb garden. In the late afternoon the clean spicy odors of sweet marjoram, tansy, thyme, lavender, heliotrope and others that Peggy could never remember, mingled, and she inhaled the fragrance contentedly.

"Funny about the way things smell," she thought to herself, not listening much to the others, just enjoying the fact that Gran and Maxine and she were together again. "The linens at boarding school were soapy clean, and you knew you would get up and go to bed and eat by a bell. Here they all smell of lavender and heliotrope; and you know the coffee will be hot and served in dainty cups, and that either the sun will be shining or that fires will be burning in the early morning."

Each room at Rosewood had its own fireplace, and in the winter a fire was always lighted in the bedroom before its occupant was up. At night, except in summer, Peggy had sleepily watched the fire-light dancing on the walls of her large room ever since she could remember.

After supper, as they were leaving the dining room, Nancy held Peggy back a little after Mrs. Horton and Maxine had left the room.

"What are we doing tonight?" she asked. "I am always so curious when I'm on a blind date."

"But we aren't doing anything," Peggy told her in confusion.

"You mean we haven't any dates?" Nancy asked, drawing back in shocked surprise. "Can't we call up somebody to come over and take us some place or dance here or do something? Why I never spend an evening alone."

Peggy was close to tears. Everything was wrong. She did not mind spending evenings at home although she did want to go out some, but it had not dawned on her that she should have something planned for every minute of Nancy's visit. How could she?

"You see it's on account of my engagement. He is frightfully jealous. Perhaps with Maxine here we may be able to fix up something. I'm sorry."

Nancy pouted in silence the rest of the evening. At quarter to ten Mrs. Horton suggested that it was time for bed, since both guests must be tired. Maxine caught Peggy's eye and smiled. A smile of remembrance. This was the hour when Mrs. Horton always suggested it was time for bed. But the light always burned in her own room long after the other lights were out. Both girls had often wondered why Gran always insisted on going up to bed so early, and then remained awake so late. But no one ever questioned Gran's decisions.

Appointment of Vice Adm. R. S. Edwards, above, to newly created post of deputy commander-in-chief of the U. S. fleet and deputy chief of naval operations will probably unchain Admiral Ernest J. King from his Washington desk job, permit him to go to Pacific combat areas.

Nancy and Peggy talked as they walked back and forth between their rooms while they undressed. At least Peggy talked. She kept up a rapid fire, asking of this girl from boarding school and telling what she knew of another. She remembered Nancy's disposition of old. She must fix up something for them to do.

RELIGION IN EDUCATION

Mat. 6:7-12 - Luke 6:39-45
Golden Text—Ye shall know the truth, and the truth shall make you free. John 8:32.

"Seek ye first the Kingdom of God, and his righteousness, and all these things shall be added unto you." These were the words of Jesus to the multitudes, and to those who have acknowledged the Lord Jesus Christ as their Saviour, are now according to John, become the sons of God, and the bank of heaven is at their disposal.

We are not to be afraid or timid, but to ask, with the assurance that our requests will be granted. We have a wonderful God watching over us, who is never too tired to listen to our petitions; never travelling in some distant land when we seek him, or never too busy when we knock to open the doors of heaven to pour us out a blessing.

A Loving God

Some fathers will go to a great deal of trouble and expense to satisfy the desires of their children, yet it cannot be compared with what the Lord will do for those who love him. A loving father will never give such dangerous things as matches to a child because of the harm they might cause, and a loving God at times does not grant us the desires of our hearts when it would not be best for us.

"Whatsoever ye would that men should do to you, do ye even so to them." Let us put these words in our book of remembrance where they will never be forgotten. Let us not fail to lend a helping hand at every opportunity. Or if we are tempted to pass by a friend in need, remember the words of Jesus "As ye have done it unto one of the least of these my brethren, ye have done it unto me."

Words Of Advice

It is easy to see the ultimate result of the blind leading the blind, but what of the spiritual application? We who are so fortunate in possessing God's word, should read it, lest we be lead astray by false teachers. "By their fruits ye shall know them." Are our guides producing Godly men and women, typical of the straight and narrow way, or individuals like the many who are on the broadway which leadeth down to destruction?

Criticizing was probably as popular in the days of Christ as today. How easy to see all the faults in our neighbors, and to overlook all our own shortcomings. May we profit from these words of advice, and consider our way before casting a critical eye at those around us? "Keep thy tongue from evil."

well. More so, it is evidence that, with the aid of the Red Cross parcels, the men are fit enough to toss cabers and hammers and dance the Highland Fling. If they lacked sufficient food, or were ill-treated, they would have no "pep" to tackle such strenuous sports, which are only for the young and strong.

The public has read much about the ill-treatment of Russian and other prisoners of the Germans, hundreds of thousands having died from starvation and ill-treatment. Maybe the Germans just daren't treat Britishers, Canadians and Americans that way.

A DANGEROUS GUESSING CONTEST

The probable date when cease fire will sound in Europe is important to us because almost everyone in this country has a vital interest in the ending of hostilities. Given the approximate date, families of men overseas can begin to estimate the time which must elapse before they receive their loved ones back home again. Labor has an additional interest in the date, in planning for the transition period overlapping war production and the new production of peace time goods.

Thus, when at various times Mr. Churchill, General Eisenhower, General Montgomery, Admiral Halsey and others have attempted to give the public an idea of the length of time it would take to finish up the military campaign, their words have been read avidly.

But in the wake of such statements there has been a wave of other predictions from ten thousand minor and less informed circles. Especially since "D" Day, almost every man in the street has been taking a guess at the date of "V" Day.

All of this might be harmless, were it not for the psychological effect that the contest has on people at large. For one thing, many are led into the belief that the war is almost over and that the time has come for some relaxation at home. Further, when the war keeps its furious pace for weeks after "V" Day dates previously predicted, the morale of many people is unsettled.

In these crucial days preceding the final knockout, Canadians at home may again take their cue from Canadians at the battle fronts. Over there none marks time, waiting for Germany to collapse. They are all on their toes, fighting as energetically as at any previous period of the war. Over here our duty seems just as clear cut—a duty which calls us to work as hard as we have ever worked before, and to keep our production lines as vigorous as they have ever been before—through the purchase of Victory Loan Bonds.

TIME BOMBS

Passing resolutions may help, but not half as much as keeping them.

World Family

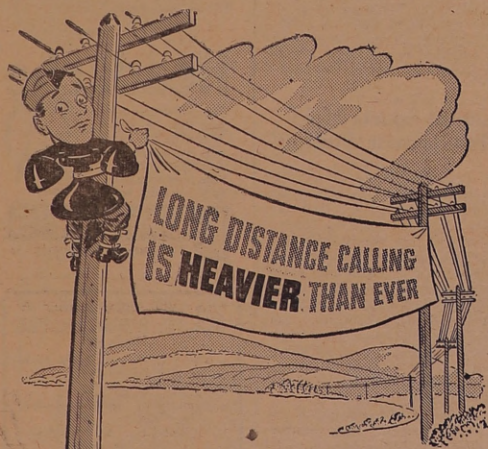

There may be a difference in the color of our skins, but there is no difference in the color of our sins.

Most people live the materialistic philosophy without knowing it, and know the Christian philosophy without living it.

We don't need another movement in the nation but the nation on the move.

There's a new plan for our post-war homes—knock down all the walls between members of the family.

The small man makes a great-to-do about himself. The great man lives to make others great.

"Our fighting men
to the limit!"

● Let us face facts in this 7th Victory Loan. Victory in Europe must be complete. Hong Kong must be avenged. No victory anywhere can satisfy until we have freed Canadian prisoners everywhere in the world—until our fighting men and women are home and re-established, they need your full support.

The cost of war has mounted as we approach the end. Your dollars are as essential now as ever before. Our forces must continue to have the finest in equipment. As long as our men and women risk their lives in battle, we at home must give our financial support to the limit.

THE HYDRO-ELECTRIC POWER COMMISSION OF ONTARIO

THE MIXING BOWL

By ANNE ALLAN
Hydra Home Economist

Hello Homemakers! The chill winds of autumn inspire a revival of the heart-warming concoctions we call soup. Especially welcome are those varieties nourishing enough to raise the standard of our daily food necessities which keep us fit—meat, vegetables and milk.

Hearty soups include chowders, cream soups, and thick vegetable soups. Some of these soups, especially chowders, are meals in themselves, with only a light entree or salad and a desert needed for balance.

The art of soup-making as portrayed in the old cook books takes time, many ingredients and much patience. But in these days when minutes are precious, short-cuts are allowed. For example, canned consomme or beef extracts may double for homemade stock. But when you buy a boned roast be sure to ask for the bones. To the bones, add some chopped onions, a few celery leaves and a sliced carrot. Cover these ingredients with plenty of water, then bring to a boil and simmer for two hours. Add salt, pepper and some herbs. Strain this broth and use it as a basis for special soups.

FOUNDATION FOR CREAM SOUPS

1 quart milk, 1 tbsp. butter, 1 tsp. chopped onion, 1 tbsp. flour, 1 tsp. salt, 1/2 tsp. white pepper, 1 speck of cayenne.

Scald milk with the onion. Melt butter, add flour and cook until frothy, but be careful not to let the butter brown; add 1 cup of hot milk slowly and cook until thickened. Return to the double boiler. Add seasonings. It is now ready to finish in any way.

ONION SOUP

Cook six peeled medium-sized onions, sliced in 3 tablespoons butter, or fat, over low heat about 10 minutes until very lightly browned. Then add 2 cans consomme and 2 cans water. Bring to boil then allow to simmer for 20 minutes. Season with salt, pepper and Worcestershire sauce. Pour into bowls, and on top of each put a slice of sauteed rye bread and sprinkle with grated nippy cheese. Serve very hot.

HAMBURG VEGETABLE CHOWDER

3/4 lb. ground beef, 3 tbsp. fat, 2 cups tomatoes, 2 medium carrots, diced 1/2 cup celery, diced, 1 medium onion chopped, 2 tsp. salt, 1/4 cup barley, 1/8 tsp. pepper, 1 1/2 qts. water, 2 cups potatoes, cubed.

Brown meat in fat. Put all ingredients except potatoes in a large kettle and simmer slowly one hour. Add potatoes and continue simmering one hour longer. Serve with toast or crackers as a main dish.

TAKE A TIP

Sandwiches for "lunchers" should not be monotonous. For the small "luncher," tuck in a surprise—sensible or funny—every day or so. Here are a few:

1. A cookie man, a tiny popcorn ball, strips of candied orange peel, a coloured, hard-cooked, pullet's egg.
2. A weiner made into a houseplant with a few branches of carrot slivers and parsley stuck in.
3. Write a riddle in a note, but give no answer till the "luncher" gets home.
4. Cut an unpeeled orange lengthwise into quarters.

There's MORE to do

On the fighting front our men are still "slugging it out". Each advance . . . each new sector . . . each mile that the battle front is extended . . . is hard going. Much fighting lies ahead.

There's more to be done on the home front, too. More money is needed to enable our country to carry her share of the war's cost.

Our duty is clear . . . we, at home, must provide the money. Canada must get this money from Canadians.

Fortunately, most of us have good incomes. We can do our share.

But it is the extra effort that wins battles and we must be prepared to make extra effort on the home front. Canada's borrowing needs have been increased by some three hundred and twenty million dollars. That's extra effort that we, at home, must make. We must provide the money that is needed . . . more money than ever before.

We must keep faith with our fighting men. We must continue to work and save . . . and lend. We must all lend more.

"This is a remarkable suit of clothes I'm wearing," a man said to his friend "The wool was grown in Australia, the cloth was made in New England, the suit was tailored in Rochester, and I bought it in Louisville. Isn't it interesting how so many people can make a living out of something I haven't even paid for,"

The war is not yet won. Our men in the fighting services are now making their most supreme effort. The Canadian people at home, for whom this war has meant so little hardship, can surely do no less.

Canada's emergence as a prime producer of high-grade iron ore is a fact of tremendous economic significance to our industrial future. The centre of this newly developing industry exists within the boundaries of Ontario and its growth has been accelerated by the advent of Steep Rock as a shipper of ore to the smelters of Ohio. As new zones of iron ore deposition are brought to light, especially those which are easily accessible and developable at low cost, we are destined to benefit from a rising industrial prosperity that amply assures a substantial future growth trend.

The claims are staked on very promising Hematite deposit, which has been found in the upper half of the quarters of a mile over three claims, and shows a well defined deposit of strong continuity of Hematite, ranging from 10 to 20 feet in thickness, and in one place One Hundred feet from south to wall. The vein runs a little South of East, going into Stringer Creek, and the Hematite is of the Hematite floc across the lake to the West side, where striping is being done. The vein continues in a constant angle, and is of a very soft material for a replacement body.

I think that it is the Diabase that has brought in the iron ore, and that the hematite is a replacement of the Hematite would show a good profit. Therefore, with widths and area, it is a very large deposit, and to see that this is a very large deposit.

In conclusion, I am very impressed with this deposit. It is the largest Hematite deposit I have ever seen apart from Step Rock.

Respectfully submitted,
(Signed) W. E. Stringer
July 10th. 1944.

A haul from tide-water to the greatest ore market in the world, the smelters on the south shore of Lake Erie, can be effected economically and profitably.

Mr. W. L. Millar, Liberal Member of Parliament for Algoma-Manitoulin, when defending the Ontario Government's One dollar per ton ore bounty, stated: "It is estimated that Canada pays the United States approximately $200,000,000 for iron and steel in various forms, and it is incumbent upon the Canadian people to rid themselves of this serious handicap, by the fullest development of an important and vital industry."

RETREATING YANK AIRMEN SCORCH EARTH IN CHINA

Photos and map above tell the story of the United Nations' defeat by Japs in China that is causing a crisis in Sino-U. S. relations. Under the relentless Jap drive to cut China in half, American air bases, most of them built by the blood and sweat of hundreds of thousands of Chinese men, women and children, have been abandoned and destroyed by the U. S. Air Forces. Thousands of tons of supplies, vitally needed ammunition and bombs, tons of precious aviation gasoline, all flown "over the Hump" at great cost in manpower and material, were put to the torch by General Chennault's men. Top photo shows Chinese toiling to build one of the "hand made" air- that destroyed runway on Kweilin Field, major 14th USAAF base, before it was abandoned. Map shows airfields given up to Japs, with broad arrows indicating enemy's prime objective—junction of its northern and southern forces.

EVENTS AND TOPICS of the WEEK in TABLOID

Hunters say ducks are very scarce but a young hound seemed to have no trouble catching one on Sunday afternoon and as soon as he got it he hurried to a plowed field and buried it.

Though we have had our first snow fall and a large flock of wild geese went overhead southward bound last week-end, the red-wing blackbirds are still in the marshes and ripe raspberries were picked along side the railroad track on Sunday afternoon.

New electric light poles 32 feet high are replacing old ones on the highway. The poles are also being moved near the road to get away from the branches of trees. Many branches will be removed. Work is being done by men of our local hydro staff under the supervision of Manager Ford.

Over 2,300 ration books were given out at the Town Hall last week. Miss M. Maher, Town Clerk, was in charge of distribution and appreciated very much the help of the following ladies: Miss N. Fox, Miss K. Purvis, Mrs. J. Whittin, Mrs. J. M. L. Birchill, Mrs. M. Huck, Mrs. R. Wessman, Mrs. F. P. Laurence and Mrs. G. Clement.

Transport Accident

The driver of a Smith's Transport had a miraculous escape Tuesday morning about 5:15 when a wheel came off the truck as he was going down the canning factory hill and over the railroad track.

The truck plowed along side the road taking off a telegraph pole and crashing through the fence opposite the office of Metcalfe Foods Ltd. In some manner the gas exploded blowing the driver from the cab which saved him from injury. The cab was destroyed by fire. Firemen were promptly on the scene but the fire confined itself to the cab and soon burnt itself out.

Gardner's New Store Now Open

One of the biggest advances in business development in Deseronto in recent years is the opening of E. J. Gardner's new store on Main Street, opposite Jackson's Restaurant.

This store shows the latest in modern equipment with fluorescent lighting, hot water heating, and attractive decorating.

The fixtures are also modern with all counters having glass tops.

New merchandise in a variety has been secured and the store can be classed with the most up-to-date seen in the district.

The outside appearance of the premises is another feature which adds to the value of the Main Street business section.

Site Chosen for New Community Rink

A special meeting of the finance and rink committees of the Chamber of Commerce was held Monday evening. The rink committee reported that the Edmon Street site opposite the Town Hall, was chosen for the erection of the Permanent Rink.

The finance committee decided to set up two separate funds to be known as the Ground Fund to cover ground work, namely leveling, draining, laying of water lines and erection of dressing rooms for the coming season. The second fund (in trust) will be designated as the Building Fund.

It is realized that steel is a vital war material and for that reason the covering cannot be erected until after the war. However, by preparing the funds as above, the younger generation will not be deprived of a skating rink for the duration.

The Chamber of Commerce have maintained the Skating Rink for a number of years. For the coming season it is necessary to spend $20.00 to repair dressing rooms and fence. It is felt that this money should be spent on a permanent site rather than on the present rink which will be vacated in favor of new site later on.

The estimates call for approximately $1200.00 for ground preparation.

Chapter IX

"Do you mind if I run downstairs and telephone, Peggy?" Nancy interrupted her. "I—I forgot to phone home that I arrived all right. You needn't come with me," she added slipping into a negligee. "I noticed tonight where the phone was."

"Go right on down then," Peggy urged. "I'll run in and say good night to Maxine while you phone."

She hurried across the hall to her sister's room when Nancy started down the stairs. "Oh, here you are," Maxine cried as Peggy entered. "I was hoping you'd get in for a good night chat. There are a million things I want to tell you and ask you."

"That's the way I feel," Peggy declared, curling herself up on the foot of her sister's bed, and watching Maxine unpack her things and put them out into the room.

"First of all," Maxine continued, "I want to know about this young man you are going to marry. Of course I realize that it is hard to make Gran, darling that she is, understand things as we see them. Nevertheless, I would never want either of us to marry anyone of whom she disapproved. I honestly feel that Gran can judge people's characters better than anyone I've ever known. So I do hope he isn't someone she doesn't like. Have you told her anything about him? You see, darling," she added sitting on the bed near Peggy, and taking both of the younger girl's hands in her own. "I'm frightfully anxious about it all, because what I really came home for was to see about you. I have the most wonderful opportunity right now. They want me to make a new picture—in England! I'm dying to do it, but I just couldn't say yes until I came here and saw how things were with you. I made up my mind that if you were unhappy I'd give up my work for a while and stay here and look after you. Then to find that you are engaged—well, it just seems that everything is working out all right for me to go to England. Or is it, little Peggy? You see, I must know." Peggy gulped. "Oh, yes, of course, Maxine. I am perfectly happy. I don't really need you, although you know how heavy only it is having you. You needn't worry about Gran and the man I'm going to marry. Everything there is splendid, only we—well we just wanted to keep it to ourselves right at first. So don't mind if I don't tell even you his name right now."

Maxine eyed her sister searchingly, then leaning forward kissed her gently. "All right, Baby, whatever you say. You know I trust your judgment and I know you would n't do anything ever that would cause either Gran or me any unhappiness."

Peggy felt that if she stayed there another minute she would be crying her heart out in her sister's arms.

"I must run back to Nancy now," she said jumping to her feet. "Good night. It's grand to have you here even for a short time. I know the English picture will be swell."

She got out of the room somehow. Under the door of her grandmother's room she could see the faint flicker of a light. She wanted awfully to knock on the door and "lip in there and tell Mrs. Horton what she had done. This was the first time she had ever deceived her grandmother and her sister and it gave her a feeling of panic. It had seemed rather fun this morning, there in the road, planning with Harry to put something over on Nancy. But actually carrying out the plan she found was no fun at all. She had counted all afternoon on telling Maxine and letting her decide what to do. And now her engagement was just the thing Maxine was delighting in. Peggy threw back her head and marched into her own room. All right, she would see it through! "Are you there, Nancy?" she called.

"Yes, I'm in bed," Nancy replied. "Come on in." She sounded all right now. Evidently her telephone talk home had helped her.

"Just a minute," Peggy called. She must put Harry's ring away in some safe place. She couldn't carry it around in her bag for a week. She would be sure to pull it out with a handkerchief or a powder puff. She looked about for a place to hide it, but her room seemed very open. The drawers of her bureau would be opened by Mary Lou when she put away the laundry. The cubby holes of her desk had letters and note paper stuffed into them. It wasn't that she doubted the honesty of any of the servants. She knew that they would never take anything, no matter what she left lying about, but she did not want anyone to see this ring. She remembered a pair of satin evening slippers she had had at school. There seemed to be no chance of wearing those now. She would stuff the ring into the toe of one of them and it would be safely out of sight.

Getting her bag from a drawer she reached in for the ring. Impatient at her inability to find it, she emptied the contents of the bag onto the bed. But no glittering diamond and sapphire ring rolled out with the coin purse, compact and handkerchief. Hastily she picked up the handkerchief and felt it, then shook it, at the first gently, then roughly, but nothing fell from it as she waved it by two corners. Frowning, she opened the coin purse and emptied that. It contained only a little silver and a few pennies. Nothing that could conceal a ring. Frightened now, she picked up the bag again, this time turning it inside out. Perhaps there was a hole in the lining. But there was not. The ring was just not there. On hands and knees she crawled under the bed staring stupidly about the dusky space. She backed out from there and moved the bureau. But it was useless. She looked in her gloves. She emptied the two top drawers. The ring was gone.

CHRONICLES OF GINGER FARM

By
Gwendoline P. Clarke

It happened at a euchre party. Someone approached the master of ceremonies and whispered in his ear. The M.C. promptly asked the people if there was anyone present with a car outside bearing the licence number 12B34. (The number is fictitious). If so the owner was wanted outside.

No one moved... nobody spoke... but I think everyone, including myself, was looking around to see who would answer the call. The players finally went on with their game.

Half an hour later the M.C. interrupted again. "There is a dog in a car outside and if the owner doesn't look after it the dog will choke to death. The licence number of the car is 12B34. Visible consternation among the players. Presently a young girl crossed the room... held a hurried consultation with an older woman who searched hastily through her purse. Car keys were unearthed from its depths and handed over to the young girl. Exit young girl.

Now I'm asking you—if someone called your motorcar licence number would you know it for your own? On that occasion I knew the number called was not mine but when I tried to think what my licence number was, for the life of me I couldn't remember. But a dog in a car—well of course, anyone would remember that.

By the way, in case dog lovers may imagine this was a case for the Humane Society, let me hasten to add, the dog was not choking to death. It was just a lonely little puppy raising his voice in protest as it waited to be collected by the person to whom it had been sold.

Well, the last three days on Ginger Farm have been a little off of the ordinary. One day we were getting ready to thresh; the next day we threshed, and today we are getting over it. Now there is plenty of grain in the bins to see us over yet another winter. Threshing is really a marvellous thing. You see the sheaves go into the great maw of the feeder where by some intricate mechanism everything is sorted out so that the grain goes into the bin via the grain spout, the straw through the blower to the back of the barn, the weeds drop down to the floor and the dust goes where the wind takes it. It is a dirty job and I never begrudge the work of getting good meals for the men—if they are good meals—that, of course is a matter of opinion. I do the best I can even if sometimes I appear to treat them badly. Yesterday, for instance, I forgot the bread at supper time. But I saw the men reaching for soda biscuits and came to my senses. That wasn't quite so bad as a friend of mine who forgot the pies. After the men had gone there were the pies, cut, but otherwise untouched, still on a side table in the dining-room. When the table is so crowded with men, food and dishes, it is the easiest thing in the world to leave something out.

AS THE MEN COME HOME

Ask the fellow overseas what makes his pulse go up every time he thinks of home. You'll find that his mind, under the battle strain of mud and blood, has made him idealize everything back home.

But some of these men have already come home. And they don't find it quite the way they expected after the first forty-eight hour flush has worn off. Mother still seems worried. Dad is even more irritable than he used to be. The kids start bawling. And then the newspapers—strikes in industry, political bickering, pressure groups. Is this the home and country I dreamed of?

So he switches from idealizing to criticizing. The crucial hour for him—and for Canada—begins. If he gets mentally and spiritually ditched in bogs of grouching, that means Canada is in for a pack of trouble. Bitter and cynical, he becomes the breeding ground for broken homes and civil war in industry.

But he doesn't need to stall there. Some fellows separated from their families for years have found an answer. Not, idealize. Not, criticize. But, realize! Realize, for one thing, the possibility of clean-cut honesty with wife and kids, honesty about money, the budget, the job, the in-laws. Honesty about yourself instead of pointing scolding fingers at the other person. Honesty that wins because it warms with real caring. These two things alone—honesty and real caring—can give the family so much to fight for, in themselves and in the country, that they won't waste time fighting against each other.

If this is good policy for the fellows coming back, it's twice as good for us here at home—and we will show them the way!

TIME BOMBS

National character is the core of national strength.

The future of Canada is not so much a matter of how we vote as of how we live.

Telling others they are wrong is easy. Showing others what is right is harder. Nobody can give to others what he hasn't got himself.

A man's work brings him more credit if he does not care who gets the credit.

It is cutting remarks that divide a home—not the clean-cut decisions.

Self-discipline goes out when self-pity comes in.

Our forefathers shed their blood for the right to vote.

Our problem seems to be to shed our apathy—and vote right.

Unity is more agreeing on what we like or whom we hate. It is a fundamental agreement on what is right.

Before you blame your telephone...

CHECK THIS DISTANCE

Engineers designed the mouthpiece of your telephone to give best results at one-quarter of an inch from the lips. When your lips are farther away than this, your voice is transmitted less strongly... less clearly.

Failure to remember these simple facts accounts for the great majority of "trouble" reports.

Help avoid needless service check-ups, and at the same time let those you talk to hear you without strain. Just remember: Talk clearly, normally, directly into the telephone, with your lips just one-quarter of an inch from the mouthpiece.

On Active Service

Giving Wings to Words

Smoking while you talk may cause distorted reception. It also prevents your holding the mouthpiece directly in front of the lips.

If you need to reach across your desk as you talk, continue to hold the telephone in correct position, close to the lips.

A wall set can't come to you; stand or sit so that your lips are directly in front of and close to the mouthpiece. Don't "talk across" it.

For clear, noise-free transmission, always keep your telephone upright—neither at or near the horizontal position.

C.P.R. Plans for Future

H. J. Humphrey

E. D. Cotterell

LONG-RANGE planning for the transition of the Canadian Pacific Railway Company from a war to a peacetime basis was foreshadowed recently when H. J. Coleman, Chairman and President, announced the assignment of H. J. Humphrey, formerly Vice-President of the Company's Eastern Lines, to special duties.

Mr. Humphrey's exceptionally wide experience, extensive public contacts and comprehensive knowledge will be devoted primarily to the solution of problems that will confront the Company in the period of transition from war to peace; Mr. Coleman said. Mr. Humphrey is now located at the Company's headquarters in Montreal.

He is succeeded as vice-president, Eastern Lines, by E. D. Cotterell, formerly general manager, Eastern Lines, who is promoted to vice-president and general manager, with headquarters in Toronto. Both Mr. Humphrey and Mr. Cotterell report to W. M. Neal, C.B.E., Vice-President of the Company. The appointments became effective October 1.

These changes again bring into the spotlight two officials who have each made great contributions to the steady advancement of Canadian railroading and have devoted their entire lives to the development of this vital phase of Canadian life.

Training and Education—Doorways to Opportunity

SOCIAL SECURITY MEASURES

In planning Canada's re-establishment program, its framers worked with one principal idea in mind. This was that the only answer to the problem of permanent re-establishment is a job, and that the surest way to get and hold that job is by the skill necessary for it.

VOCATIONAL TRAINING

Every ex-service man or woman who will be assisted in re-establishment by training is eligible to have it. There is provision for paying fees for all courses and, in addition, the ex-service man or woman may receive maintenance grants up to:

$60 monthly if single;
$80 monthly for a man and his wife, together with children's allowances.

This training is available for the period of service to a maximum of one year, but can be extended beyond that period, if necessary, and if service is more than one year.

EDUCATIONAL TRAINING

This is available to all who are admitted to university within 15 months of discharge and, as in vocational training, fees are paid and there are maintenance allowances up to:

$60 monthly for a single man;
$80 monthly for a man and his wife, together with allowances for dependent children.

These allowances will be continued on a month for month basis of the time in the services, providing all examinations are passed. Outstanding students may have assistance continued to completion of the course.

SOCIAL SECURITY MEASURES

Under the re-establishment program Canada's veterans who, within 18 months of discharge from the services, become ill or unemployed may draw maintenance allowances up to $50 if single and $70 for a man and his wife, together with children's allowances. The out-of-work benefits are for those fit and able to work, but for whom there is no work immediately available. In the case of serious illness there is free treatment and hospitalization for any condition in the year following discharge.

As a further security measure, every veteran who enters insurable employment is entitled, after 15 weeks in that employment, to unemployment insurance credit as though the whole period in the services since July 1, 1941, had been spent in the insurable employment.

VETERANS' WELFARE OFFICERS ARE STATIONED IN KEY CENTRES THROUGHOUT CANADA. THEY ADVISE AND ASSIST EX-SERVICE PERSONNEL, AND SHOULD BE CONSULTED ON ALL PROBLEMS.

THE MIXING BOWL

By ANNE ALLAN

Hydre Home Economist

Hello Homemakers. There'll be no spoofin' about helping mother if you tell the children that they may have a quota of fresh doughnuts to be made for Hallowe'en eve.

The children may do lots of jobs such as sweeping, dusting and running errands while mother makes the fritters. The hot fat, used for cooking, is too dangerous for the children to work with and mother has to be Johnny-on-the-spot while the doughnuts are being made.

Here are a few good recipes.

CREAM DOUGHNUTS

1 egg, slightly beaten, 1 egg yolk, slightly beaten, 1/2 cup sugar, 3 tbsps heavy cream, 3/4 cup milk, 1/2 tsp. lemon extract, 2 cups bread flour, 1 tsp. salt, 3 tsp. baking powder, 1/4 tsp. nutmeg.

Add sugar slowly to eggs, add cream milk and extract. Sift flour, salt baking powder and nutmeg 4 times, and add to first mixture. Shape and fry.

RAISED DOUGHNUTS

1 cup scalded milk, 1/4 yeast cake dissolved in 1/4 cup lukewarm water, 1 tsp. salt, 1 1/2 cups butter or lard mixed, 1 cup light brown sugar, 2 eggs, 1/2 tsp. nutmeg, 2 cups flour.

Cool milk to lukewarm, add yeast cake in water, salt, and flour enough to make a stiff batter. Let rise overnight. Add melted shortening, sugar, eggs, nutmeg and flour. Let rise again. If too soft to handle, add more flour. Turn on floured board, pat and roll 1/4 inch thick. Cut out with biscuit cutter and work between hands until round. Place on floured board, let rise 1 hour, turn, and let rise again. Fry.

CRULLERS

5 tbsps. sugar, 1 tsp. salt, 1 cup scalded milk, 2 tbsps. lard, 1/2 yeast cake dissolved in 2 tbsps. lukewarm water, 3 cups flour.

Add sugar, salt and lard to scalded milk. When lukewarm, add dissolved yeast cake and 1 cup flour. Cover, let rise until light, and add 2 cups flour. Turn on a slightly floured board and knead. Cover, again and let rise, and knead. repeat. Pat and roll 1/2 inch thick. Cut in strips 8 inches long and 3/4 inch wide. Put on board, cover, and let rise. Twist several times and pin ends together. Makes 24 to 30 crullers.

CHOCOLATE DOUGHNUTS

3/4 cup butter, 1 1/4 cups sugar, 2 eggs, well beaten, 1 1/2 squares melted chocolate, 1 cup sour milk, 4 cups flour, 1 tsp. soda, 1 tsp. cinnamon, 1/4 tsp. salt, 1 1/2 tsp. vanilla.

Cream butter and add sugar gradually, while beating constantly; then add eggs, melted chocolate, sour milk, and flour, mixed and sifted with soda, cinnamon and salt. Add vanilla and enough more flour to handle mixture. Shape and fry. Makes 30 to 36.

TAKE A TIP

Do's and don'ts for shaping and frying doughnuts are:

1. Use only one-third of dough at one time. Put it on a lightly floured board, knead slightly, pat and roll out 1/4 inch.
2. Use 2/3 lard and 1/3 beef suet dripping for fat or vegetable fat.

3. Use a fat thermometer or drop an inch cube of bread into hot fat; if it is golden brown in 40 seconds, fat is about 300 degrees, and if in 60 seconds, at about 370 degrees.

4. Put a small number in at a time to prevent lowering temperature.

5. Doughnuts should come quickly to top of fat, brown on one side, then be turned to brown on other. Avoid turning more than once (except sour milk doughnuts).

6. Keep electric element on high or medium, whichever holds constant temperature. If too hot, the doughnuts will brown before sufficiently risen. If too cold, doughnuts will absorb fat.

EAST MEETS WEST—AND LIKES IT

The friendly relations Allied fighters quickly establish with people whose lands and ways are strange to them is symbolized in this photo of one of our lads giving a light to a native of Pongchung, China. The soldier was with the forces which drove out the Japs permitting refugees like his friend to return to their homes.

Mephitis Is Good Friend Of Farmer

The skunk isn't at all a bad chap to know, comments The New York Times. His reputation, based on smell, does not do him justice. Anyone who has seen a mother skunk lead her brood of little ones in single file across a lawn at dusk, each tiny fellow with his tail held aloft like a banner, has seen one of the most appealing sights in Nature's museum...

He is a good friend of the farmer in spite of an occasional foray on the chicken coop. He eats tremendous quantities of May beetles and their grubs; he consumes many field mice which eat the bark of trees, the heads of timothy and the grains of oats, wheat and buckwheat. Repeated surveys by biologists have proved that 'Stripe Suit' more than earns his way...

When the time of cold arrives, he goes into semi-hibernation in a rabbit or wood-chuck hole, beneath an old building, or occasionally digs his own burrow. The countryman has a folklore saying that if skunks come around the farm buildings in numbers during the fall, it means a long, hard winter. Mephitis has a drawback in polite society, but he sets a good example in sobriety of action, and tends strictly to his own affairs if the world leaves him alone.

More Good Advice About Loaded Guns

In our estimation, (Trenton Courier-Advocate), and we have handled all sorts of guns under different circumstances and not always in familiar haunts, we would say that every last accident with a gun in which some person is killed or injured, is the result of carelessness.

It is unsafe to be travelling around with a loaded gun in your car. Besides it is illegal. The same law does not hold for a boat or a canoe but there should be a law. No person should get into a boat with a loaded gun in his hand, and no person should leave a boat without unloading his gun.

There are many things to think about when handling guns, either loaded or unloaded, and chief among them is never to point a gun at anybody. Never pick up a gun by the muzzle and never drag it through a fence by the danger end.

Royal Navy Ships Moving To Pacific

A. V. Alexander, First Lord of the Admiralty, said last week that the Royal Navy already had a formidable fleet in the Indian Ocean and that plans to move warships to the Pacific were going ahead rapidly.

He told a meeting of seamen that the British home fleet constantly was on guard against any activity by what remains of the German fleet, which he said still must be considered seriously.

Mr. Alexander disclosed that 9,000 convoys have entered or cleared through United Kingdom ports since the war began.

CANADIANS BATTLE BOCHE NEAR SCHELDE RIVER

In the heavy fighting to drive the Huns out of Belgium, rated as one of the toughest struggles of the war, the skilled and heroism of Canadian soldiers has played a tremendous part. Some of the men engaged in this bitter campaign are shown above. Upper left: Lieut. L. W. Spurr, Middleton, N.S. directs fire on an enemy position from an advanced command post near the Schelde River. Upper right: Two miles from the Schelde river, Gur. R. Leclerc, Quebec City, Bdr. O. McIntosh, Fort Francis, Ont., and Gnr. J. Koropelnicki, Grande Prairie, Alta. open fire on a German position temporarily holding up a Canadian advance. Lower left: Fort De Schooten, built in 1885 by the Belgians, was but one of scores of similar German strong points stormed by Canadian troops. Pictured strolling around the interior of the captured fort are members of the famous Western Canadian regiment which took it. Lower right: members of a Canadian regiment in Belgium are seen climbing the steps at the entrance to Antwerp Harbour, a few hours after the German defenders had been driven out.

STARS MEET

"Very touching" was the report of the recent meeting in Paris of screen star Marlene Dietrich and Maurice Chevalier, famous French stage and screen comedian. Since Allied liberation of France, Chevalier had been variously reported under arrest or shot by FFI forces as a collaboratorist, a charge which his friends deny. La Dietrich is now in France, entertaining Allied troops.

These two lads are tough...they have to be...they're members of one of Canada's famous tank regiments. They indulge in a few minutes of "horse-play" in front of their tank with Dutch head-dress tucked into their berets. Canadian Army cameraman caught this pose somewhere in Holland.

AACHEN DEFENDERS CRY "KAMERAD"

100 Blood Donors At Monthly Clinic

The Regular Monthly Blood Donor Clinic was held in the Legion Canteen on Thursday morning with 100 donating their blood to the Red Cross.

Over 80 members were from Camp Mohawk and only 18 civilians from town and country.

In fact the total reached 99 and Mr. F. R. Brooks, secretary of the Clinic at Kingston, offered in order to make the 100 mark.

This makes the 14th donation for Mr. Brooks who always accompanies the doctors and nurses from Kingston each month. Mrs. Bervin assisted those in charge at the clinic.

Members of the Ladies' Auxiliary prepared refreshments for the donors and were kept quite busy. Those assisting were, Mrs. W. Maracle, Mrs. E. Sharpe, Mrs. H. Kettle, Mrs. J. Claire, Mrs. T. Parrott, Mrs. O. Oliner, Mrs. B. Atkinson, Mrs. H. Fraser, Mrs. R. Hawley and Mrs. W. Perlick. The list of donors was not available for this week's paper.

RED CROSS NEEDS 5,000 BLOOD DONATIONS DAILY

Dr. John T. Phair, chairman of the Canadian Red Cross National Blood Donors Committee, has issued an appeal to Canadians to become blood donors. He said the Canadian Red Cross needs 5,000 donations of blood daily for battlefield casualties in Europe.

Almost all Blood Donor Clinics were below their quotas and in one week alone, the society was 7,000 donations short of its objective.

WOMEN SPEED MAIL TO BOYS OVERSEAS

It's women's hands that sort the four and a half million letters sent monthly to the members of Canada's armed forces overseas and these same women's hands now are busy speeding a flood of Christmas mail which the Post Office Department reports is the heaviest military mail volume on record.

The Canadian Women's Army Corps and the Royal Canadian Air Force (Women's Division) have detailed extra staffs to work with other girls in uniform at the Base Post Office and with the Canadian Postal Corps.

Citizens of Deseronto, who were fortunate enough to receive tickets to the Travelling Show, put on at Camp Mohawk last Wednesday night, certainly enjoyed it and appreciated the kindness shown them.

On Tuesday afternoon pupils of the Public School enjoyed a social time in honor of Halloween. Several grotesque figures were noticed on their way to school. A treat was also provided and all enjoyed a good time.

The Ladies Euchre Club held their first get-together of the Fall at the home of Mrs. Harold Topping on Wednesday evening last. Winners for the evening were Mrs. Roy Sharpe, Mrs. H. Fraser and Mrs. S. Brown (travelling). Refreshments were served at the close of the evening.

Military Band Heads Victory Loan Parade

Although the rain dampened the streets early on Saturday afternoon it did not prevent the citizens from turning out to watch the Victory Loan Parade.

The R.C.A. Military Brass Band from Kingston headed the parade which started from the High School grounds down Dundas to Fourth then to Main and the Park where the speakers' stand was placed.

A squadron of airmen from No. 1 I.F.S., Camp Mohawk, Veterans of Canadian Legion, Girl Cadets in their white blouses, blue skirts and red socks, Public School children in decorated trucks and Boy Cadets in army trucks made up the parade.

Speeches over the loud speaker of the sound truck from Camp Mohawk could be heard for blocks around and was much appreciated as it is usually difficult to hear when so many are gathered together.

J. J. Trudeau, General Chairman of Hastings County War Finance Committee, Rev. H. A. Bunt and Mayor S. Wessman spoke briefly on behalf of the Loan.

The Military Band was much enjoyed by all citizens of the town.

LOCAL HUNTERS READY

Undaunted by a recognized scarcity of ammunition for their high powered rifles and dependent almost entirely upon a reserve of shells treasured like gold, local nimrods are preparing for their annual trek to the northland with the next week-end expected to see most of the hunting camps established.

Despite the inability to get additional shells, sales of hunting licences are quite at par with the level of other years it is reported, with many hunters already having made application with expectancy of getting away to camp during the latter part of this week. The hunting season commences the first Monday in November, which this year falls on the sixth.

FRONT-LINE AIR SCHOOL

In the shadow of a bombed out Nazi hangar, Thunderbolt pilots receive instructions from a supercharger specialist at a front-line classroom of the Technical Training Command.

Only a few miles behind the front, a mobile unit of the Army Air Forces Western Technical Training Command is holding classes. It's a strange place for school sessions, but at these front line fields it is most important to "keep 'em flying."

Here, too, it is hardest to get just the right spare part when something goes wrong. Instructors are giving front-line air and ground crews tips on how to keep 'em flying longer, and how to mend-and-make-do when the part the manual calls for is missing. 0

The first mobile unit was built over two years ago. Today, there are more than 110 of these units scattered in the four Allied corners of the earth. More than 35 of them are in the European Theater of Operations.

Each mobile classroom consists of one five-ton trailer, into which are stowed mockups—plane engines cut away; the plane's electrical system, its hydraulic system, etc. Each unit is designed to be used for one kind of aircraft, but there are units for every type of ship the Army uses for frontline operation.

Chapter X

In real alarm Peggy hurried into Nancy's room. She found her guest propped up among her pillows reading a motion picture magazine she had brought with her.

"I thought you were never coming," Nancy said looking up from her magazine.

"Do you remember what I did with my ring this afternoon when I took it off at the station?" Peggy demanded.

"Put it in your bag. Why?" "Are you sure? Sure I put it in! I didn't drop it, did I?"

"No, of course you didn't. I remember seeing you drop it in and then close the bag. Why? Can't you find it?"

"No," Peggy cried in dismay. "It isn't in there, and I've looked everywhere."

"You probably haven't half looked," said Nancy. Throwing back the sheet, she jumped out of bed and stopping only long enough to slip her bare feet into high-heeled mules she hurried into the next room. But after a few minutes' search she had to admit the ring seemed to be nowhere in sight.

"I'll call Maxine," Peggy said, slipping across the hall to her sister's room.

Maxine, too, was sure that she had seen her sister drop the ring into her bag. Carefully she went through the things on the bed.

"Now, there's no use in getting excited," she said looking about her. "Get out the dress you had on today."

Just then the telephone in the lower hall rang. All three of the girls stopped and stared at each other in astonishment. They had not realized how quiet everything about the house had been, until they heard that shrill sound. Telephones did not ring often late at night at Rosewood. It rang again.

"I'll go," Peggy ran out of the room and swiftly down the stairs. The other two followed her into the upstairs hall.

"Hello," she called. "Yes, Who? Miss Truheart? Yes—just a minute. I'll call her."

Maxine was already coming down the steps. Peggy handed her the receiver and started up the stairs.

"Hello," Maxine answered. "Well, for heaven's sake. Where did you come from? What a detective you are to have found me here!"

"Listen!" Nancy cried grabbing Peggy's arm. "Did you hear that? It's a detective." Peggy had gone back to her room, her mind still occupied with the loss of Harry's ring. She was only half conscious of what either Maxine or Nancy had said. But Nancy persisted.

"Did you hear? It's a detective she's talking to. Do you suppose she'll tell him about the ring being gone? And maybe get him out here?"

Peggy stared at her a moment in silence. "I wonder if she could," she cried. She rushed back to the hall, and hurriedly tiptoed down the stairs again. "Maxine!" she was calling in a loud whisper. "Don't hang up. Ask him if he can't come out here and help us find the ring!"

"What?" Maxine asked looking up at her sister in astonishment. "What are you talking about? No, not you," she added into the phone. "My sister. Wait just a minute. What is it, Peggy?"

"You called him a detective," Peggy explained. "And I wondered if you couldn't get him to come out here and help us find the ring. I don't know who he is, but there aren't any detectives in Marshville and I certainly need someone. Ask him anyway, won't you?"

Maxine stood staring at her a second, then nodded her head. "Run on back upstairs and keep looking and I'll ask him."

Peggy's teeth were chattering now from excitement, even though the night was warm. She rushed back up the steps. Nancy was still leaning over the railing, listening.

"I think maybe he'll come," Peggy told her. "Come on—I'm e-cold."

"Well, I think it's a perfectly dumb idea to get a detective out here to look for your ring," Nancy said in disgust. "He'll ask a lot of questions. Then what will you say? Your grandmother will have to know all about everything."

"Oh, dear," Peggy was almost in tears. "I didn't think about that. But you suggested it," she said, turning to look at Nancy in surprise.

"I did not," Nancy cried. "I was just trying to warn you in case Maxine suggested it. I'll go tell her not to let him come." But as she started towards the door they heard Maxine on the stairs, and a moment later she came in the room.

"Well, he's coming in the morning," she announced.

"How are you going to explain Peggy's ring to Mrs. Horton?" demanded Nancy.

Maxine stared stupidly at both girls, then collecting herself she crossed the room to Peggy.

"You will have to tell Gran all about it, honey," she said, putting her arm around her sister's shoulder.

"Oh, but I can't Maxine!" Peggy's hands were twisting in her lap, and she was on the verge of tears. What should she do? "I know," she sat up suddenly. "We'll tell Gran it's Nancy's ring!"

"Mine?" Nancy exclaimed. "Why mine?"

"I had told Gran before you came that you were engaged and she doesn't know you have broken the engagement. So she will think you have lost your engagement ring here, and won't question it. Oh, Nancy, please!"

Bomb-Blasted Trees Grow New Leaves

London trees, stripped of foliage by flying-bomb blast, have grown new leaves. An official of the Natural History Museum explains why this has happened.

The premature removal of this year's foliage at a time when the weather was still mild had enabled the little waiting leaf-buds to grow up earlier than usual. Normally Winter weather would have delayed their growth till next Spring.

I'VE GOT ONE GOOD EYE LEFT!

Under the shadow of the solemn Peace Tower on Parliament Hill, a 23 year old veteran of this war appeared before the microphone ready to signal the launching of a new warship at Lauzon, Quebec.

Before a huge crowd, gathered to take part in the inspiring opening ceremony for the Seventh Victory Loan Campaign, he was briefly questioned by the Master of Ceremonies about his record overseas. He was Lieutenant Erskine Grant Travers of Summerside, Prince Edward Island.

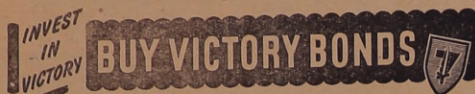

"And you were wounded?" said the Master of Ceremonies, "Yes" replied Travers modestly, and then added quickly with a note of thankfulness in his voice, "but I've one good eye left and that's better than none."

There were many in that crowd on Parliament Hill whose throats were tightened by a sudden realization of the tremendous significance which lay behind the simple words of this repatriated soldier. And his statement remains significant as the Seventh Victory Loan Campaign proceeds.

An eye cannot be replaced. Money can. If Canadians are imbued with the same spirit as this repatriated Prince Edward Islander has displayed and people in all provinces can be thankful that they have a great deal more money left than is necessary for the minimum success of the Seventh Victory Loan Campaign, there will again be a huge over-subscription.

Too much analysis brings on paralysis.

Men who are bent on serving their nation keep their sense of values straight.

CANADA'S VETERANS
Their Post-War Opportunities

This is the Fourth in a series of advertisements to inform the people of Canada of plans to re-establish men and women of the armed forces. To get full details, save and read every advertisement.

For complete information, write for the booklet, "Back to Civil Life."

Home and Farm Ownership — The Man Who Wants His Own Business

There are two ways in which Canada's service people can have homes of their own. One measure, the Veterans' Land Act, provides assistance in financing homes on small acreages of land outside the high taxation area, while the re-establishment credit may be used for purchase or building of a home in town or city. Low cost financing is available under the National Housing Act. Under the Veterans' Land Act, assistance is given in financing up to a maximum of $4800 for land and buildings. The veteran must be prepared to pay down 10 per cent of the cost of land and buildings and the property is then sold to him for this down payment plus two-thirds of the cost. This balance may be financed, if necessary, over 25 years, with interest at 3½ per cent. A further grant may be made for purchase of equipment.

The veteran is given title to the property, including the grant of 23½ per cent of the cost of land and buildings and the money for equipment, after he has lived up to his agreement for ten years.

If the re-establishment credit is used for a home, the veteran must be prepared to put up one dollar for every two dollars used from it. This type of assistance may be applied for at any time within 10 years of discharge.

FARMERS AND COMMERCIAL FISHERMEN

Veterans qualified for full time farming and for commercial fishing may receive assistance in purchasing a farm or home under the Veterans' Land Act in the same way as the veteran wanting a home on a small acreage, outside the high taxation area. In the case of full time farming, an additional grant of $1200 is available for purchase of stock and equipment, and in commercial fishing the commercial fisherman may receive up to $1200 to buy needed fishing equipment. To benefit under any of the three provisions of the Veterans' Land Act, the ex-service man or woman must have overseas service or at least 12 months' service in Canada.

TO ASSIST BUSINESSMEN

One purpose for which the re-establishment credit may be used is to buy a business or to provide working capital for a business. Here again application may be made at any time in the 10 years after discharge.

In addition to using the re-establishment credit in this way, people who start their own businesses, or farmers, may draw maintenance grants, during the period they are awaiting returns from the business or the farm. These grants may be paid in the first 18 months after discharge, for the period of service, and up to a maximum of one year.

VETERANS' WELFARE OFFICERS ARE STATIONED IN KEY CENTRES THROUGHOUT CANADA. THEY ADVISE AND ASSIST EX-SERVICE PERSONNEL, AND SHOULD BE CONSULTED ON ALL PROBLEMS.

BLACK DAWN

By VICTOR ROSSEAU

CHAPTER VII SYNOPSIS

Dave Bruce, out of a job, arrives at Wilbur Ferris' Cross-Bar ranch, Curran, the foreman, promises him a job if he can break a horse called Black Dawn. Dave succeeds, only to discover that Curran expected the horse to kill him. A girl named Lois rides up just as Dave has hit Curran. She is angry with Dave for breaking "her" horse. She rides off on Black Dawn, and Dave follows, ed and when he's not. Get her away from here. But there's something I've got to tell you, Dave. I've got the feeling that my time's short."

"Steady, old-timer," Dave interrupted. "You're just remembering that dream of yore. Dreams don't mean nothing. Of course you can trust me, but don't tell me nothing now that you might be sorry for later."

"It's not that, Dave. No. I've been slowly putting two and two together since Loneragan offered

"It's just the—the loneliness, Dave—" but she refuses to speak to him. Later, in a bar, Dave pays off a mortgage for an old man named Hooker, who offers him a partnership. They go to Hooker's ranch where Dave finds that Lois is Hooker's daughter. Lois, still angry, leaves and has not returned when Hooker awakes several hours later.

"I dreamed my wife came to me and said my troubles would soon be over," Hooker muttered. "I tell you, Dave, there comes a time in every man's life when he doesn't want to go on living any more. A pest, that's what Loneragan called me. I reckon he was right. Yes, I remember taking you in as partner, and I'm not sorry for it. But if anything happens to me, I want you to take care of Lois. She never had a chance, poor kid."

"You can trust me to do that," answered Dave, looking steadily into Hooker's eyes.

"I know I can. I know it, boy. I'm an old, drunken pest, but I can see when a man's to be trust-me and my wife this mesa—ranch, he called it—on condition we'd bring up Lois as our daughter and never let her know. I thought she was a natural child of his. But she's not.

"She found out I wasn't her dad almost at once, and that my wife wasn't her mother. You see, she's got a locket with her mother's photograph in it, which we didn't know about. Lois was just old enough to remember her when we took her from the orphanage."

"Well, I've been trying to piece things together, why Loneragan wanted me and my wife to bring Lois here, and why Wilbur Ferris is afraid of him. It all goes back to the time when Ferris and Blane Rowland went into partnership in the valley, some fifteen or sixteen years ago."

"Those were prosperous times, and the Cross-Bar was doing well. Rowland and Ferris were both steady, quiet fellows, and Ferris had brought Rowland West to invest his capital in the Cross-Bar. Then Rowland forged Ferris' name to a joint check for about twenty thousand dollars, on the bank in Hampton, which was to be used for buying stock in Mexico, and skipped the country."

"I dunno how Loneragan came into the picture. Maybe there was some crooked work all around, but he's got Wilbur Ferris where he wants him now. He's got a mortgage on the Cross-Bar, and he put Curran in to run things the way he wants them."

"How d'you come to meet up with Loneragan, if it ain't an im-

Cornmeal Dutch Apple Cake

Cornmeal goes grandly with apples—as this delicious dessert will prove! Serve it hot from the oven, with cream; or try something unusual, and serve this hot apple corn-cake with crisp sausages or bacon, as a hearty luncheon or supper dish.

1 1/2 cup Saxon Brand (pastry) Flour
OR 1 cup and 1 tablespoon Quaker (hard-wheat) Flour
4 teaspoon baking powder
5/8 teaspoon salt
5 1/2 tablespoons shortening

Sift the flour once before measuring. Add baking powder and salt, and sift again. To the soft shortening, add sugar; combine thoroughly. Beat and add the egg. Add milk and Quaker Cornmeal. Mix thoroughly. Let stand, while peeling two apples and cutting in eighths.

Add dry ingredients to cornmeal mixture and combine well. Spread in greased 8-inch pan. Cover with the apple wedges, pressing down edges into batter. Sprinkle with brown sugar, then with cinnamon. Bake in moderately hot oven, 375°, for 25 to 30 minutes. Cut in squares and serve hot—with cream if as dessert, with crisp sausage or bacon, if a main-course.

NOTE—If desired, the mixture may be baked in greased muffin pans, for individual Dutch Apple Cakes.

pertinent question?" asked Dave. "Why, I—well, I'd done something I shouldn't have done, and I'd come West. Loneragan was acting-sheriff in Mesal at the time, and he recognized me from the description and photograph when I hit Mesal, supposing that it had all been forgotten. It was something I did when I'd been drinking and got desperate. But I couldn't have been all Loneragan says I am, because my wife stuck to me till she died."

"Well, Dave, I had to do what Loneragan said, or face a term in the penitentiary. You're the first man I've told that to. So there was I, with my wanderings cut short, and anchored to this place, with my wife and the girl."

"Just what was Loneragan's idea, d'you s'pose?" asked Dave.

"That's what I'm slowly figuring out, Dave," Hooker answered. "And I don't know either why he tried to put me off this mesa, when I'd never paid a cent to him all these twelve years, unless it was because I threatened him when I'd been drinking. Maybe I'm just an old pest, like Loneragan says, but I'm on the trail of something, and I've got my own suspicions."

That cunning look was in old Hooker's eyes again. He reached out for the bottle. Dave intervened.

"I guess you've had enough to sober up on, partner," he suggested. "Why don't you go to sleep now and take one more drink when you wake up. That will set you plumb to rights."

"Must have one more," pleaded Hooker. "Then I'll have a good sleep, and wake up feeling fine. I won't want another drink after that. I'm through with liquor for life. It's just the—the loneliness, Dave."

He drained the bottle and handed it to Dave. "Well, that's the last of it," he leered, "so you won't need to worry partner. Throw that bottle away somewhere where Lois won't find it, or she'll give me the devil. You've promised me you'll look out for her if anything happens to me. And now I'm going to tell you something I've suspected—something that's going to solve the mystery—"

The sentence was cut off abruptly by the roar of a six-gun. Smoke and the acrid stench of powder filled the room. Hooker slipped back upon his pillow, the sentence uncompleted, and lay still. Dave saw a little blue spot on his left temple, from which a stream of blood was trickling.

Troops In Italy Buy Victory Bonds

Canadians in Italy, given a $1,000,000 objective in their country's Fifth Victory Loan, bought 16,300 bonds worth $1,210,600 from October 25 to November 6, it was announced last week.

Acres of posters and other advertising helped put the loan across. Signs told the troops—"Bonds buy bullets—bonds buy victory—a bond is a ticket home."

A wrecked jeep hung from a crane at a cross-roads, bearing a sign saying bonds would buy a new one.

A personal message from the commander at the start of the campaign asked the men to consider the advantages of the loan, particularly when the time for

WAR WORK DEMANDS THIS Vitality Element

NO OTHER NATURAL CEREAL GIVES IT SO RICHLY

With less meat today, wise women are happy to know that by serving Quaker Oats for breakfast, they can give their hard-working family a rich source of meat's main element—protein. No other natural cereal is so rich in this vital factor for energy and growth as whole-grain oatmeal. And it is richest of all natural cereals in Vitamin B₁ needed for sound nerves and energy! No wonder more families than ever are calling Quaker Oats daily a "must" for wartime diets.

individual post-war re-establishment came. Officers and troops got into the spirit of the campaign and units and higher formations vied with one another for the highest totals. This was scored by gunners of a light anti-aircraft unit who subscribed $101,000 and, with gunners in anti-tank and field artillery regiments subscribed $267,000.

Headquarters personnel, including senior officers, subscribed $28,000. A busy little mobile bath unit was represented with a total of $700 while tankmen reached $178,000.

French-speaking troops subscribed $65,000 more than any other infantry unit.

CLOTHES ARE NO. 1 WORRY

"You be the mannequin, Charlie," was what Queen Elizabeth said to this elderly worker in a London clothing depot. The sheepskin coat he is trying on will go to the Royal Navy. Although clothing is the foremost problem of civilians, there is plenty for the military forces.

Britain's No. 1 home-front worry today is the clothing shortage. Worry No. 2 is contacting relatives abroad—in the Services and in enemy-occupied territories. Worry No. 3 is about service conditions and pay. Worry No. 4 covers family troubles.

These have developed during four years of war. Back in 1939 chief headaches were:

1. Evacuation billets. 2. Conscription problems. 3. Unemployment. 4. Money.

As the war has proceeded, officials running England's Citizens' Advice Bureaus have discovered that people's troubles in many instances have been completely reversed. And they should know. In the four years since the war started, 7,500,000 citizens have taken their troubles to the C.A.B.

The first bureaus opened their doors barely one week after England declared war on Germany. There were less than a dozen of them scattered through the British Isles. Today 1060 bureaus are operating. The first year the C.A.B. handled 1,000,000 worries. In the second year the figure jumped to 1,750,000, then to 2,225,000 for the third year, reaching an imposing total of 2,500,000 in the fourth.

Since 1939, millions of workers' concern has switched from the bogey of unemployment to excessive demands for their labor. Again, well into 1940, landlords had vacant houses, sometimes even entire blocks of apartments on their hands. Today, unfurnished houses and apartments are practically unobtainable. Rents of furnished places are from 100 to 150 per cent higher, and there is wholesale profiteering all over the line.

Concern about missing relatives started with Dunkirk and now the bureaus are beset by anxious families to get news of next-of-kin in the Near and Far East, and right now, of men who have been made prisoners in Italy.

Within the last few months the Citizens' Advice Bureaus have been training people for post-war welfare work, which includes the tracing of relatives as well as solving the new kinds of problems which will come with the return of men and women in the services to civilian life.

THE MIXING BOWL

By ANNE ALLEN
Hydro Home Economist

Hello Homemakers. The taste for apples is enthused for their mild aroma and the satisfaction of good munching. However, the various ways in which apples can be used are numerous and can be served often if you watch the proportions of sugar.

Nowdays we don't buy apples by the barrel—at least most of us don't. Our recent purchase of a basket of Duchess apples and our quota of one pound of sugar has been used as an experiment to find out what could be done with them. It was found that a family of six could have five different desserts which used every apple and one pound of sugar. Of course, there could be no guesswork allowed in the sugar measurements; yet we agreed the foods were sweet enough.

Applesauce was made from six apples cut up and cooked in one cup of water, then put through a sieve to remove skins and cores. Three tablespoons of sugar were then added. (We believe that all stewed fruits, fresh or dried, should be flavoured with sugar after being cooked, but while hot.)

Apple pie could not be forgotten among the favourite ways to use the apples. It took nine apples and two-thirds cup of sugar. By the way, we grated a little cheese over the apples before we put on the top crust.

Apple dumplings are on a par with pie as to popularity. Six apples were peeled and cored. These cavities were filled with sugar—it took four tablespoons. A square of plain biscuit dough was then folded around each, dampening the edges to seal in the juices. They were steamed over boiling water for 50 minutes and served with a diluted honey syrup.

Apple crisp is a super delicious dessert, although it requires a little more sugar. Eight apples were sliced into a buttered casserole and covered with the following ingredients that were crumpled together: ¼ cup white sugar, ¼ cup flour, 3 tbsp. hard butter, ½ tsp. mace and ½ tsp. cloves. A half cup of water should be poured down the side and the pudding should be baked in an electric oven at 350 degrees for 30 minutes.

There were then two apples and two tablespoons of sugar left, these were used to make a Dutch apple cake. The method used for the cake was: Measure and mix 2 cups flour, 3 tps. baking powder, ½ tsp. salt. Cut in ¼ cup butter, stir in 2/3 cup milk and a beaten egg. Spread the mixture in a shallow greased pan. Peel, slice apples and place in rows on dough. Sprinkle top with 2 tps. sugar and ¼ tsp. allspice. Bake in electric oven at 400 degrees for 25 minutes. Serve with milk.

We are also publishing other recipes which will help to consume the Canadian fall apples which are not suitable for storage or export. These varieties are Duchess, Alexander, Wolf River, St. Lawrence and Wealthy.

Applesauce Orange Compote

4½ cups applesauce and 1 cup orange sections; add ½ cup brown sugar and few grains of nutmeg. Chill in electric refrigerator and pour into serving dish; garnish with 1 cup of orange sections and "apple" made of two green and six halved red marshmallows.

Applesauce Gingerbread

6 tps. shortening, 1½ cup sugar, 1 egg, ½ cup molasses, 1¼ cups flour, 1 tsp. baking soda, 1 tsp. cinnamon, ½ tsp. ginger, 1½ tsp. salt, 2½ cup strained thick applesauce. Cream together shortening and sugar. Beat egg, add; add molasses; mix well. Sift together 3 times, flour, soda, cinnamon, ginger, salt. Add to creamed mixture alternately with applesauce. Bake in greased pan 8" x 8" in electric oven (350 deg.) 45 minutes. Cool slightly. (If desired, top with softened cream cheese and decorate with candied cherries and citron.

TAKE A TIP

1. Enquire from the friends of the boy or girl in uniform in Canada when they are sending their Christmas parcel to him, then mail it on another date in order that too many parcels do not arrive at about the same time. Label it "Christmas parcel." Write name on the package, having wrapped it in strong brown paper—do not use small gummed seals to write on. 2. Bind the frayed edges of the chenille bath rugs with bright coloured prints. Matching tie backs for curtains add a cheerful note.

THE PEOPLE OF Deseronto, Tyendinaga and District

The Objective for your District for the Seventh Victory Loan was set at $105,000. At the end of the first week of the Campaign your District had only raised $21,800. This leaves YOU the people of the Community only two weeks to raise $83,200, if the Objective is to be met. It must not only be met but exceeded, and it can only be exceeded if each one of us do our share and INVEST IN VICTORY by buying ONE MORE VICTORY BOND THAN BEFORE.

Don't take it for granted that the Seventh Victory Loan will be over subscribed, just because all previous loans have been. CANADA cannot get the objective aimed at unless each Community gets its objective. Don't let YOUR DISTRICT be the one to FAIL. See your VICTORY LOAN SALESMAN or YOUR BANKER. Avail yourself of the opportunity to save. Buy all the VICTORY BONDS you can. You will have cash to buy things you plan to buy when the war is over.

European Crops Saved From Plunder

The rapid gains which the allied armies have made in Western and Southeastern Europe have prevented wholesale destruction of crops by the Nazis, states the Monthly Review of the Wheat Situation. Large areas of France are reported practically untouched and yielding a fairly good crop of grain. Wheat over and above local requirements from these areas is expected to move into deficit regions including, possibly, parts of Belgium and Holland. The timely advance into Roumania and Bulgaria will permit shipment of any

Men who think of tomorrow Invest in Victory today!

ONE day the whistles will blow, sirens shriek and bells will ring. It will be a day of rejoicing and a day of thanksgiving. We will have won our war.

Yes, we will win this war. We know that now. But the enemy has not yet surrendered nor has the fighting ceased. Canada's sons must continue to wage war on battlefields the world over. Here at home we, too, must carry on: building the ships and planes, making the guns and shells, producing the food on which our fighting men depend. And, we must continue to help pay for all these things through our purchase of Victory Bonds.

When V day dawns, when our boys come home, we all want to be able to hold our heads high—be able to say, "I did all I could."

Are you buying all the Victory Bonds you can? When we lend our money today we hasten tomorrow's victory.

Men who think of tomorrow invest in victory today!

SALE! Dollars at Half Price!

Sounds like a sure-thing bargain. But how many of us realize that in Canada we're getting dollars at less than half the price of other years  ... at a fraction the price in many other countries to day. Here's what we mean. A dollar is worth as much  as it will buy. And to day your dollar buys at least twice as much as it did in the last war . For instance, your 5¢ buys a bar of laundry soap that cost  in those days. To day, you can buy the same quality felt fedora for  that set you back  then. Truly your dollar is half price since it buys twice as much. Price ceilings and other anti-inflationary measures have kept its value HIGH! And you protect your dollars worth every time you buy a bond  ... pay off a debt  ... refuse to hoard goods or frequent black markets. That's how to make dollars count MORE!

*Make This
Today!*

I promise to give my support to keeping the cost of living down. I will buy only what I need. I will observe the ceiling whether buying or selling goods or services. I will pay off old debts, save for the future, invest in Victory Bonds and War Savings Certificates. And I will support taxes which help lower the cost of living.

Keep Your Dollar Value High!

Only three days left to reach objective in the Seventh Victory Loan Campaign.

According to figures released from county headquarters at Belleville Wednesday morning, Deseronto, Tyendinaga and district have only subscribed up to that date $65,000, or 60 percent of the objective of $105,000.

In the County of Hastings, the total is $2,792,500, or about 75 percent of the objective.

An urgent appeal is made to the people of the community to give their last minute support to this drive in an effort to reach the quota set for Deseronto and district.

Hallowe'en Party At High School

A very pleasant evening was spent in the High School Assembly Hall on Hallowe'en when the staff and students entertained their parents and members of the School Board.

The hall was suitably decorated with skeletons, witches, etc.

Norris, Mrs. C. F. Dimmell as judges had a hard time picking out the best costumes and finally decided on the following:—

Marjory Steeves, May Topping, Betty Mastin, Elsie Knight, Glen Gibson, Elgin Loughheed, H. Walker, Delmer Breadman and Ralph Stewart.

An interesting program of instrumentals, dialogues, recitations and choruses were put on by the pupils and were much enjoyed after which a sing-song was held.

Parents and guests all took part in marches, games and contests to the amusement of the children.

Refreshments were served near midnight and a pleasant evening brought to a close.

In effecting their escape the armed prisoners attacked Jail Governor J. E. CHAPTER XI

Nancy stood still a moment thinking. "Oh, all right," she said finally. "Only I still don't approve of having that detective come. I just know he is going to get us all in a lot of trouble. How did he happen to be here and know about you?" she asked, turning to Maxine. "He works at the studio in Hollywood and he is driving to New York. While he was in Chicago he talked to the West Coast studios and they told him that I was stopping here for a little visit before I went on East, so he came down here just to make sure that there had been no change in my plans."

"He didn't think I would arrive until tomorrow, but tonight he heard someone in the hotel say he had seen me today, so he called right away. He wanted to see me anyway, so when Peggy suggested having him come out to look for the ring, he said all right. And he is coming out in the morning. I think maybe I had better explain it to Gran, so you all can be a few minutes late for breakfast. I think it would be best for Gran to ask me most of the questions. Peggy would probably get all mixed up."

Maxine had already made her explanations the next morning when the two girls reached the dining room. Mrs. Horton looked up at them as they entered.

"My dear," she said, addressing Nancy, "I feel so badly to hear that your engagement ring has been misplaced while on a visit to us. I do trust that this young man—Newton did you say his name was, Maxine?—will be able to find it quickly for you. Maxine assures me he is among the best in his line in California. Have you thought back carefully over your actions since you last saw your ring, Nancy?"

"Oh, yes, Mrs. Horton, quite carefully." "You do seem to take the matter very sensibly, I am sure. Peggy looks more as if she had let it sleep than you do."

It was true that Peggy had not slept well. She had been out of bed several times to look again among the clothes she had worn to the train. Could it be possible that she had dropped it on the old wooden platform of the station when she went to put it into her bag? Or had it just dropped in plain sight of anyone who might come along and pick it up? But she remembered so well putting it into the bag and closing it. What on earth was she going to say to Harry next Wednesday if she had not found it by then? So her mind had raced throughout the night. No wonder Gran thought she looked as if she had not slept.

"Of course I am worried, Gran. To have Nancy lose such a gorgeous ring here!" Her grandmother smiled at her. "But, my dear, rings cannot run away. And we know that there is no one here who would have taken it, so that leaves it simply misplaced. I feel sure that Mr. Newton will be able to suggest the place where it must be. Oh, that must be he. I hear an automobile. We will go into the front parlor and see him there."

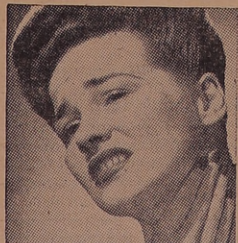

Maxine followed William to the front door while Mrs. Horton and the two girls crossed the hall and entered the front parlor. Peggy was surprised that her grandmother had chosen this place to receive a detective. It was here that Gran usually greeted her more important guests.

The old lady settled herself in a high backed chair with her back to the window, her tiny feet placed daintily side by side on an ottoman, the covering of which had been woven by her mother-in-law. When Mrs. Horton sat in that big chair with her feet on the ottoman she was like some little powerful judge who passed sentence on those who were brought before him. Peggy understood that now. Her grandmother was going to judge this Mr. Newton whom Maxine was recommending. Peggy had not thought of judging a detective, except by his speed in taking over the job and finding the ring.

She smiled to herself as she thought of some big Irishman—weren't all detectives Irish, or did that only apply to city cops?—coming into this room of her ancestors and being judged by Gran. She remembered a detective she had seen in one of Maxine's pictures. He was a large fat man who wore a derby hat on the back of his head, and who seemed always to have a long cigar stuck in the corner of his mouth. Suppose that was the man she could hear Maxine talking to now in the hall. Could Maxine really know someone like that? If a fat man with a derby on the back of his head and a cigar in the corner of his mouth entered this room he might just as well give up all thought of his helping her find the ring. Gran would get rid of him without giving him a chance, she was sure.

"Oh, I hope he won't be too bad," she prayed fervently as she heard footsteps crossing the hall.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

November 12.

THE CHURCH DURING WAR AND PEACE

Isaiah 2: 2-4; 9: 6, 7; Matthew 5: 43-48; Romans 13: 1-7.

GOLDEN TEXT.—Blessed are the peacemakers: for they shall be called sons of God. Matthew 5:9.

The first portion of our lesson comes from the greatest sermon ever preached, the sermon on the mount. In it we find the secret for success in this life and the life to come.

"Love thy neighbour, and hate thine enemy" was the common teaching in the day of our Lord, and it is much the same today. The Germans sought to build a superior race on this principle, and we have witnessed the grief and heartaches it has wrought.

God's Standard of Living

How different is the message from the Lord. He would have us perfect in love, as is God the Father, the one who causes the sun to shine, and the rain to fall on the just and the unjust. There is no credit to us for loving those who love us, or respecting the ones who respect us, for that is the natural thing to do. The Lord would have us live according to a higher standard, and "Love your enemies, bless them that curse you, do good to them that hate you, and pray for them which despitefully use you, and persecute you". Will you accept this challenge?

Laws of the Land

Turning to governments, St. Paul, who knew what it was to live under an alien government, brings us a message regarding the Lord's will concerning those who are in authority over us.

Those who resist the government,

IF HEAD COLDS HANG ON..

DO THIS! To relieve discomforts, one of the best things you can do is put a good spoonful of home-tested Vicks VapoRub in a bowl of boiling water. Then feel welcome relief come as you breathe in the steaming medicated vapors that penetrate to the cold-congested upper breathing passages! See how this soothes irritation, quiets coughing, and helps clear the head-bringing grand comfort.

FOR ADDED RELIEF... rub throat, chest and back with VapoRub at bedtime. Vicks VapoRub works for hours—2 ways at once—to bring relief from distress. Remember, it's Vicks VapoRub you want.

or break the law, are committing an offense against God. If we do good works, or in other words, live according to the teachings of the bible, we will have need to fear the law, for the law is to prevent evil.

As we all know, when we comply with the laws of the land we have a clear conscience. It is also well pleasing to God. So may we not fail to pay our just dues no matter if we feel they are unjust, remembering if it is according to the law of the land, it is the Lord's will. "Blessed are the peacemakers: for they shall be called the children of God."

An Open Letter to Premier Drew

Re

Religious Teaching in Public Schools

To

The Honourable George Drew,
Prime Minister of Ontario and Minister of Education:

The British-Israel-World Federation (Canada) in Convention assembled, recognizing the need for more extensive and intensive Religious Teaching among the boys and girls of today, desires to go on record as commending the Government of Ontario for having drawn Public attention to the general lack of such teaching, and to the grave conditions which have resulted.

Further, the British-Israel-World Federation is in full sympathy with the efforts of the Government of Ontario to provide the remedy by the introduction of Religious Education in the Public Schools of the Province.

There are, however, certain salient facts which must be kept in mind in relation to Religious Education as forming part of the curriculum in the Public Schools:

(1) It is not the function of the State, but of the Church, primarily to provide Religious Teaching, and that in its widest aspect without any reference to Denominationalism. The Government by its action has drawn attention to the fact that the responsible Agent has not fulfilled its obligation.

(2) The teaching of the Bible requires on the part of the teacher a knowledge of the Bible, which can only be obtained from a study of the Bible itself, and it is questionable whether many of our public school teachers have that knowledge at present. We therefore suggest that the Minister of Education arrange for proper courses in Bible Study to form part of Teacher Training.

(3) Religious Education does not lie alone in giving a mere outline of Biblical knowledge. It should aim at the building of character and the inculcation of knowledge regarding the true relation of God to man and of man to God. It is essential that the Bible Teaching given in our public schools should be free of all attempts or suggestions in any way falsifying the truths of the Bible; and the text-book should be the Bible itself and not anything that is or can be contaminated by the so-called Higher Critical Theories which had their origin in Germany, and although utterly discredited by the latest archaeological discoveries, have resulted in the atheistic, modernist teaching so prevalent which has largely destroyed the Basic Faith of an ever-growing number of people.

Further, it is to be hoped that an effort will be made to prevent any Basic Religious Knowledge imparted to the pupils of our Public and High Schools, being injured or destroyed as and when as students they may pass on to the universities.

(4) The boys and girls in our public schools should be made aware of the fact that the Anglo-Saxon-Celtic peoples are the people of the Book and as such are charged with a responsibility of Service to God and the World. This fact does not imply racial superiority, but rather racial responsibility.

The Development of the British Empire and Commonwealth of Nations within the Empire of which Canada is an integral part, as well as the Growth of the United States of America, is founded upon and has followed the progressive development of the Divine Purpose as recorded in the Bible.

(5) The Government and Administration of the Empire and every section of it can only be based upon the Basic Truths of the Divine Constitution based upon the Commandments, Statutes and Judgments of God are inculcated in the minds of our boys and girls who are the future citizens of the Province, Dominion and Empire.

(6) Obedience to the Divine Constitution as recorded in the Bible is alone the guarantee of peace, stability and prosperity.

For the reasons herein stated and other reasons not at present enumerated, the British-Israel-World Federation (Canada) respectfully asks the Minister of Education and his colleagues in the Provincial Government to take every possible precaution to preserve the heritage of the truths as set forth in the Bible and to ensure that they shall be presented as they are actually and definitely recorded in that Book.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

Nice Mr. Hitler! He gridironed Germany with some of the world's finest super-highways, and if he thinks the Allied armies aren't going to use them in the race for Berlin, Adolf doesn't know a carburetor from a steering wheel. Map above shows the "autobahnen" network, whose heart is an oval running through the suburbs of Berlin. The roads, ostensibly built for "tourist traffic," are actually four-lane, concrete military highways, averaging about 50 feet in width, with no crossroads. They by-pass all large cities, to avoid traffic jams. In the west, the super-highways converge in the Rhine-Ruhr heavy industry area into which Allied forces are now fighting. In the east, they run down into Upper Silesia and up through East Prussia—toward which the Russian armies are driving. Photo below map shows a section of the super-highway at Wesseling.

'PRETTY SOFT' FOR POSTWAR TRAVELERS

Folks forced to travel these days in overcrowded trains will find some satisfaction in the postwar promise of comfortable railroading de luxe, pictured above. Photos and sketches show some of the innovations the Pullman Company has now in experimental service. Photo at upper left shows new type car, with compartments for six passengers. At night, compartments are converted into sleepers, with berths in three tiers, as shown in diagram, upper right. Cutaway sketch at lower left shows new "Threedex" commuter coach, with two game rooms at left on middle deck, and stairways leading to upper and lower seat decks. Baggage is stored under stairs. Diagram at lower right shows new "day-nite" coach, which provides Pullman comfort at minimum cost. Baggage is removed through chute, without interfering with disembarking passengers.

EDITORIAL COMMENTARY

The Deseronto Post aims to be an independent, clean newspaper for the home, devoted to public service.

A JOB FOR ALL

One horse can move a wagon. Two horses move a dray. A million soldiers can move a mountain.

One Canadian soldier can wipe out an enemy machine gun nest. Ten Canadian soldiers may capture an enemy outpost. Two hundred thousand Canadian troops can press back a German army.

But the mountainous task of beating Germany completely and finally requires the help of at least three million Canadians here on the home front. The Support which our soldiers, sailors and airmen require for the last punishing blow comes primarily through the sale of Victory Bonds. And to make that support adequate Canada needs at least three million purchasers during the Seventh Victory Loan Campaign who will make their individual purchases larger than before.

BUY VICTORY BONDS

TROOPS FOR RECONSTRUCTION

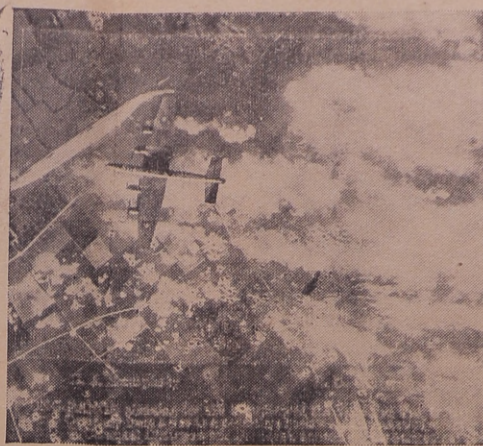

Bomber-fighter formations for the air, landing boats and paratroops for the invasion, tank crews for the break through. Men of vision long foresaw the need to train these striking forces. Some people said it would not be necessary. They were wrong. Our thoroughly trained and well equipped troops have answered the need of the hour.

New another hour soon may strike. Canada will need homes fit for her men to come back to, industry stepped up to win the peace, a people alert and united. Men of vision see the need to train fresh troops to fight and win this battle of reconstruction. And there are those who think this won't be necessary—that ordinary men equipped only with an engineer's transit or a road machine can win the peace.

But the greater need in reconstruction is the reconstruction of man's spirit. The new situation after the war will require a new sense of purpose. Lassitude and apathy can't carry out our post-war plans. We need a striking force of men who know how to rebuild human character, men morally tough themselves, men trained and ready to fly to the nation's danger spots—a few that will lead the millions.

They must be men who have no personal or party axe to grind and who are proof against the beckoning of selfish and sectional interest. They will raise a standard to which the wise and honest can repair. They will rally the nation behind them in the fight to serve.

These trained troops for reconstruction are essential to Canada. With such a force the sacrifices of the battlefield will not be in vain. They can make effective the deepest longings of both the statesman and the ordinary man.

CANADA'S VETERANS Their Post-War Opportunities

This is the Fifth in a series of advertisements to inform the people of Canada of plans to re-establish men and women of the armed forces. To get full details, save and read every advertisement.

For complete information, write for the booklet, "Back to Civil Life."

Care for the Wounded and Ill

CANADA'S TREATMENT AND PENSION LEGISLATION

Canada has assumed as a minimum obligation to members of the armed forces that before their return to civil life, the fullest possible measures shall be taken towards physical fitness, and that pension shall be provided for any permanent disability due to service. Full medical service is provided and veterans' hospitals have been established from coast to coast. Equipment for the most modern types of treatment has been installed, and leading specialists in all branches of medicine and surgery have willingly placed their services at the disposal of veterans.

There is free treatment with allowances to every discharged person for the first year after return to civil life and free treatment with allowances for pensioned conditions is available throughout the pensioner's life.

Those discharged from the forces unable to work and in need of continuing treatment may have their pay and allowances of rank continued for one year, if necessary, and for longer when treatment is still required for a pensionable condition.

PENSIONS

Pension is awardable under three simple and easily understood conditions:

1. When the veteran has served in a theatre of war, death or any permanent disability not due to misconduct is pensionable.
2. (a) When the veteran has served in Canada only, death or disability caused by service is pensionable.
(b) Death or serious disability not due to service may be pensionable if hardship would otherwise result.

JOBS FOR DISABLED

A very wide program of education is being carried on continuously so that veterans who suffer a disability as a result of their war service may have a full and happy future. Many volunteer associations are assisting in this work, while specialized help is available from such organizations as the War Amputations of Canada, the Canadian National Institute for the Blind, and the Canadian Society for the Deaf and Hard of Hearing.

THE COMMUNITY'S RESPONSIBILITY

This series of advertisements has given, in brief form, an outline of the Canadian re-establishment program for ex-service men and women. The responsibility, however, is not entirely that of Parliament. It can provide legislation and funds but in the final analysis it must be the veterans themselves and the people of Canada who make the program work. The public support so far has been unstinting, but successful administration requires further public support. Understanding and effort by the whole people are needed.

VETERANS' WELFARE OFFICERS ARE STATIONED IN KEY CENTRES THROUGHOUT CANADA. THEY ADVISE AND ASSIST EX-SERVICE PERSONNEL, AND SHOULD BE CONSULTED ON ALL PROBLEMS.

Issued under the authority of Hon. Ian A. MacKenzie, Minister of

VETERANS' AFFAIRS

There's ROOM FOR EVERYBODY...

PRODUCTION MEN—keeping in constant touch with sources of raw materials, suppliers of parts, government and military authorities.

THE ARMED FORCES—with responsibility for training and supply, for troop movements, for operations on land, air and ocean battlefronts.

GOVERNMENT OFFICIALS—in touch with every phase of our production and military program—with foreign governments—with national and international war agencies.

YOU—depending on your telephone for quick, essential communication at work and at home.

But telephone lines can carry this wartime load only if we all use existing facilities sparingly, and keep our calls just as short and business-like as we can.

Additional equipment is severely limited by material shortages; co-operation must take the place of construction if essential calls are to go through promptly.

THE MIXING BOWL

By ANNE ALLAN

Hydro Home Economist

Hello Homemakers! Harvest fairs are striving to maintain many of our customs. At one fair we attended recently we heard some fiddlers tuning up for a square dance and it was fun to hear a boy call the changes. "Swing your partners, ladies change."

We've changed many homemaking methods by using satisfactory substitutes. Gradually a few prewar articles are being manufactured to assist in our homemaking jobs. May we not be too possessive of things we can do without. Just try to "carry on" with those things that are already available. Let's not be too possessive of things we can do without until the great day comes. Save wherever you can and purchase more Victory Bonds and War Saving Certificates.

Mock Mince Meat

6 green tomatoes, 6 apples, ½ lb. seeded raisins, 1 tbsp. cinnamon, ¼ cup fruit-juice, ¼ cup vinegar, ½ cup citron, 1 orange-rind, 1 tsp. salt, 1 tsp. cloves, ½ tsp. allspice, ½ tsp. ginger, ¼ tsp. grated nutmeg.

Chop tomatoes, apples and raisins. Add other ingredients in order given and cook until thick. This amount should make three pies.

Gingersnaps

2 cups enriched flour, ½ cup sugar, ¼ tsp. soda, 1 tsp. salt, 1 tsp. ginger, ¼ tsp. cinnamon, 2/3 cup molasses, 6 tbsp. shortening.

Sift flour, measure, add sugar, soda, salt and spices; sift again. Heat molasses to boiling, remove from heat; add shortening and dry ingredients, mix thoroughly. Chill. Roll thin on lightly floured board; cut into desired shapes. Bake on greased baking sheet in electric oven (350 deg.) about 8 minutes. Makes 5 dozen cookies.

Applesauce Betty

2½ cups unsweetened applesauce, 2 cups cracked wheat cereal, ¼ cup brown sugar, ¼ cup melted butter, 1½ tsp. cinnamon.

Mix cereal with sugar, butter and cinnamon. Arrange applesauce and cereal in alternate layers in a casserole or baking dish having a layer of cereal on top. Bake in an electric oven for 20 minutes. Serve with milk.

Steamed Apple Pudding

4 to 6 apples, sliced, 1½ cup sugar, dash of nutmeg, 1 cup flour, 2 tps. baking powder, ¼ tsp. salt, 2 tps. butter, ½ cup milk.

Place apples in a buttered baking dish, sprinkle with sugar and nutmeg and steam until nearly tender. Mix the remaining ingredients as a biscuit dough and pour over the apples. Cover and steam for 30 minutes. Serve with sugar and cream or pudding sauce.

TAKE A TIP

1. Apply some colourless nail polish to buttonholes on workclothes that become a little frayed or limp.
2. Cut two stiff pieces of cardboard to fit the ends of ties for pressing. This prevents seam marks on the front of ties.
3. After washing your window curtains, put a rod in each end and fix it on to the clothes line with pieces of pliable wire at each end. If line is low, double loop it up to be clamped on the second clothes wire. This prevents sagging corners and little ironing is required.

4. Black marks on linoleum floors made by wartime rubber heels may be removed with liquid wax, turpentine or cleaning fluid. Wax should then be applied after cleaning.

5. If you can't buy a rubber suction sink stopper, use a self sealing jar lid instead. It works like a charm.

: DESERONTO THEATRE :

LET'S be quite frank.

When you read—as you probably did during the past few months—that more than 300,000 people in Canada have syphilis, what was your reaction? Did you say, "That's too bad; something should be done about it", and then turn to the comic page? Chances are you did.

But if that article had told you that Tommy Jones, the lad who used to mow your lawn after school, had syphilis—how would you have felt about it? Or that the young couple who built that cute house in the next block, had just lost a baby through syphilis... would that have made you stop and think?

Or, if you suddenly discovered that your Mar... No? That couldn't happen? But it can. And it does... to hundreds of Tommies and Marys every year, right here in Canada. Right in your community. You'll never read articles like that, of course, for these are the personal tragedies that people bear in silence.

So, when you pick up the paper sometime and read, "... there were 5,000 new VENEREAL DISEASE cases reported in this province last year...", remember! These are not cold figures. They represent 5,000 heart-breaking... heart-aching situations.

Yes, VENEREAL DISEASE is a serious problem. It's a problem for parents; for taxpayers; for young people on the threshold of life; for everyone.

VENEREAL DISEASE need never strike if we all do our part. If we know the facts. If we use these facts to advantage. If we don't shrug our shoulders and say, "This couldn't happen to anyone in my family."

You have a duty to your family and the community.

Letter from Belgium

Writing from Washington, D.C., Mrs. James Astin states that her son, Kenneth Astin, is now in Belgium. He finds conditions much better than in France, many luxuries can be obtained, but there is a scarcity of bread. He also enjoyed ice cream in Belgium for the first time since leaving Canada.

Mrs. Astin spoke of attending the Memorial Service for the Archbishop of Canterbury held in Washington Cathedral on All Saints' Day. The congregation included members of the various Embassies and representatives of the three services. The Lord Bishop of Washington celebrated Holy Communion and spoke in tribute to the late Archbishop, stressing the loss to the Church in the passing of so great a churchman. Lord Halifax read the lesson.

Donations to Deseronto Memorial Rink Fund Passes $2000 Mark

The Memorial Rink foundation is being proceeded with as rapidly as possible. The dressing rooms are well under way to completion. The work on the boards will be started immediately the land is levelled.

Mr. Harvey McFarland is putting in a bulldozer to do the levelling as a donation from McFarland Construction Company. This work will be finished this week and within the next three weeks the work will be completed and ready to be put into operation as soon as weather permits.

This is a big undertaking and requires the co-operation of everyone in Deseronto. The Chamber of Commerce invites all organizations, the Canadian Legion, Women's Young People, the Women's Institutes of the churches, the Home and School, the High School, Public School, all and everyone to assist in furthering this worthwhile venture in any way possible, such as Bingos, Suppers, Concerts, Dances, etc.

The children of Deseronto deserve this for their well being. The boys that will not return deserve this and more than we can ever repay. Let everyone get behind and shove the big wheel over the top.

The service was conducted by Rev. K. V. Matthews assisted by Rev. A. W. McIntosh, a nephew by marriage of Miss Allison, who paid a beautiful tribute to her for the unselfish life which she had led giving up all to look after those she loved.

Three sisters survive, Mrs. William Hatch, Toronto; Mrs. Emma Rose, Napinka and Mrs. Sarah Breeze, Seattle. Mr. William Allen of Second Street is a nephew of deceased.

Modern Etiquette

By Roberta Lee

1. Can you give some expressions that may be used when being introduced, in place of the ordinary "How do you do?"
2. Is a signature necessary if a person sends flowers to a friend who is ill, and encloses his card with a message written on it?
3. If a man stops on the street to talk with a woman for a few minutes, should he remove his hat?
4. At what hour of the day is it proper to serve a buffet meal?
5. Is it correct to address a wedding invitation to "Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Blank and Family?"
6. At the theater or the movies, when there is no usher, who goes down the aisle first, the woman or the man?

Answers

1. "This is a great pleasure." "I have been wanting to meet you for some time." "I have heard so much about you." Any of these may be used if they can be said sincerely, but the most simple and non-committal of all is, "How do you do?" 2. No; his name on the card takes the place of a signature. 3. He should lift his hat, but it is not at all necessary for him to stand with his hat in his hand. 4. A buffet breakfast may be served at noon, a luncheon at one or two o'clock, a supper at any time in the evening, or this kind of service may be used for an afternoon or evening reception. 5. No. The words "and Family" are no longer in use. An invitation should be sent to Mr. and Mrs. Brown, and a separate invitation to each other member of the family. 6. The woman.

plained to Mrs. Horton. "Miss Sawyer lost her ring, but the first person I should like to question is Miss Margaret."

"Just as you think best," Gran agreed, rising quickly, turning to Maxine and Nancy. "Come, girls. We shall wait on the back terrace for your next move."

"Can't we go outside some place to talk?" he asked Peggy when the others had disappeared down the hall. She glanced through the parlor windows at the rose garden. "We might go out there," she suggested.

Leaving the house quietly they went down the front steps and turning the corner of the house entered the garden.

"Whew," he breathed in relief, taking his cigarette case from his pocket and offering it to Peggy, who shook her head. "May I?" he asked. When she nodded her assent, he stopped for a moment to light his cigarette while she continued up the walk towards the summer house. "Your friend Nancy is a helpful soul, isn't she?" he asked, joining her.

"What is it you wished to ask me?" Peggy asked him without replying to his question about Nancy.

He laughed. "To tell you the truth I don't know. I only knew I wanted to talk to you and that seemed the best way to do it. Things have come so fast and furiously that I am all befuddled. Last night when Maxine said her sister had lost her ring and for me to come out and help find it, it seemed all right. Of course, I didn't know then that her sister was you. And I didn't know that you were engaged. And now to be perfectly honest I don't give a hoot about finding your engagement ring. Couldn't we just forget that and talk about ourselves for a while?"

"Certainly not," Peggy said indignantly, stepping into the summer house. "I shall answer any questions you care to ask about the ring, but that is all."

"SALADA" TEA

CHRONICLES OF GINGER FARM

By Gwendoline P. Clarke

Well, it was nice while it lasted, wasn't it?—that marvellous warm weather I mean. Imagine 68 F in November. Did you make good use of it—doing jobs that you wanted done but never expected would be? I was afraid to lose a minute. Partner and I were painting the outside of the house—and you know windows take a long time to do, what with puttying and two coats of paint. But it is such a satisfaction to have them done—the fresh white paint looks so nice against the red brick. Only one needn't expect other people to notice what has been done—at least not the menfolk. Actually we had a man come in one day and I asked him what he thought of our paint job. "Oh, have you been painting—I really didn't notice!" And then, to cap it all, after Partner had been down for the mail one day I asked him how the house looked from the road, and he said—"Gosh, I forgot to look at it!" These men....

Working so much outside has led me to wonder if post-war inventions will include portable telephones. Directly I get back to the house I spend half my time answering telephone calls and every person starts off the same way—"Where in the world have you been—I've been trying to get you all week?"

Well, anyone who rings now will find me right at home. I haven't the least desire to be outside. There is a cold wind, snowflurries and a decided drop in temperature. It makes one begin to think of Christmas.

Christmas... another wartime Christmas. And so many people thought the war would be over by fall. Partner and I never thought that was possible. In any case don't you think it rather unwise to let oneself speculate very much as to when the war will end? Such thoughts are bound to have a slackening affect on our work. Unconsciously we begin to think more about our own personal affairs—and perhaps let down a bit on whatever we have been trying to do in war work activities. Don't let us fool ourselves. There is no easy time ahead. The day will come when the war will end, be it late or soon. But to war there is always an aftermath, and in that aftermath our work, our faith, and our courage will be taxed to the limit. So, if we must speculate as to the end of the war, let us think of it only as the end to fighting and bloodshed—not as the end of work and worry to ourselves. There will be plenty of both—but we are Canadian women, descendants of a fighting stock, we shall surely accept the challenge. Isn't that so? From the prairies and the towns, from the cities and the farms, Canadian women everywhere will surely prove they can work for peace as well as for victory.

I remember hearing a sermon in the early days of the war in which the preacher said—"We pray for peace, but we had peace for twenty-five years and what did we do with it?"

Some time we shall have peace again—what shall we do with it this time? It is worth thinking about, isn't it?

It's foolish to keep on "dosing"!

FREE — FOR REBUILDING THE WORLD

"That all men might be free!" This has been our main objective during the past five years of the greatest war in history. We are fighting for freedom from the tyranny of totalitarian forces and materialistic philosophies fighting indeed for Christian civilization itself. In each one of our minds, however, freedom can mean an entirely different thing. For too many it means "freedom to do as I please", "to do the other fellow before he does me", to preach "equality of mankind" and practice dictatorship in home and office.

This has been a war of ideas as well as of arms. The idea of a super-race and super-nation where the ordinary man doesn't count and God doesn't even exist; against the sane, sound and secure truth that the ordinary man counts, and that it is his privilege, under God, to make the world a family of nations. This is the freedom for which men have died. This is the freedom for which every thinking and caring Canadian today must live.

The new world can only be built on the lasting foundations of the sound character and real courage of the ordinary man. It will mean a life-time job and a daily fight to build into our homes, industry and nation the principles of honesty, tolerance, selflessness and faith in God. To be a true Canadian means living so that Canada will fulfill her destiny and will make the vision of her founders a living reality. For a nation led by God can lead the world. That nation can be Canada!

TIME BOMBS

Peace—another chance for the ordinary man to do extraordinary things. Tomorrow's hope is not the power of a few men sitting in high places but of everybody standing in all places for the highest ideals.

Freedom after all means freedom to help others; not just to help yourself.

National unity won't come by chance. It can only come through CHANGE. Things will start to look up when we do.

If citizens begin to love their comforts more than their country, that is the beginning of the end.

The DESERONTO POST

The worst inflation came AFTER the war the last time . . . to be followed by disastrous deflation, unemployment and confusion. For Canada to manage successfully the change back to peace, maintain employment, and meet the world's competition . . . we must continue to have stable economic conditions. To protect the individual from rising costs of living and later unemployment we must continue to prevent inflation.

To prevent a repetition of the conditions following the last war

PRICE CONTROL MUST BE MAINTAINED

AS LONG AS INFLATION THREATENS US.

This can only be done if production is efficient and economical, costs are kept down and consumers refuse to pay more than ceiling prices.

THIS IS ONE OF A SERIES ISSUED BY THE GOVERNMENT OF CANADA TO EMPHASIZE THE IMPORTANCE OF PREVENTING A FURTHER RISE IN THE COST OF LIVING NOW, AND DEFLATION LATER

One person can start it!

When one person demands more for goods or services he compels others to do the same and Price Control goes out the window.

THE MIXING BOWL

By ANNE ALLAN

Hydro Home Economist

Hello Homemakers! Remember your school days, when you had to repeat over and over the daily lessons? But you will recall that such repetition really drove home the knowledge which your teacher had in mind, and when you absorbed that knowledge it was in your mind for a lifetime.

It is this principle of repetition which nutritionists must employ to drive home the importance of vitamins to the human system in daily doses of three meals, and for just this reason our short talk this week is on the subject of that staple food, milk. A few years from now we shall all probably be able to take a casual glance at a menu and know at once whether it is adequate in vitamin content for the family. Therefore, shall we review once again the high qualities of milk, and the necessity of paying attention to its constant use.

Whole milk is our most perfect food. It is the foremost in what is known as the protective food group which help to guard our bodies against the dangers of food deficiencies. Can you grown-ups honestly say that you take a minimum of half a pint per day and that the children of the family get at least one pint?

This is the time of year when cream soups taste especially good, and when milk puddings cooked to perfection in your electric oven add necessary vitamins to complete a fine dinner.

CREAMED VEGETABLE SOUPS

Delicious cream soups may be made from leftover or freshly cooked vegetables, such as peas, spinach, onions, cabbage or cauliflower. Press the vegetables through a sieve, and to each cupful of pulp add two cups milk. Heat to the boiling point, season to taste with salt and pepper, and thicken slightly with about one tablespoon flour and milk mixed to a smooth paste. Simmer for two minutes, stirring constantly. A small piece of butter may be added just before serving. Try also the addition of grated carrot or chopped parsley which is not only good for health, but gives an attractive appearance to the soup.

Have you tried Rice Pudding this way—Place ½ cup rice, ¾ cups milk, ½ cup sugar (or less) in double boiler and cook over low heat until tender—about one hour. Beat the yolk and white of one egg separately; add some of the rice to the egg yolk, then return to the double boiler and stir until it thickens. Turn out into bowl and let cool, then fold in the beaten white, add vanilla and sprinkle top with nutmeg.

SPANISH CREAM

1½ tbs. plain gelatine, 3 cups milk, 3 eggs, 1½ tsp. salt, ½ cup sugar (scant), 1 tsp. vanilla. Soak gelatine in ¼ cup of cold milk. Beat egg yolks, and add the sugar, salt and gradually the remainder of the milk. Cook in a double boiler, stirring constantly, until the mixture coats the spoon. Remove from fire, pour over the softened gelatine and stir occasionally until it thickens. Before it hardens, fold in the stiffly beaten whites and pour into a cold wet mold. Chill in electric refrigerator.

TAKE A TIP

1. A tablespoon of wheat germ sprinkled over the cereal is the most excellent food in vitamin P1 content.
2. Heat tends to destroy vitamin B1—do not cook wheat germ.
3. Alkalies kill this vitamin—do not use wheat germ in muffin or soda mixtures.

NOTICE TO EMPLOYERS AND THEIR MALE EMPLOYEES—Including Farmers

By an order signed on August 15th, 1944, by the undersigned Minister of Labour under authority of National Selective Service Mobilization Regulations, 1944:

1. Commencing August 22nd, 1944, every employer is required to check the documents held by each newly engaged male employee, within 7 days of the employee's engagement, to determine if such employee possesses documents to show that he is in good standing under National Selective Service Mobilization Regulations, 1944 (that is, in relation to the Military Call-up);
2. Every employer must report on Schedule 9 to the Registrar for his Mobilization Division, concerning any employee found not to possess documents as referred to;
3. Every employer is required similarly to check the documents held by each male employee now working for him, whose documents he has not checked before, and to report to the Registrar for his Mobilization Division at once on any such employee found not to possess documents as referred to;

4. Any male employee here referred to, is required by the Regulations to present his documents to his employer for purposes of inspection;

5. FOR THIS PURPOSE "EMPLOYER" INCLUDES ALSO ANY FARMER OPERATING A FARM, WHO HAS A MALE PERSON WORKING FOR HIM;

6. Penalties are provided for any employer or male employee who fails to comply with these Regulations.

By an earlier order, employers were required to check the documents held by their male employees, and to report by May 1st, 1944, on doubtful cases as well as cases where employees did not possess documents.

Employers are asked to remember that they do not report on men who do possess the necessary documents—only on those who fail to present documents for examination, or where there is doubt that the document presented actually proves good standing.

The employers of Canada, including farmers, co-operated very satisfactorily on the first check, made up to May 1st, last. This co-operation was decidedly helpful, and is very much appreciated. Further co-operation is now earnestly requested.

Schedule 9, for reporting to the Registrar, and details as to documents which prove good standing, are available through the nearest Employment and Selective Service Office.

Farmers not needed on the farm during the winter, who answer the urgent call for winter workers in other essential industries, will be given a continuance of postponement of military training while away from the farm.

HYDRO Lightens The Way!

THEY WOULDN'T HAVE BELIEVED IT!

• The gay nineties weren't so gay, by today's standards. Think how the folks then would have felt had anyone told them of the wonders of the modern motion picture theatre. They wouldn't have believed it!

In the transition from those days to this modern age we owe a great deal to electricity. Today—we are dependent upon it in hundreds of ways. It will do more for us in the days to come!

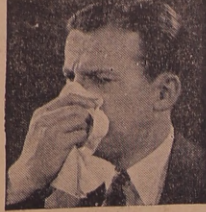

In the future Hydro will serve industry, the home and the farm in even greater measure than in the past. Plan now, to let Hydro lighten your tasks and make your living more comfortable in the brighter days ahead.

Helps Check Colds Quickly

You can often check a cold quickly if you follow these instructions. Just as soon as you feel the cold coming on and experience headache, pains in the back or limbs, soreness through the body, take a Paradol tablet, a good big drink of hot lemonade or ginger tea and go to bed.

The Paradol affords almost immediate relief from the pains and aches and helps you to get off to sleep. The dose may be repeated, if necessary, according to the directions. If there is soreness of the throat, gargle with two Paradol tablets dissolved in water. Just try Paradol the next time you have a cold and we believe that you will be well pleased. Paradol does not disappoint.

Reich Weather 'Made In America'

What does the weatherman have in store for the Western Front? Rain, mud and cold mean handicaps for fighting men and fighting machines. Bad weather hinders ground and air operations, can affect the fortunes of war by disrupting military schedules.

On the side of the Allies is the important fact that much of Germany's weather is not "made in Germany." In large part it is ruled by the winds blowing westward over the Atlantic, and it can be known before it reaches the Reich, says a bulletin of the National Geographic Society. Weather stations in the United States and in Greenland and Iceland keep the Allies informed of what's brewing in the weather caldron; the Germans have had to look to their dwindling numbers of submarines for reports.

National character is the core of national strength.

WHAT SCIENCE IS DOING

Power Saw

Shades of Jean Batiste and Black Jack Macdonald and the old woodsmen of the Ottawa and the Rideau and the Muskoka bush! What's become of us? The Lethbridge Herald demands.

Those knights of the saw and blade who hewed mightily and fought lustily during the Winter cutting season and the Spring log run are being pushed into the background and their fame forgotten, made but a memory by what? By a mechanical jig-saw that a lilliputian could handle, if you please.

A firm in Vancouver has invented what is called a power chain saw which can be driven by a small gasoline, electricity if it is available, or by compressed air. The saw blade is held against the standing tree, the power turned on and a blade with teeth running around the circumference at the rate of 2,000 feet per minute bites into the log with a speed that would make Jean and Black Jack gasp.

Again science has triumphed over muscle and the lumberman's job is in the sissy category. The triumph extends to a one-man-power saw built for the pulp industry which is operated by a 1½ horsepower gasoline engine and a chain speed of 825 feet per minute, which just about puts the buckskin in the same category at the cradle in the harvest field and the ox team on the plow.

CANADA'S NEWEST HOSPITAL SHIP READY FOR MAIDEN VOYAGE

One of the largest and the most-modernly equipped hospital ships in the world, the "Letitia", sister ship of the ill-fated "Athenia", sunk by the Germans in 1939, is ready for her maiden voyage to bring home Canadian casualties. The former troopship which has carried Allied troops to the North African invasion, Iceland, Salerno, has been reconverted to join the Lady Nelson in hospital ship service. 1. Capt. J. Cook, Glasgow, Scotland, skipper of the Letitia, and formerly captain of the Athenia, welcomes aboard Lt.-Col. A. L. Cornish, of Victoria, B. C., officer commanding the Letitia. 2. Full view from the harbor of the Letitia, which is equivalent to a floating general hospital for a large Canadian city. 3. Similar to an operating room in any of Canada's larger hospitals, is inspected by Lt.-Col. S. A. Wallace, of Vancouver, B. C., chief surgeon aboard. Major A. E. Mackenzie, Niagara Falls, Ont., anaesthetist, and Nursing Sisters A. F. Barker of Bancroft, Ont., and E. Hastings, of Toronto. The four discuss the latest in operating tables. 4. In the modern dental office, Sgt. G. Claremont of Montreal, dental assistant, is shown preparing equipment for the first voyage.

"FAITH" BRINGS FLYING FORT HOME

No wonder the crew whistled in amazement when they surveyed the damage to the "Dottie Jane." Only ragged pieces of the tail (left) remained, and the nose of the ship (right) had been shattered.

The "Dottie Jane" came home for the last time and practically collapsed on the home base airfield. She brought most of her last crew home safely—and went to the junk heap.

"And how," asked experienced pilots on the field, "did anyone ever fly that bomber in?" A dispatch from the Eighth Army Air Force told of the "Dottie Jane."

It had fought its way through flak and fighters to the heart of Hitler's fortress—Berlin. The first salvo of bombs had just been released when an explosion lifted the bomber up and then sent it plunging downward. It was almost broken in two.

Fighting the controls, the got the ship on level keel and back into formation. An aerial engineer went back to report on damage. A 90mm shell had struck the rear spar, exploding and tearing out the bottom of the radio compartment. Cables and tubing hung limp from the ship's belly.

One bomb bay hung hundreds of holes were in the fuselage. The front spar was twisted and weakening.

The radio man had completely disappeared. The ship's chutes were gone and one bomb still was lodged in the bomb bay.

pled and torn trailing edges of the wings flailed in the slipstream. The crew couldn't bail out. "The ship should be breaking in two—only faith will get us home," reported the engineer. Jerry still attacked and the crew fought steadily. The home base was 600 miles away. In landing, the pilot used the jammed ball turret guns, which were pointed downward, as a tail skid. The plane made a near three-point landing, bouncing along the runway on its flat tire. A loud whistle came from crew members as they clambered out and viewed the wreckage. Accompanying photographs tell the story.

SEATS OF THE MIGHTY

Swinging along in a bosun's chair, Adm. William F. Halsey, Jr., whose Third Fleet blasted the Jap navy in the battle of the Philippine Seas, comes aboard the Carrier Lexington.

His important role in making the Japanese fleet off the Philippines doesn't prevent Vice Adm. Marc A. Mitscher, carrier task force commander, from cutting a fancy cake with a small boy's gusto. He's pictured seated at a special mess aboard the aircraft carrier Lexington.

WOTTA WAR!

Maybe the AEF Automobile Club or the Allied Chamber of Commerce is responsible. At any rate, Jeeping Allies know what they are getting into, thanks to neat road signs like the one in the photo above, which reads: "You are now entering Germany, an enemy country. Keep on the alert."

Here's Quick Relief from SINUS PAIN

3-Purpose Medicine Helps Clear Out Congested Sinus Areas

ONE best way to get relief from torturing sinus pain is to clear congestion from nasal passages and give sinuses a chance to drain. A few drops of Vicks Va-tro-nol in each nostril is usually enough to bring this comforting relief.

3-Purpose Medicine . . . Va-tro-nol is so successful because it does three important things: (1) shrinks swollen membranes of the nose; (2) helps clear out pain-causing congestion and (3) soothes irritation. Many sinus sufferers say it's best relief they've found. Try it!

Shannonville United Church Anniversary

The congregation of the United Church at Shannonville has just passed an important milestone in the history of their united congregations.

On Sunday they held their anniversary services which was also the re-opening of the Brick Church in the village. This old building, the former Presbyterian Church, has been re-decorated and re-opened with services of special interest.

This Church now includes within its walls the seats and equipment for worship, until now a part of the White Church, formerly the home of the Methodist congregation and later used for some years as the place of worship for the united congregations.

Much interesting Church history is associated with both of these old buildings.

The brick Church was dedicated in 1882 by Rev. Dr. George Grant, the honored and beloved principal of Queen's University in Kingston and it was from this church that Miss Mabel Clazie went as a Missionary first to Formosa and later to Japan.

The White Church as it was familiarly known, dates back to 1855 and among the well-known ministers who have served there as pastors was Dr. James Henderson, whose long memorable ministry in the Methodist Church began when as a young man he was appointed to Shannonville as his first charge. In his later very successful ministry Dr. Henderson was the pastor of leading churches in Ottawa, Toronto and Montreal and was for some years the General Secretary of Missions for the Methodist Church in Canada.

The re-opening services on Nov. 12 in charge of the present minister, Rev. Loughheed, had as guest speaker a former pastor, Rev. W. Sterling, of Colborne, who preached morning and evening to large congregations. In addition to appropriate music by the choir there were special numbers by the boy soloist, Ronald Elmy, of Belleville.

Rev. W. H. Clarke and Mrs. Clarke, of Deseronto, who had been in charge of the united congregations for nine years before coming to Deseronto, joined with their former parishioners for this anniversary. Rev. Clarke assisting at the morning service.

Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Metcalfe are enjoying a week's holiday in Toronto and on their return will occupy their home on Mill Street which has been re-modelled and renovated throughout.

Mrs. I. Miller and Mrs. T. Dean of Kingston also Mrs. E. Murphy, Pte. J. Calberry and Mrs. Calberry of Belleville, were all in town on Sunday for the Memorial Service for the late Gnr. Perlick.

Mrs. J. Clarke of Belleville was the guest of her mother, Mrs. G. Hopping Thomas Street, on Saturday and accompanied her mother to Kingston where they were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. E. Hopping.

FO W. Bland, who has been stationed at Camp Mohawk, is leaving this week for Vancouver and expects to go back to Australia in the near future. He has been absent four years from Australia and has enjoyed his stay in Canada. On his holidays he has visited in the States and thinks Canada a wonderful place, especially in the Fall and Spring.

The 161st Variety Show put on by Langley's Toronto was much enjoyed by those who had the pleasure of attending it at Camp Mohawk last Wednesday night. The group have raised much money for the benefit of the boys in the Armed Services.

The Metcalfe Canning factory closed down last week after the latest run in many years.

Wife Arrives

Many friends of Gunner Geoffrey Hughes are very pleased to welcome his wife who arrived from England on Sunday afternoon.

Mrs. Hughes, formerly Audrey Hills, came from Grays in Essex and had a very nice trip over and cannot speak too highly of the Red Cross who looked after the wants of everyone.

Mrs. Hughes is a slight auburn-haired girlish person and expressed her pleasure at everything she had seen so far.

A number of beautiful gifts awaited her as her birthday was last Friday.

Gnr. Hughes expects to get his official discharge early in December. He returned about six weeks ago after four years' service overseas and was the first boy to join up for service when war broke out.

Ladies' Euchre Club

The Ladies' Euchre Club held a Bridge, Euchre and Dance in the Legion Hall last Tuesday night in aid of the Minesweepers Fund.

Cards were played the first part of the evening and the lucky winners were:— Bridge, Miss M. Stoddard 1st prize, and Mrs. C. Thompson, Consolation. Euchre, Mrs. W. Cranston 1st and Patsy Mowers Consolation.

Mrs. M. Huck was the winner of the lovely pair of towels which were drawn for.

Dancing was enjoyed by a goodly number.

The ladies appreciate very much the kindness of E. M. Roach and the Canadian Legion which helped so much towards the success of the evening.

Afternoon Tea

A very successful Afternoon Tea and Cookie Sale was held at the home of Mrs. T. W. Topping, Second St., on Wednesday last under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid of the Presbyterian Church.

The home was prettily decorated with yellow and white Chrysanthemums and the many callers were welcomed by the hostess and the President of the society, Mrs. C. F. Dimmell.

In the Tea-room Mrs. I. Allum presided over the tea table which was centred with a basket of white mums and blue tapers and was assisted in serving by Mrs. G. M. Campbell, Mrs. E. Elliott, Mrs. A. D. Moore, Mrs. T. L. McCullough, Mrs. C. Watson, Miss L. Warren and Mrs. James Whitton.

The Cookie Table was in charge of Miss M. Stoddard who had no trouble in disposing of the good things to eat.

Memorial Rink Fund Reaches $2250

Owing to the incompleteness of the list it will not be published this week, but next week a full and complete list will appear.

Work is proceeded with as scheduled and the ground is now levelled.

The work of putting up the boards is started. The dressing rooms are now completed, and when the boards are up the foundation will be finished waiting for the time to come when material is available to proceed with the main building.

We wish to acknowledge the assurance of help from the principals of both High and Public Schools, also the Y.W.A. of the United Church and urge other organizations to assist, as it will require everyone in town to do something to help put this over.

Ice will be made at the first opportunity and the rink will be opened as it stands.

We also wish to acknowledge a Dance sponsored by Mr. James Ford, Deseronto Public Utilities, on Thursday night.

Home and School Association Meets

The regular monthly meeting of the Home & School Association was held in the school auditorium on Friday evening, November 17th. Very encouraging to the President and Committee in charge was the attendance of parents and friends numbering about fifty and they enjoyed an entertaining and instructive program.

A 'variety program' in the form of a broadcast was put on by the pupils of Mr. Bowen's room and they are to be congratulated on their splendid performance.

F.O. Lemon, educational officer at No. 1, I.F.S., gave an instructive address on the subject "Education now and afterwards." He outlined the very comprehensive educational scheme already in operation to educate servicemen for any profession, industry or trade they might choose to follow.

This plan is sponsored by the Canadian Legion using their own personnel but financed with Government funds. The purpose is to turn out the servicemen as educated useful citizens. At the end of hostilities those going into University are allowed as many months free tuition as they have months of service, with a good living allowance. In the case of those following a trade, one year free tuition is given with living allowance. The ultimate aim of this educational plan is to provide exactly the same educational advantages for children in the urban districts as for those in the cities and larger towns.

Miss Hunt's room won the prize for the most mothers in attendance. Mr. C. Sager donated a special prize of $5.00 for each form. This was a very generous gesture and much appreciated by teachers and children.

Catholic Women's League Meeting

The regular Monthly Meeting of the Deseronto sub-division of the Catholic Women's League was held in the Parish Hall on Tuesday, November 14th with a good attendance of members.

The President, Miss Nora Fox, presided, and opened the meeting with prayer for the Armed Forces.

After the Roll Call and the reading of the Minutes of the last regular meeting, the Treasurer's Report was read showing a splendid balance.

Correspondence was read including a request from the Diocesan Convenor of War Services and Red Cross for a Spiritual Bouquet for the Chaplains and men overseas which received a good response.

A donation was granted to the Canadian League Magazine Fund.

It was decided to purchase curtains for the Parish Hall and a Rummage Sale is to be held on December 2nd.

Rev. Father Martin was present and spoke on the Canadian Register and asked for volunteers to canvass for the Drive which is being held this month for subscriptions to the paper, six members consenting to canvass the Parish.

The meeting closed with prayer by Rev. Father Martin for deceased members and a social hour followed.

Lion's Meeting in Deseronto

The regular meeting of the Lion's Club, Napanee, was held in Deseronto Monday, November 13th.

Lions, Reg. Wessman, Joe Reynolds and Sig. Wessman were in charge of the meeting. This is the second time such a meeting has been held here.

This year the meeting was in the form of "Ladies' Night". All Lions brought their wives and friends, and there were 100 persons in attendance.

The meeting opened in the regular way singing "O Canada". President Harry Skitch was in charge.

While enjoying an excellent meal served by the Ladies of the Canadian Legion, sing songs by the Lions were carried on in the usual manner.

After the singing of "God Save the King" President Harry Skitch turned the meeting over to Lion Reg. Wessman who acted as Chairman for the evening.

Lion Reg., after extending a welcome called on Lion Joe Reynolds to introduce the guests: W/C J. Berven and Lady, S/L McKenzie and Lady, Mr. and Mrs. G. Gibson and the Deseronto High School Quartette accompanied by Miss Sexsmith on the piano.

The speaker for the evening, Mr. J. O. Herity, was introduced by Lion Sig. Wessman who referred to the speaker's love, wide knowledge, and wonderful memory which enables him to speak without any hesitation on any subject.

Mr. Herity when rising to speak thanked his old friend for the kind introduction. His main subject was on "James Witcomb Riley, America's best loved poet."

At the conclusion, the appreciation was ably expressed by Lion Gerald Smith.

Chairman, Lion Reg. Wessman, then turned the meeting over to President Harry Skitch who personally thanked Mr. Herity and the Ladies' Auxiliary of the Canadian Legion for the splendid service and good eats.

The Deseronto Lions were then asked to stand and a good hand was given them for the splendid evening prepared.

Memorial Service

A very impressive memorial service was held in the Church of the Redeemer on Sunday morning in honor of the late Gnr. William Perlick, R.C.A., who died from wounds which he received in Italy in September after one years service there.

Rev. K. V. Matthews, minister of the Church, conducted the service and paid tribute to the young soldier reading from a letter which had been received from his Commanding Officer also telling of the help which had been given him by his comrades who thought so much of him.

Rev. W. H. Clarke assisted in the service with prayer.

Hymns sung were chosen by his young widow, the former Ruth Purvis. Rev. Matthews sang as a solo the beautiful selection "Alone". Fit/Lt. C. R. Cronmiller, R.C.A.F. Chaplain of No. 1, I.F.S., Camp Mohawk, brought a beautiful message of comfort to those who mourned and to a present.

Members of the Canadian Legion Branch 280 and members of the Ladies' Auxiliary attended in a body and placed their standards at each side of the pulpit which was surrounded with beautiful baskets of roses placed by Mrs. Perlick and baskets of Chrysanthemums placed in memory by Mrs. Perlick's parents and sisters, also a beautiful spray of white mums and red carnations from Branch 280 Canadian Legion.

The relatives of the soldier reside in the West and were unable to be present.

Here's A Pleasing Platter

When it's frosty on the outside, you'll want to serve something that warms the insides—a good hot meal to do justice to healthy appetites.

A sausage roll, surrounded by tender brussels sprouts, and sweet apple crescents, browned to a turn, may be just the menu you've been looking for. With a combination of old-fashioned substantiality and goodness, it's practically a guarantee that there won't be any food left on the platter by dessert time.

Stuffed Sausage Roll
2 cups chopped raw apples 1 cup bread crumbs
1 cup All-Brans 1 cup All-Brans
3/4 cup chopped onion 2 pounds sausage meat

Combine apples, onions, crumbs and All-Brans to form dressing. Pat sausage into rectangular piece about 3/4-inch thick. Spread stuffing over surface of meat. Roll up like a jelly roll, beginning at the long side of rectangle so that roll will not be too thick. Bake in shallow pan, in a moderate oven (350 F.) about 45 minutes, or until done. Cut in slices to serve.

Yield: 1 roll (8-10 servings).

All-Brans Stuffing
12 cups 1/4-inch bread cubes 2 teaspoons salt
1 cup All-Brans 1/2 teaspoon pepper
3 tablespoons minced onion 1/2 teaspoon poultry seasoning
3/4 cup fat 1 1/2 cups stock or water

Combine bread cubes with All-Brans. Sauté onion in fat and add to bread mixture. Add seasonings and stock which may be made by dissolving 2 bouillon cubes in 1 1/2 cups hot water. Mix well.

Yield: 6 to 8 servings.

Sapphires and Diamonds

by DOROTHY TROWBRIDGE

CHAPTER XIII

"I suppose you're right," he sighed, seating himself beside her. "Take one thing at a time. Well, let's hurry and get it over. Now let's see, a ring is lost. By the way, what kind of a ring is it?"

"An engagement ring."

"Yes, so I have been told, but you needn't rub it in. What's all this big idea anyway about so much secrecy? If it's your engagement ring why pretend to your grandmother it's Miss Nancy's?"

"We can go into all that some other time," Peggy told him coldly.

"Well, that's a help. At least it holds a promise for another time. Don't worry. I won't forget," he assured her. Of course all this was no way for a detective to find anything, and she should be angry, but Peggy realized that she was not meeting his eye because she knew she would laugh with him if she did. And she knew that would never do.

"Having progressed so rapidly, suppose you describe the aforementioned ring." He took an envelope and a pencil from his pocket and sat forward evidently prepared to write.

"It's a big diamond—a square cut one."

"Oh, I see, a nice juicy square cut solitaire."

"Yes. No—wait a minute. It wasn't just a solitaire. There were some other stones with it—sapphires. Yes, I remember there were several sapphires."

He looked at her in surprise. "Are you by any chance describing your own engagement ring? Or is this something you saw one day as you passed a jeweler's window?"

Peggy did feel foolish. "Don't be ridiculous. I am so upset and worried I can scarcely think."

"Oh, I'm sorry. All right, then, we have it a square cut diamond with some sapphires. How many sapphires?"

"I don't know."

His only reply was a slight raising of his eyebrows which Peggy saw beneath half-lowered lids. "Were they in any kind of a design or—just there?"

"Heavens! I don't know. You find any square cut diamond ring with some sapphires in it, and I assure you that will be the ring." Peggy had jumped to her feet angrily, and was standing at the entrance to the summer house with her back to him.

She heard the rustling of paper as he stuffed the envelope back in his pocket.

"It just doesn't make sense," he announced, joining her. "If I gave a girl a ring like that and she couldn't describe it any more clearly than you have I'd know darn well she didn't care anything about me."

"Have you been engaged and married frequently, Mr. Newton?" "I? Oh, no. I know I'm funny that way. I've always felt that I only wanted to propose to one girl, and that would be the girl I was darn sure I wanted to marry."

"And you haven't found the girl, in spite of knowing so well how she would be affected by the ring?"

"Yes, I'm pretty sure that I've found the girl," he replied thoughtfully. "I was getting a little low at the prospect of marriage, but my hopes are getting higher. It may all come out all right after all."

There was a low whistle on the other side of the hedge which neither of them heard.

"But I don't like looking for anything so indefinite as this ring as you describe it. Perhaps it would be better to ask the young man. Probably he could tell me more about it."

Peggy was conscious that Stanley was watching her closely. "Unfortunately, he is out of town," she replied casually.

"When will he be back?"

"Next week?"

But just as she spoke she realized a man had suddenly appeared in the opening in the side of the hedge.

"Harry!" she cried aghast.

At the sight of the two figures in the summer house Harry had retreated from view. Stanley Newton started forward but she laid a restraining hand on his arm, and he turned back.

"Who is he?" he asked, a puzzled expression on his face. "Could he be the thief?"

"Heavens, no!"

At her tone, he turned to her quickly.

"You don't mean that he is the man to whom you are engaged?"

Peggy remained silent.

"Well, now, isn't that just dandy! This beloved fiance who is to be out of town for another week suddenly appears from behind a hedge and at the sight of me beats it. And as for you, instead of rushing to the arms of your lover, you utter a terrified squeal of 'Harry' and look as if you were going to faint. Now I ask you, is that any way for a loving couple to act? Shall I leave? If that is what is embarrassing you—"

"Oh, no, don't," Peggy pleaded. If she were left alone Harry might come back. Then what would she say?

Stanley threw his hands in the air. "It is too much for me," he announced walking back in the summer house.

"You simply have no imagination," Peggy told him. "In spite of all your theories. My—engagement to him is broken and he is coming back for his ring. Naturally he doesn't want to ask for it before strangers, and naturally I don't want to see him until I have the ring to give him. Now do you see? There was enough truth in this statement to make Peggy feel almost straight forward."

"Do I see?" Stanley cried. Catching her in his arms, he whirled her madly about the small enclosure. "Oh, boy, do I? Now we can sit down and talk about ourselves, can't we? Certainly we can." Suddenly he released her.

"No," she shook her head breathlessly. "That's just what we can't do. Don't you see how important it is to find the ring now—right away?"

"Lord, that's right. I had forgotten all about the ring. Haven't you any idea where the darn thing

No Call-Up Notices For Britons Over 35

Men in Britain now 35 or over will not be called up for the Services.

Instructions have been issued to Ministry of Labor military service sections that unless there is a marked change in the war situation men in the older age groups will not be needed for the armed forces.

The decision is based on three factors:

1. There are now enough trained men in the armed forces to settle the war in the West.

2. The War in the East will be one for young men trained in the mechanics of modern battle.

3. Most men of military age among the over 35's not yet called up are already doing work of national importance for which they have received deferments.

THE RECORD IS MAINTAINED

"Well done Hastings county!"
Thus, with final figures tabulated, county officials of the Seventh Victory Loan organization paid tribute to the splendid response of Hastings residents in the purchases of Victory Bonds in the campaign just completed.

Total subscriptions to the Seventh Victory Loan by county residents amounted to $4,321,700, or 115.8 per cent of the $3,730,000, it was reported by campaign headquarters.

The number of applications received during the loan was 18,451 as compared with the 17,515 applications received during the Sixth Victory Loan when 106.58 per cent of the $3,500,000 objective was achieved.

Fine Achievement

Outside of the magnificent achievement of the county armed forces in far over-subscribing their objective, it was the response in the general canvassing areas, especially the rural districts, which contributed to splendid over-subscription to the loan throughout the county. With only one rural canvassing area failing to reach its objective, bond purchasers in the general canvass division came through with subscriptions amounting to $3,444,300. Objective in the general canvass division of the campaign was $3,000,000.

After over-subscribing their objective of $330,000 early in the campaign of the county armed forces went on to roll up a wholly unexpected record of 506,400 in Victory Bonds purchased. The armed services division totalled 4266 applications.

With an objective of $400,000 the special names division just failed to reach its mark with final figures showing 92.75 per cent or $371,000.

Some kind of a record was established by county industrial employees with every firm both in payroll savings and in group payroll sections achieving at least 100 per cent of their objective. Fourteen firms or groups of employees in the group payroll achieved their respective goals while 10 of these reported substantial over-subscription. The same held true in the payroll savings group when 27 firms announced surpassing their respective objectives.

RESULTS TABULATED.

Final results of the county campaign follow:

Beautiful pansies and violas are still blooming in a local garden and is not unusual, but when we pick a bunch of violets in the fall we think it is unusual as they only bloom in the spring as a rule. The violets are not quite as blue as usual due to a few cool nights.

So far this year, Long Distance calling is almost 10 per cent heavier than in 1943, when toll calls set an all-time high.

So it is obvious why we must all continue to avoid needless Long Distance calls. Otherwise, pressing war business may be seriously delayed. And such delays can cost lives!

Please make only necessary calls.

Yes! There's a SHORTAGE!

In November, especially, there's a seasonal shortage of bottles and cartons! Naturally this tends to slow up deliveries from plant to store during the holiday season. So... please, return your empties promptly to your nearest Brewers' Retail Store... they can be used over and over again.

Thank You!

THE fight against V.D. is a family affair...

A laughing couple, dodging showers of rice... fireside... garden... chubby babies...

These are scenes we know and like, because they're part of our lives... because they spell happiness... contentment.

But we know that these things don't "just happen." They have to be worked for, lived for. Protected, too, because of ever-present dangers which may spoil them.

Veneral Disease is a spoiler. In a cold, relentless way it can kill infants, rob the home of its breadwinner, cripple, destroy. These are not mere possibilities. THEY HAPPEN... RIGHT HERE IN CANADA!

But, these things should never happen. They can be prevented.

Young men and women can safeguard their future happiness together by making sure before marriage that V.D. will not blight their plans. A medical examination, including a blood test for syphilis, is a protection no couple can afford to pass up.

The expectant mother, too, may know for sure that her baby will be all she dreamed of. Syphilis in the expectant mother rarely shows outward signs, and it is no respecter of persons. An early check-up by her doctor, including a blood test, is a most essential, yet simple, first step in protecting her baby's health.

Nor must the breadwinner neglect his part. The security of the home depends upon his ability to work regularly and efficiently. Undisputed syphilis, striking in middle life, may make the head of the home unable to provide for his family. It is wise to KNOW FOR SURE in time. Industrial medical examinations should include a routine confidential blood test.

A blood test should not be looked upon as something unusual. It should be regarded for what it is... a normal safeguard of health, security and happiness.

Invest a few minutes of your time in ASSURANCE.

THE MIXING BOWL

By ANNE ALLAN
Hydro Home Economist

Hello Homemakers! Hints for home nurses is our thought for the day. With the shortage of nurses and hospital rooms, many illnesses, unless critical, might be treated at home. This, of course, will depend on the advice of your doctor. Home nursing is no easy job, especially when the homemaker has to run the house and take care of the rest of the family, too. Recently, many women have taken the course in home nursing and realize that definite instructions should be carried out with regard to sleep, food and medicines. Then, there's also the problem of keeping the convalescent in a contented frame of mind. It's easy enough to say, but not so easy to do. Children are so lively when they are well, that it's almost impossible to keep them happy in a sick bed, especially when they are on the road to recovery. Things around the house can be used to advantage for construction work on a tray in front of them. . . for instance, a paper jig-saw puzzle, hard cooked eggs to decorate, paper to clip, colour, braid, fold and make into airplanes, ships or buildings. Tack wax paper on a board and let them use finger paints. Story books come in handy for anyone—even grown-ups like someone to read to them. If mother has time, she can sit and do some mending in the convalescent room.

At first, patients are usually placed on liquid diet which usually includes milk, buttermilk, eggnog, malted milk, cocoa, cream soups, clear broth, whole grain cereal gruels, strained fruit and vegetables, ices, sherberts and ice cream. They should have one quart of milk a day, no more, as you do not want to "sicken" them of it. Part of it can be used as milk to drink, and the rest in sherberts, creamed soups, and cereal gruels. Ginger ale, coffee and tea are sometimes served for variety, rather than food value.

Soft diets may be recommended by the doctor, especially after liquid diets. For a soft diet, softcooked or poached eggs, custards and all simple cooked puddings, cooked whole-grain cereals, gelatin and sieved vegetables.

On a light diet you add tender meat such as chicken, lamb chops, baked fish, all cooked fruits and raw citrus fruits.

A full diet means all restrictions are removed except that fried foods, rich puddings, and pastries are omitted or given in small amounts until the patients gets back to regular routine.

Foods with strong flavour, such as onions, cauliflower, cabbage and turnips should be used cautiously. Excessively sweet foods such as jams, preserves and candies should be given sparingly. Condiments and spices should be used as little as possible, while scorched foods, poorly sieved foods or large pieces of meat should be avoided.

All foods should be cooked carefully to preserve vitamins, minerals and ease of indigestion. Dishes need colour, variety of flavour and attractive servings. Serve meals on an attractive tray, with pretty dishes, perhaps a flower or gay cloth—anything to perk up the patient.

TAKE A TIP

1. Cook foods for invalids in small quantities and according to the hour of feeding. The most palatable foods may be spoiled by allowing it to stand after being prepared.
2. Cover tray with a clean serviette or tray cloth. Avoid serving too many things or too large portions. When the nature of the dish permits it, add a piece of red cherry, or a small sprig of parsley.
3. If possible, taste all foods and drinks before serving, for seasoning and temperature. Always use a separate spoon for tasting.

4. When liquid foods are to be given, other receptacles should be used than those used for medicine or the association of ideas may be strong enough to destroy what little appetite the patient has. Fill cups and glasses to within one inch of top—not full.

5. Cover all foods and drinks left standing in the sickroom. The tray and all traces of the meal should be removed immediately after eating. Care should be taken, however, not to hurry the patient through a meal.

6. The diet of a patient should be under the supervision of a doctor and his directions followed implicitly.

7. Store the food supplies in covered containers in a cool place, preferably the refrigerator. The refrigerator or cupboard should be kept scrupulously clean.

8. All dishes or utensils used in the sickroom should be washed in a separate bowl in hot, soapy water and scalded with boiling water. In case of infectious diseases, dishes should be boiled in two quarts of water, containing one-half cup of baking-soda for one-half hour.

Treasurer's Sale of Land for Taxes

TAKE NOTICE that a list of land, three years in arrears of taxes, has been prepared and copies thereof, may be had in the office of the Town Treasurer.

A LIST will be published in the Ontario Gazette, September 2nd, October 7th and November 4th respectively, and unless the arrears and costs are sooner paid, the Treasurer will proceed to sell the lands for taxes and costs, on Monday the 11th day of December 1944, at the Town Hall, Deseronto, at 3 o'clock in the afternoon.

The KIDS

ARE CERTAINLY

TOUGH ON SHOES!

1,300,000 MORE PAIRS
OF CHILDREN'S SHOES LAST YEAR

In the last twelve months Canadian manufacturers made for Canadian children about 25% more shoes than in 1939—a fine job—done by the organization and direction of production by this Board's Footwear Administration and the co-operation of manufacturers. And this was accomplished while they were making more essential type shoes for war workers, who wear out their shoes faster than they do in their normal employment.

Now you see it.

THE DISAPPEARING ACT OF RUBBER-SOLE SHOES

In normal times most young Canadians got at least one pair of rubber soled, canvas-top shoes a year. But natural rubber supplies fell into enemy hands, and the manufacture of rubber footwear was drastically curtailed. We're now using reclaimed and synthetic rubber in these shoes—there have been more of them this year and there will be more next year. Leather-soled shoes have had to be used in place of this rubber-soled footwear but shoes made of leather need more care than running shoes. When they don't get it they wear out more quickly; when they get wet they must be dried slowly, away from direct heat—and they should be greased also. It's not always a case of poor quality; it's poor care.

Now you don't!

LEATHER GOES TO WAR

You've got to have good strong leather for children's shoes, but the soldiers are taking most of ours for their boots. For these leathers, a substantial portion of the hides came from South America and other countries. War cut down these imports and there have been difficulties in getting enough of these and our own hides tanned into leather due to shortage of workers. The production of high grade leather shoes has, however, been maintained at the highest level consistent with the labour and materials available. While shoe factories have been working overtime, factory capacity for civilian shoes cannot be expanded in wartime and it's not possible to change plants from the manufacture of one type of shoe to another—for instance, from women's to children's. The processes, the machines and the lasts are different.

TURNING HIDES INTO SHOES

There are very large war uses of leather—for instance, in footwear. A soldier requires four pairs of shoes in the first year of his service and about three pairs per year thereafter. But, what is more important, he needs to have his shoes re-soled four or five times a year. His shoes are of the highest quality leathers obtainable, leaving the other grades of leather for civilian use. Airmen need leather for jackets and mitts. War factories need leather for belting and farmers need leather for harness. Leather—the best leathers—has gone to war.

CHINESE FLEE BEFORE JAPANESE ADVANCE

EVACUATION EXPRESS—As Jap troops converged on Liuchow from the north, south and east, the long-suffering Chinese civilian population prepared to flee. For weary thousands, no transportation could be provided. A lucky few shown in these remarkable photographs crammed every inch of space on a freight train loaded with human cargo. They clung to their babies, to a few scraps of food, to such pathetic luxuries as the parasol shading the youngster huddled close to the smokestack. From locomotive caboose, wherever their fingers could hang on, refugees clung to the train.

SALUTE—He's hungry, but this little tyke manages to say "Thumbs Up" with a grin that typifies indomitable spirit.

SCOOP—Children rush to scoop out hot coals from underneath the locomotive as the train stops for a few minutes. Embers will be used for heating purposes by the chilled, hungry refugees, who huddle together for protection against chill November winds.

SAVED CRUCIFIX

Ancient Filipino woman clutches her precious crucifix, which she carried with her when she fled into the hills when Yanks invaded Leyte. It was the only possession she saved and she hangs onto it for dear life. While hiding out, crucifix was used to set up a small shrine in the hills where natives prayed for deliverance.

We Can Buy Our Way Into a Breadline

History is a meek little word that covers a multitude of suffering. And only through profiting by past mistakes... will we suffer less! Remember how in the last war folks "blew" their money. Needless spending caused prices to rise... so that by 1918, the 25th floor you buy today for 89¢ cost $1.85 then; while baby's coat was 42¢ compared to a similar coat at 49¢ today. This was inflation and all too soon it was followed by the inevitable depression! That's why our government is determined to prevent inflation now... why there are price ceilings and other anti-inflationary measures to hold the cost of living down and keep our dollar value high. And YOU help prevent a future depression and keep your dollars high in value... every time you pass up a needless luxury... invest your money wisely... and avoid black market spending.

Make This
Today!

I promise to give my support to keeping the cost of living down. I will buy only what I need. I will observe the ceiling whether buying or selling goods or services. I will pay off old debts, save for the future, invest in Victory Bonds and War Savings Certificates. And I will support taxes which help lower the cost of living.

Keep Your Dollar Value High!

Ladies' Auxiliary New Year's Gifts

Through the kindness of the Secretary of the Ladies' Auxiliary we print the names of about 80 of our boys and two nurses who offered their services to their country and are now overseas or have returned within the last month. There are many more that should be on this list but their names have not been sent in. We ask them to do so as soon as possible in order that they may receive a gift of cigarettes or chocolates as a New Year's Gift. The ladies of the Auxiliary send each year to the boys overseas and also to those in uniform at home.

We hope to have the names of those who have paid the supreme sacrifice so that they may head the list in our paper.

Two New Members In Town Council Given Acclamation

Although quite a number were nominated at the Nomination Meeting in the Council Chamber on Friday evening only a sufficient number qualified to fill the vacancies in the various positions of the town.

Either they were quite satisfied with the work done in the past year or not interested enough to come out.

Two new councillors were needed to take the places of Mr. J. A. Shields who resigned due to ill health and of Mr. Leonard Thompson who left to reside in Trenton some time ago.

Mr. R. W. Dunn, Merchant of town, is one of the new Councillors for next year, a newcomer to the town during the past year and the other is Mr. W. O. Ravin who had previous experience as a member of the council.

Mr. B. L. Dettlor, whose term was up on the Public Utilities Commission, has again qualified for next year.

The three retiring trustees of the Board of Education were also given an acclamation, namely Rev. F. G. Robinson, Mrs. T. L. McCullough and Mrs. C. F. Dimmell.

Mayor S. Wessman, Reeve E. M. Roach and Councillors C. F. Dimmell, H. Howard, W. E. Irwin, and G.

Col. Arne Dahl, above, who was the commander of the famous Alta Battalion during the last days of Norway's stand against the Nazis at Narvik, now is leading a contingent of Norwegian soldiers fighting with the Russians against the Germans on Norwegian soil. Queen Is Descended From Scottish King

The recent death of the Earl of Strathmore recalls that Queen Elizabeth is descended from an old Scottish King. The earl used to claim that his family connections in Scotland were as old and as honorable as the Royal Family's in England, comments the Windsor Star.

Glamis Castle, the residence of the Bowes-Lyon family, was given to Sir John Lyon in 1376. He was a courtier and secretary to King Robert III of Scotland. He married Princess Jean, daughter of Robert, who gave the young couple the castle for their home.

The ninth Earl of Strathmore married a daughter of the Bowes family and added her name to his own to make the hyphenated Bowes-Lyon, which is the Queen's family name.

Lightkeeper's Wife Has Many Problems

"Family" light stations in Alaska, and there a woman faces unique problems, says the Christian Science Monitor.

Foremost is transport, as one lighthouse bride discovered after bringing her grand piano to Alaska. She was horrified when it was taken ashore in a cargo boat and heaved up a cliff to her new home.

Menus require careful planning. Canned goods, delivered once a year, are supplemented by meat, vegetables and dairy products brought by a weekly mailboat. Summer gardens are bountiful, fish plentiful in the "front yard" or near-by trout streams, and, in season, game birds and venison.

Shopping is by mail-order catalog, radio appeals to the Coast Guard office, or "hitch-hiking" to town in fishing boats.

Children as a rule are healthy. School-age youngsters usually board in town, but former teachers sometimes receive generous checks for instructing their own children and those of the other keeper. Territorial law provides a teacher for five pupils.

Sugar Bricks

A method of extracting and concentrating sugar beet juice at the place of production is now used in Russia to reduce cost of transportation. The juice is extracted and evaporated then pressed into briquettes which are sent to a large establishment to be converted into sugar. Experiments have shown that these briquettes can be stored for several years without chemical change or loss of sugar content.

ers sometimes receive generous checks for instructing their own children and those of the other keeper. Territorial law provides a teacher for five pupils.

Social life is meager. Keepers work 16 hours daily; one is always on watch. For 18 months their wives dream of the six glorious months of leave when they can travel with their husbands and visit friends.

OLD MEANING

An old-timer is one who can remember when a bureau was a piece of furniture.

No Yuletide Logs For Paris This Year

The public has been officially warned there will be no Yuletide logs in any Parisian homes this year — nor any heating of any kind, for that matter.

With transport still disorganized, imports of coal are at present impossible. Parisians have been told, and their own wives, whose upkeep has been neglected during the occupation, lack timber.

On top of that, the requirements of the French public services and above all the urgent requirements of the Allied armies are still so great that transport and labor cannot yet be diverted for domestic and civilian purposes.

CHAPTER XIV

Stanley was looking at her, a hopelessly perplexed expression on his face. "Woman, I certainly am taking you on faith. You either greet your guest and your sister wearing an engagement ring after you have broken your engagement, which, my dear, just isn't done. Or you greet them properly engaged, then through a process of mental telepathy — Maxine says he hasn't been around and you say he is out of town — you break the engagement. And that, my dear, just can't be done. But you don't look queer," he added judiciously. "You look plain grand. I knew that yesterday when I met you on the road, and I knew it again when I met you in town and I knew—"

He paused. Then his face suddenly brightened. "You promise that once you have the ring you'll give it back to him?"

Peggy nodded quickly. "You're sure you won't let him talk you into reconsidering the engagement?"

Peggy shook her head vigorously.

"Of course I can't imagine any man ever taking no for an answer after you have once said yes, but I'll have to trust you. Now you run along and get your beauty sleep, or something, since you don't need that. Anyway you come back here at six o'clock and I think you may find that there is a Santa Claus after all."

"You mean you honestly believe you can find the ring this afternoon?" Peggy jumped to her feet with her eyes shining. "Have you any idea where it is? Where will you look?"

He shook his head at her reprovingly. "Don't ask questions. Don't you remember I told your grandmother I had my own method?"

William's small grandson appeared at the entrance before she could answer.

"Dey's done rang de gong for dinner long time ago," he announced. "Mis' Ma'y said for me to come find yo' all. Ah'se been all aroun'."

"Why, are you sure?" Peggy asked in surprise. "We didn't hear any gong."

"No'm, Ah reckon not. But it's done rang. An' yo' can sho' hear dat gong when dey rings it, way off. Ef yo' mine ain't wand'r'in'."

Stanley chuckled and threw the boy a piece of silver that made the little darkey's face shine like polished ebony. Peggy ran through the path of the rose garden with Stanley close behind her. The others were still on the back terrace waiting for them.

"I'm sorry," they both began, breathlessly.

"Peggy must have told you a lot," Maxine said, with a mischievous smile.

"She did," Stanley assured her.

Here is a clinically-proven, two-way treatment for colds!

Take ALLERGI-TABS to "blitz" that "drip"—relieve congestion and discomfort within an hour. ALLERGI-TABS combine fast-acting medicinal ingredients with Vitamin C. One or two tablets will prove how effective they are!

Take VITAVAX to speed recovery, increase vitality and build immunity to future colds. VITAVAX combines Cold Vaccine (specially prepared to combat common cold bacteria) with richly concentrated Vitamins A, B, C and D.

Remember: ALLERGI-TABS for speedy relief from colds; VITAVAX to build immunity to colds. Ask your druggist, Roberts Biological Laboratory, Toronto.

"I found out a number of things that encourage me immensely."

"Oh," said Mrs. Horton, in satisfaction that her granddaughter had been of some help.

"Oh!" queried Maxine, in a tone that implied "Now what?"

"Oh!" came Nancy's startled tone, and

"Oh!" exclaimed Peggy.

While they were at the table Mrs. Horton suggested that she thought it would be much better if Mr. Newton would remain at the house while he was looking for the ring. "I'll have William drive into town this afternoon and get your bags, if that arrangement suits you," she suggested to her guest.

"You are most kind, Mrs. Horton. I can't tell you what it would mean to me to stay here for a day or two. I believe, however, it would be better for me to go into town and get my things myself. I am afraid I have things pretty much scattered about my room, and as I have my car it won't take me long. I shall be back very shortly."

Maxine and Peggy had exchanged surprised glances at Mrs. Horton's invitation to Stanley. Gran was always hospitable, but she did not ask people to visit in her home unless she genuinely liked them, and counted them her friends.

"What do you want to do this afternoon, Nancy?" Peggy asked guiltily. She had forgotten all about having a guest whom she must keep entertained. "Shall we go for a drive?"

"No," Nancy replied. "To tell you the truth, Pidge is coming."

"Pidge?" Mrs. Horton asked. "Yes, that's the man I am going to marry."

"Well, it seems to me that we must all get busy and find your ring. We can't have you meeting your fiancé without your ring. Don't stay long in town, will you, Mr. Newton?"

"No," he assured her. "I'll be back in a very short time."

Maxine and Peggy exchanged worried glances, and Nancy merely smiled.

"Oh, Nancy, I think that is splendid," Peggy cried as they left the table. "That you all have made up. Did he call you this morning while I was out?"

"You'll learn all about it this afternoon when he comes," Nancy assured her. "I think I'll go upstairs and dress. I don't know just when he'll come. You don't mind, do you?"

"Why of course not. Do whatever you like," Peggy told her.

Maxine followed Peggy on to the terrace, while Gran went upstairs for a little rest. Stanley had already driven off to town. "I wish we could have found that ring before this Pidge person comes. He will arrive bringing Nancy her ring, and how will we look then? I think Nancy only told him to come today to put you on the spot."

A Lot Of Nylons In One De-Icer

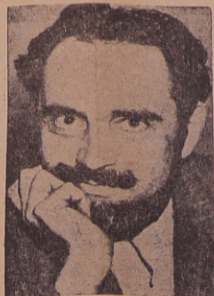

A statistician at the B. F. Goodrich plant has figured that a single installation on a B-29 of the new Type 11 de-icer — though thinner and lighter than earlier models of the pulsating wing-edge ice breaker — requires, among other things:

One mile of seaming tape; 5,000 spools of household sewing thread; enough nylon for 100 pairs of hose, and enough "stretchable fabric" to make 100 girdles.

Synthetic Printing

Rubber stamps and rubber printing plates made of synthetic rubber are said to be better than those made of the natural product.

MASS KILLER?

Dr. Marcel Petiot, who was wearing the uniform of a captain of the FPI when arrested in a Paris, France, suburb, is accused of murdering more than 50 persons in a death chamber. He has denied the charges and awaits trial.

CHRONICLES of GINGER FARM

By
Gwendoline P. Clarke

It's a white world outside. It looks so strange after the perpetual fall we have been having. But still, it isn't really cold so maybe winter hasn't come to stay. If it has we are a lot nearer being ready for it than we were a week ago. The tractor has gone to its home in the driving shed until spring shall come again. And that is really something. We began to think the fall ploughing would never get done with the ground so dry as it has been. Certainly it wouldn't have been done had we been obliged to depend on the horses. Weather conditions are different in England. We had a letter yesterday which said — "It is such a wet, miserable autumn—so dreadful for the bombed-out people in London". It also added—"G"—is getting fly-bombs now". "G—" is that part of England where both Partner and I were born and raised.

Weather in Canada is often a topic of conversation—we like it, or dislike it, as it affects our work or pleasure. It is very rarely we are constrained to think of it in terms of safety or personal hardship. If the winds blow or a deluge falls we possibly look through the window and say "Isn't that an awful storm?"—and we stay under cover until it is over. There are no spaces in our homes where windows should be; no gaping holes in the roof over our heads... and yet how seldom we realize how fortunate we in this country have been, and how much we owe to our boys who "go down to the sea in ships". I was thinking that a little while ago as I packed two extra ditty bags that were donated by the members of our Institute. It seems such a little thing to do. I believe the bags are supposed to value about four dollars each. How little each one of us would miss that four dollars if we kept a box on hand all the time, dropping into it some little extra that we had picked up when we were shopping each week, until we had enough in our box to fill a ditty bag. Perhaps you say—"That is just what I do for my boy who is overseas." Well, of course you do, why wouldn't you? He is your own flesh and blood, isn't he? And I am sure you get a lot of satisfaction in doing it. But a ditty bag for a stranger—that's something else again. But those sailor boys have friends and relatives, you say. No doubt most of them do but I never heard of a sailor yet who had too many parcels, too many ditty bags, or too many letters. How about it neighbours—there is still time before the first of December to fill a ditty bag?

I can hear a lot of hammering going on down in the cellar. That is one compensation for a stormy day—jobs get done that wouldn't even be looked at if it were still possible to work outside. We have never really caught up with the work since our new furnace was put in last spring. It is something like buying a new hat—you just have to get a coat to go with it... and then a pair of shoes, gloves and a purse. At least that is how it was in pre-war days. With the furnace in so many things have to be changed. My fruit shelf must be hung in a different cellar; the potato bin moved; coal bin enlarged and divided. And as for the rest of the house—there is no end to the work I can find to do.

Partner has started getting quite mad at me. He says whenever he comes in I am tramping around from one end of the house to the other. No doubt he is right but then I never had a chance to do it before. When one side of the house was akin to the Arctic circle I didn't stay around very long. Really the furnace is bringing us more comfort than I ever thought possible.

And now if the government would only make us the present of a hydro permit. But it will come—it will come, if we wait long enough.

District Ministerial Association Meeting

The Napanee and District Ministerial Association held their regular meeting on Monday morning, Dec. 4th, in the Salvation Army Citadel, Napanee.

The following members were present: Rev. C. D. McLellan, Rev. P. D. Cameron, Rev. J. F. Dingman, Capt. N. McBride, Lieut. E. Peacocke, all of Napanee; Rev. H. A. Bunt, and Rev. W. H. Clarke of Deseronto; Rev. Jas. Robinson and Mrs. D. F. Aylsworth of Bath; Rev. Kenneth Crawford of Adolphustown; Rev. W. R. Merric of Selby, and Rev. W. G. Fletcher of Yarker.

The meeting was opened by the president reading a passage of Scripture, after which Rev. W. H. Clarke led in prayer.

The minutes were read and adopted. Favorable reports were received from the committee appointed at the October meeting to secure the co-operation of Undertakers and Cemetery officials re. our action on Sunday Funerals. The following resolution was then moved, seconded and unanimously carried:

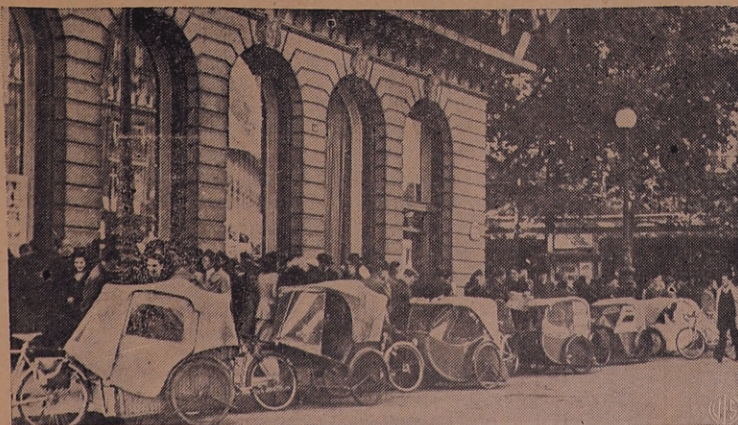

"Whereas Sunday Funerals interfere with the regular Services of Worship especially in the rural areas and prevent the Undertakers and Cemetery workers having their regular day of rest and worship, and having secured the co-operation of Undertakers and Cemetery Officials, we the members of the Napanee and District Ministerial Association, put ourselves on record as agreed that Sunday Funerals should be discontinued."

A similar motion had been unanimously passed at the October meeting, when a number more of the members of the Association had been present.

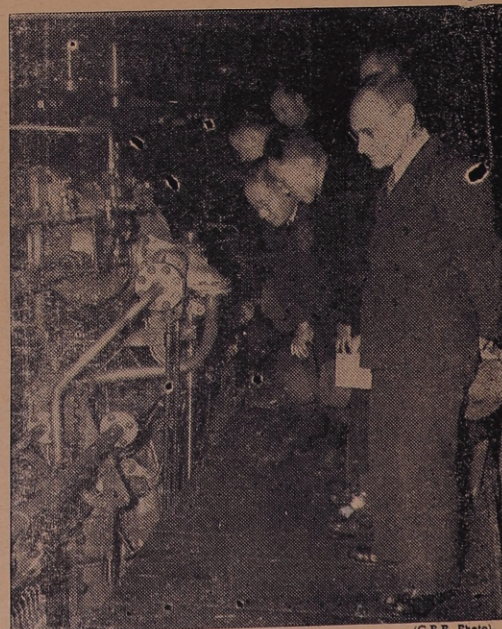

A letter from the County Council was read re. observance of V-E Day and it was moved, seconded and carried that the President, Secretary and the Ministers of Napanee be a committee to arrange with the co-operation of the County Council a County Service on V-E Day.

Rev. Kenneth Crawford gave us a very fine paper on the Prophet Amos, which was followed by discussion and an expression of thanks to the speaker.

The President closed the meeting with the Benediction.

WHEELS GO 'ROUND AND 'ROUND—Looking somewhat squat and very much homemade, these cycle-taxis are lined up on Boulevard des Capucines in Paris, awaiting calls. With petrol shortage, Parisian transportation is strictly functional.

POSSIBLE JAP HEADACHE: Members of the technical committee of the National Resources Commission of China show great interest in the Canadian Pacific Railway's Angus Shops, Montreal, where they are inspecting a marine engine taking shape for use in an invasion barge, which may see service in the Pacific. The visit was part of a fact-finding tour of Ontario and Quebec plants in November to aid Chinese post-war reconstruction.

How Can I?

By Anne Ashley

Q. How can I remove wrinkles from a garment?

A. Moisten with common starch and water. Apply on the wrong side with a cloth and then iron.

Q. How can I remove burnt stains from aluminum?

A. These stains on aluminum or other unsoldered utensil of brass, tin, or iron, can be removed by placing it while empty over the gas flame or fire until red hot.

Q. How can I keep vegetables from losing their appetizing color when they are cooked?

A. By not cooking them too long. Spinach, asparagus, cabbage, and cauliflower seldom need more than 10 minutes cooking; carrots, peas, turnips, and parsnips between 20 and 30 minutes.

Q. How can I bleach white goods?

A. By washing in the usual way and then soaking overnight in one half gallon of clear water, to which is added two teaspoonfuls cream of tartar.

Q. How can I go over scratches on wall paper so that they will not show?

A. By moistening a scrap of the paper which has been saved, and then carefully scraping off the coloring with a sharp knife. Apply this coloring to the scratch, and when dry it will scarcely be noticeable.

CHAPTER XV

"Oh, dear, I wish so too," Peggy cried desperately. She didn't tell Maxine of Stanley's hope to have it by late afternoon. That did not seem very promising now. Why hadn't he waited until later to go in town for his bags, and stayed here and looked for the ring? That ring is a hoo-doo, she thought. First I bend it, then—Maxine, I'm going into town. Never mind why. I'll be back soon." She ran to the kitchen to tell William to get her the pony cart, and in a few minutes was driving rapidly down the road toward town with her hopes running very high.

But she returned home and hour and a half later more in the depths than ever. The ring that she had suddenly remembered Mr. Carver was making like Harry's, had already been sold when she reached Marshville.

"I wanted to see the ring you were making," she had told the old man.

"Well now, Miss Peggy, that's mighty sweet of you to be that interested, and I wish you could have seen it. But it's sold already. I worked right straight through on that ring from the time I started on it yesterday. Jim said I was crazy. He wanted me to take my time at it. But once I get started to work on a thing like that, I've just got to keep going and get it finished. And it certainly was a beauty. As much like that ring of your friend's as two peas in a pod. I just had it finished and was standing here admiring it, when in comes a young man and buys it right off. Some girl surely is going to be happy to have that ring."

She had been so sure she had found a way out that to discover she was too late was about the last straw. Why on earth hadn't she thought of it sooner?

"Where's everyone?" she asked Maxine on her return.

"Nancy is still upstairs. Gran came down about the time Stanley returned and he asked her if he might talk to her. They have been shut up in the parlor ever since."

"For heaven's sake, why?" Peggy demanded. "He doesn't think Gran knows anything about it, does he? She certainly seems to like him, Maxine. I was awfully surprised, weren't you? Gran and a detective!"

There was a sudden sound in the upper hall. A door was being flung open and light footsteps were rushing down the stairs.

"Nancy," murmured Peggy. "Pidge must have come," whispered Maxine.

But Pidge had not come. It was only Nancy rushing out to them on the terrace with a motion picture magazine held open in her hand.

"I suppose that was meant to be funny!" she snapped at Maxine as she passed her and handed the magazine to the astonished Peggy. "Here is a picture of your sister's Mr. Newton. She told her as if Peggy could fail to recognize the face that was smiling at her from the page. "Mr. Stanley Newton," Nancy read aloud, "one of the youngest and most outstanding directors of the motion picture industry today." So that's your detective!"

Peggy stared in amazement at the picture in her hand. He wasn't a detective. No wonder he wasn't fat and he didn't wear a derby hat, or—

Maxine was laughing. "For heaven's sake don't let Gran see that. Of course Stanley isn't a detective. He is my director and he came here to see me, but after Gran said she didn't want to meet anyone connected with pictures I didn't see how I was going to manage it until Peggy said that about his being a detective, and to get him out here. Of course I was just kidding when I said that to him over the phone. I had not known he was coming, and was surprised that he had found out my home address. But it did seem an excellent way for me to see him, and it really was awfully important. I thought the ring would be found anyway. I'm sorry," she faltered as Peggy and Nancy both eyed her in silence.

"He came here to see her, of course. It was awfully important," Peggy was repeating to herself. "I am just the little sister who mustn't be allowed to marry the wrong man. Oh, I hate him!" she thought, slamming the magazine shut.

There were voices in the hall now. Gran's and Stanley's. Gran was on her way upstairs. Maxine and Nancy started towards them and Peggy slipped away from them quite unnoticed.

Without thinking where she was going Peggy ran through the rose garden and into the summer house. This was where she had always come with her troubles since she was a child.

It was here that she had come when Maxine had written that she was going to remain in California. And it was here that she came now when she was unhappy about—about Stanley not finding the ring, she told herself. What had he been saying to Gran this afternoon? Had he told her about the engagement, and that the ring was here? But even as she thought of that she dismissed the idea. He would not do that, she knew. What was she unhappy about? What more natural than that Maxine's director should be in love with his star and follow her home in order to be with her? He had not spoken a word of love to her, Peggy, and if she had been foolish enough to imagine things from his tone, and expression—well it was just too bad.

He had only been glad for the family when she told him she would give Harry back his ring. Of course he had been glad. He wouldn't want Maxine's sister to do anything foolish. And she had been counting the minutes until six o'clock when he would bring her the ring. And now it was—she glanced at her wrist watch—it was two minutes to six, and he was probably in the house laughing with Maxine at the joke they had put over on them.

But he wasn't in the house because just then she saw him come out of the front door, pause a moment there to look towards the rose garden and then start down the steps. Well, she wouldn't wait, she wouldn't be here if he came. She didn't want to hear his explanation. She didn't feel like laughing over the joke. She wanted the ring to give back to Harry and then she wanted to forget men.

CHRONICLES of GINGER FARM

By
Gwendoline P. Clarke

Sometimes when big events are taking place this writer finds herself on the spot. To even mention anything of a political nature is to invite controversy; not to mention it looks as if I am not interested. Perish the thought! I am interested — intensely so. As for Partner, his concern regarding government affairs is so real that he gets quite "edgy" if he feels that things may take a turn that will not be to the best interests of the war or the country.

But this column is primarily concerned with farm life and farm problems so if what I write seems to be of little consequence compared with big questions of the hour, don't take it to be a case of a female Nero fiddling while Rome burns. We must have our lighter moments, you know, and if, by putting away vexing and perplexing problems for an hour or two, I can help you to relax, then we are really getting somewhere, aren't we?

Here, at Ginger Farm, we are still at the "redding up" stage. Partner has just taken away a wagon-load of rubbish to our own private dump heap—which I might add is on our own property and not along the road, nor in the corner of a back field belonging to some other farmer. That kind of thing is done, you know, and I can't think of a meaner trick to serve on a neighbour.

As for me, before long I shall have been through every drawer and cupboard—and by the time I have things straightened up I won't know where anything is. It's fun, tidying up, isn't it? One comes across some of the most absurd things. You pick up a news-clipping—obviously laid away for some special reason, but looking it over now you can't find any reason for it being kept.

In one drawer I found a letter—a little boy's letter—written just the way any little boy would write to his mother—about the fun he had had at school; the new calves at the barn; and the good skating down at the flats. And then I looked at the date—January, 1934! Ten short years ago—ten years in which a little boy has grown up. Yes, grown-up—and in growing up he has been trained to kill, so that he may defend his own life and those of others. A far cry indeed from skating and fun at school!

Then I found a diary belonging to Daughter—obviously started with great enthusiasm, but week by week the entries got shorter and shorter, until they stopped altogether. I hated to throw it out—really I am the most dreadful person to hoard. And it is so foolish. After all things like that will never be of interest to anyone other than myself—but, there it is...

The other day young John brought me in a scout whistle he had picked up in the garden. Now

I treasure it like gold. Another time I found an arm of a rubber Kewpie doll. It had been little daughter's first doll—sent from England—and wherever she went, to bed, for a walk, or in the bath, Kewpie went too. Amazing the things a plough will turn up, isn't it?

A Snake plunged Ogden, Utah, into darkness, after wriggling up a 30-foot tower and short-circuiting a 44,000 volts cable.

Overseas since January of 1942 when he landed in England as a lieutenant, Capt. EDITORIAL COMMENTARY

The Deseronto Post aims to be an independent, clean newspaper for the home, devoted to public service.

'THE THREE GREAT POWERS'

D-Day unleashed a flood of predictions of when the war will end. One fellow says, "the New Year", another "next summer", yet another sets the date in 1946. Last week in London, Prime Minister Churchill warned that it will take "the full exertions of the three powers, (The British Empire, United States and Russia), every scrap they can give to crush down the desperate resistance which we must expect from this military antagonist at last beaten back to his lair."

The "three great powers" are made up of every last man, woman and child living in all those countries. It may not always be easy to see how our individual lives affect the outcome of the war, but it is unquestionably our individual effort that makes up the united effort of the whole. We back up Canada by buying war bonds and certificates, and by accepting the restrictions of the government with our best grace. But what about the way we live in our homes and conduct our businesses? Divided homes can't back a war one hundred percent.

Take the question of appeasement—when it happens between countries we have seen that war is the pay-off. We are quick to recognize and criticise appeasement in our leaders, but what about appeasement in our homes? Appeasement—letting things slide and doing a second-rate job—creates division and resentment wherever it is.

Constant criticism in a home saps the family of its ability to work together and to face the world as responsible people. In the nation it is just the same. It makes one group superior to another, while both groups look out for their own interests instead of the good of the whole country. Appreciation and encouragement in home and country send people out willing to go the whole way, willing to give their very best for someone else's good. In the years ahead Canada must stand united or she will fall prey to the 'isms that are seeking to gain power for themselves.

If we expect "the Government" or "George" to do the job of winning the war—it won't be done, for in Canada "the Government" and "George" are just everyone of us. And back of all our fighting men must stand people who are willing to put aside all plans for personal security and advancement; ready to absorb the shock of battle and carry through to total victory.

TIME BOMBS

To meet once for all the cost of living, we must one and all accept the cost of giving.

The hope of the future lies not in better human inventions but in better human relations.

Trenton will be Headquarters For No. 1 Air Command

Air Vice - Marshal Adelard Raymond, Of Montreal, Will Be In Command

Ottawa, Dec. 4.—Air Force Headquarters announced today the amalgamation of No. 1 and No. 3 Training Commands, at Toronto and Montreal, respectively will become effective January 15, with headquarters at the R.C.A.F. Station at Trenton, Ont.

Air Vice-Marshal Adelard Raymond of Montreal, Air Officer Commanding No. 3 Training Command, will assume command of the new district to be known as No. 1 Air Command.

Air Vice-Marshal A. T. N. Cowley, Air Officer commanding the present No. 1 Training Command, will be retired.

The amalgamation, first announced in September, is part of the reduction of the commotwealth Air Training plan.

Two other commands already have been amalgamated—No. 2 at Winnipeg and No. 4 at Calgary. They were fused Dec. 1 as No. 2 Air Training Command with headquarters at Moose Jaw, Sask.

The September announcement said the amalgamation program also would result in a reduction in the Air Council from eleven to seven members because of lessened responsibility.

Lends New Importance

The fusion of the four training commands is expected to lend new importance to the western air command and the recently-created northwest air command. It is assumed they will continue as separate operational commands until the defeat of Japan.

In November, Maj. C. G. Power, then Air Minister, announced that the air training plan would not be extended beyond its March 31, expiration date and that it would be succeeded by a "shadow" scheme of small dimensions. Coupled with the reduction is a partial demobilization of the R.C.A.F.

Group Captain A. D. Bell-Irving commanding officer of the Trenton Air Station stated that the amalgamation would not affect the status of the station as a training centre.

The staff of the new training command will be superimposed on that of the station staff, and will be housed in the station proper.

The final election returns in Belleville's municipal election gave F. S. Follwell a sweeping victory over his opponent G. O. Tice. The final results showed a majority of 1974 votes which made it a decisive win. Mayor Follwell received 2916 votes against 942 votes for G. O. Tice.

OBITUARY

WILLIAM DOWLING

Friends of the late William Dowling heard with sincere regret of his sudden passing during his sleep at the home of his brother-in-law and sister, Reeve E. M. Roach and Mrs. Roach, St. George Street, on Wednesday morning. Deceased had suffered from a heart ailment for many years but had been able to be around and down town, and to visit with his friends. The day of the heavy snow storm he went down town as usual and also assisted with shovelling at home, but passed away in his sleep on the following morning.

The son of the late Robert Dowling and his wife, Mary Ann Roach, he was born at Centreville in Camden Township, 67 years ago.

As a boy of eight, he came with his parents to the farm on the Deseronto Road, where his brother, Edmund, now resides.

A lover of horses, he had many fine race-horses on the farm on the Belleville Road, where he resided before going to Rochester, N.Y., 18 years ago. He was employed with the Kodak Company there for 15 years, and then returned to Canada. For the past year he has resided with his sister.

He is survived by his sister, Mrs. E. M. Roach (Mary), and three brothers, Robert of Minneapolis, Cornelius of Port Arthur, and Edmund on the home-stead, Deseronto Road.

The funeral took place from St. Vincent de Paul Church on Friday morning with many friends attending from town and district. Requiem Mass was sung by Flt. Lt. Rev. G. T. Martin with Very Rev. Dean E. M. Lacey of Napanee in the sanctuary. Professor Noury of Kingston presided at the organ.

Pall bearers were: C. J. Brennan, Henry Clement, Alex Therrien, Leo Therrien, Herbert Aylsworth and William Gaulin. Floral tributes and spiritual offerings were numerous.

Interment was in St. Vincent de Paul Cemetery.

One Day Late

News copy for the "Post" this week was again one day late, which caused the delay in publication to Friday instead of Thursday.

With the Christmas rush in the mails, over, next week's issue should be distributed on time.

Ladies' Euchre Club

The Ladies' Euchre Club held their weekly get-together at the home of Mrs. James Whitton, Centre Street, on Wednesday night last.

Prize winners were (1) Mrs. S. Brown (consolation), Mrs. D. Soales (travelling), Mrs. T. O'Ray.

Refreshments were served at the close of the evening and a social hour enjoyed.

Narrow Escape From Drowning

Three of our local boys, Duane Thompson, Harold Walker and Everett Jenkins had a narrow escape from drowning while out celebrating on the bay one night last week.

The high winds blew them towards the island and thin ice where they were all thrown into the icy waters.

After some time, they broke through to thicker ice and were not long getting home to dry clothes.

The boys were none the worse for their ducking.

Christmas Party At Camp Mohawk

Santa Claus flew from the North Pole to Camp Mohawk on Saturday to bring gifts and happiness to the children of the Airforce Personnel. Over 100 children and their equally enthusiastic parents gathered at the Control Tower to talk by radio and to watch him arrive with his load of gifts. The party was held in the large recreation hall where the programme included games and movies. Three clowns kept the children and parents in constant laughter at their antics. Gifts were presented to all the children by Santa and his helpers. Following the presentation of gifts, the children sat down at beautifully decorated tables to have supper with Santa.

Refreshments included sandwiches, cookies, ice cream, chocolate milk for the children and coffee for the adults. Much credit is due the Station Entertainment Committee and the Ladies' Auxiliary for the arrangements.

W.M.S. Church Of The Redeemer

The Christmas Meeting of the W.M.S. of the Church of the Redeemer was held at the home of the president, Miss L. Warren, on Friday afternoon, who took charge of the devotional period.

Minutes were read and approved and the financial report given, showing an increase over last year.

The allocation for next year was received and included children's wear, Christmas gifts, and money for freight.

The following officers were appointed for next year:

President, Miss L. Warren,
1st Vice President, Mrs. James Whitton.

2nd Vice President, Mrs. T. W. Topping.

Secretary and Press Secretary, Mrs. C. F. Dimmell.

Treasurer, Mrs. I. Allum.

Glad Tidings and Supply Secretary, Miss L. Smith.

Meeting closed with prayer and members remained for a social half hour.

A letter of appreciation was authorized written to Mrs. Heffernan, who so kindly made the new curtains for the Parish Hall and arrangements were made for putting the curtains on the windows.

A splendid response was received for the Spiritual Bouquet for the Chaplains and men overseas.

The president consented to have the January meeting at her home. The meeting closed with prayer for deceased members and a social hour followed.

Community singing of Christmas carols was then enjoyed after which, Todd Jamieson entertained with a recitation, "A Scene in Court."

Merry Christmas

Yes, Virginia, There Is A Santa Claus.

[Back in 1897, little Virginia O'Hanlon wrote the following letter to the editor of the New York Sun: "I am 8 years old. Some of my little friends say there is no Santa Claus. Papa says, 'If you see it in The Sun it's so.' Please tell me the truth—is there a Santa Claus?" The editor wrote a newspaper and literary classic in reply to this childish plea. It is reprinted here!]

Yes, indeed!

"Virginia, your little friends are wrong. They have been affected by the skepticism of a skeptical age—they do not believe except what they see—they think that nothing can be which is not comprehensible by their little minds.

"All minds, Virginia, whether they be men's or children's, are little.

"In this great universe of ours, man is a mere insect, an ant, in his intellect, as compared with the boundless world about him, as measured by the intelligence capable of grasping the whole of truth and knowledge.

"Yes, Virginia, there is a Santa Claus.

"He exists as certainly as love and generosity and devotion exist, and you know that they abound and give to your life its highest beauty and joy. Alas! how dreary would be the world if there were no Santa Claus! It would be as dreary as if there were no Virginias. There would be no childlike faith then, no poetry, no romance to make tolerable this existence. We should have no enjoyment, except in sense and sight. The eternal light with which childhood fills the world would be extinguished.

"Not believe in Santa Claus! You might as well not believe in fairies!

"You might get your papa to hire men to watch in all the chimneys on Christmas Eve to catch Santa Claus, but even if they did not see Santa Claus coming down, what would that prove? Nobody sees Santa Claus, but that is no sign that there is no Santa Claus—the most real things in the world are those neither children nor men can see.

"Did you ever see fairies dancing on the lawn? Of course not, but that's no proof that they are not there—nobody can conceive or imagine all the wonders that are unseen and unseeable in the world.

"You tear apart the baby's rattle and see what makes the noise inside, but there is a veil covering the unseen world which not the strongest man, or even the united strength of all the strongest men that ever lived, could tear apart. Only faith, fancy, poetry, love, romance, can push aside the curtain and view and picture the supernal beauty and glory beyond.

"Is it all real?—ah, Virginia, in all this world there is nothing else real and abiding.

"No Santa Claus! Thank God!—he lives, and he lives forever—a thousand years from now, Virginia, nay, ten thousand years from now, he will continue to make glad the heart of childhood."

EDITORIAL COMMENTARY

The Deseronto Post aims to be an independent, clean newspaper for the home, devoted to public service.

CONVERSION OF AIRPORTS TO CIVILIAN USE AFTER THE WAR

The Department of National Defence introduced an innovation which they tell us has been very successful (in) a branch where all ideas submitted by every individual regarding the improvement of our war effort was taken and tested out in a practical way. They tell us that some of the ideas submitted looked to be impractical and almost foolish at first but under test later proved to be of real value.

Should we not continue this branch after the war and enlarge it to include the benefits to returned soldiers and all civilians? In the past many brilliant ideas have died in infancy for the lack of skilled assistance and many others which came into being and would have been a real boon to mankind have been shelved for many years through selfish use of patent rights. Scientists tell us that our present uneconomic system of handling these new thoughts in almost every instance in peace times hold them unnecessarily from the public for at least 20 years and many times much longer.

Could not one of our airports, which at present time is slated to be torn down, be converted into a laboratory for complete investigation and experiments which could be conducted by this branch of our National War Services. This branch could perhaps be enlarged to include a civilian unit for the public at large. Up to the present time the general public have no safe place to submit their ideas where they feel they will be treated fairly and derive an honest remuneration for the idea submitted.

We also need sanatoriums. Perhaps some of these airports could be used temporarily or permanently for that purpose during the transfer back to civilian life.

We need a large community farm to train our boys who want to be farmers and lack the latest experience. Many men are not individualists and may always want to farm on the community plan, while others will want their individual farm. Here they are rehabilitated and sorted out according to their adaptability to the different forms of modern farming.

We will no doubt have many returned men who are specially trained in all branches of research work. Could we not use one of these airports for a vast research laboratory?

A little publicity would bring out hundreds of ideas for our presently to be discarded airports and perhaps it could be arranged to have these ideas sent directly to the same Government department which has so successfully handled the new war ideas which have been submitted to them in the past six years.

Welcome To War Brides From U. K.

"How do Canadian women dress in winter?" wonders the pretty English wife of a Canadian signalman. "How much luggage can I take to Canada with me?" asks the Scottish bride of an RCAF navigator. "What kind of a house will I live in?" Can I get a job? Can I take any money with me? These are the hundred and one questions that race through the thoughts of the thousands of British women coming to Canada with their husbands or to join their husbands' people.

The Department of National Defence and the Wartime Information Board have co-operated in a booklet in which these questions and many more are answered. Details of travel, customs, and immigration regulations, luggage, money, are dealt with. The constitution of Canada is explained, the provinces discussed, distances between cities mentioned. Details of weather, Canada's war effort, shopping, schools, churches, sports, clubs, all come in for an explanatory word.

A glossary is included which explains among other things that while in the United Kingdom the word suspenders denotes garters, in Canada it means braces; that a draper's shop is called a dry goods store; that a geyser is a hot water heater; that petrol is known as gasoline.

Called 'A Welcome to War Brides,' this booklet will be distributed throughout the United Kingdom and will be available to every bride of a Canadian serviceman who contemplates making the trip out to her future home.

Out of the Darkness

One by one, the lights of the world are coming on again, shining through the darkness of the night with a warm glow of comfort and cheer. Out of the gloom of war, lights are appearing as bright symbols of a new hope... a hope born of an assurance of victory.

Two thousand years ago the Star of Bethlehem proclaimed the birth of Christ and gave new hope to the world... so the lights return to us now as heralds of Peace... a Peace that comes out of sacrifice and suffering and gives promise of a new and better life.

May this Christmas awaken in our hearts new faith and strength to continue to fight for those things we hold dear... to do our part to hasten the day when the lights in every country again shine brightly and throughout the world will reign the Spirit of "Peace on Earth, Goodwill to Men".

CHAPTER I

"So you've come back, Mark Grant?" The old lawyer swung around in his swivel-chair and looked the young man up and down with an eye as cold as a lizard's.

Mark laughed. Liberty was sending golden bubbles through his veins; it was easy to laugh.

"I behaved well, Mr. Fosdick," Mark said, his tone defying criticism, challenging; "they let me out a few months ahead of time."

"Humph!" Fosdick grunted. "I've no use for new-fangled notions in prisons," he remarked dryly; "hot air, that's all; a man should serve his time."

"You've never been in prison, Mr. Fosdick," he said. "When you've tried it you'll be quite favorable to new-fangled notions. I've had fifteen years' experience. I know!"

Fosdick's gray face twisted into a grim smile. "I don't think I'll try it—not in your way. Let me see; how old were you when you went up?"

"Seventeen."

"Seventeen? Gosh!" The lawyer stared at him for a moment, incredulously. "I'd forgotten. A boy—and convicted of killing that old man, your uncle—to get his money, too!" he added reproachfully.

Mark's face sobered. His eyes darkened. "Convicted?" You call that travesty a fair trial?"

The old man recoiled slightly, but he steadied himself to face the young fury in Mark's glance. "It was a fair trial; I always said so; you appealed, too," he maintained his point dryly; then he put Mark's anger aside with a gesture. "I've no time to take that up. I dare say you've suffered for it."

"What do you want, Mark?"

The young man put his hand in his pocket and drew out an old letter with Fosdick's name in the corner. He laid it on the desk.

"That says that Aunt Hurley left her money for me when I came out, and you have charge of it. I'm out, Mr. Fosdick."

Fosdick glanced at the envelope without taking it up.

"I see! Your Aunt Hurley's money brought you here mighty quick!" he remarked grudgingly. He had never forgiven the boy for Grant Barton's death. Of course he'd done it for the uncle's money. The motive was as plain as the nose on your face! "I drew that will. Her friends advised against it, but she would have her way. She always believed in you."

"God bless her!" Mark broke out, suddenly devout. "The will was proven, of course; you say as much in this letter."

The lawyer assented grudgingly again; it was plain that he had been among the friends who advised against it.

"It's not much," he said tartly, "about twenty thousand." Mark smiled amusedly.

"Come around tomorrow morning and I'll have the papers ready. The money's in deposit at the bank here, waiting."

Mark rose, but stopped with his hand on the back of his chair. "It's early yet, Mr. Fosdick, and I'd be glad to draw some of that money. I'm short."

The little lawyer whipped around in his chair and stared at him, then away. "The fellow's a giant!" he thought uneasily, remembering old Grant Barton's end. Money in that, too!

"I can't help it," he said testily, "there'll be formalities. Come tomorrow. The bank closes at three; we couldn't get through in time. I'm busy; good day!"

Mark stood a moment longer, looking down at him. He saw the little man's hand shake as he grasped his pen and pretended to write. Mark knew he was afraid of the ex-convict; he threw back his head and laughed again, his laugh startling Fosdick as much as a blow; it was so hearty, so carefree, a boy's laugh.

"You seem to find it amusing, sir," he said tartly.

"I do!" Mark turned, picked up his hat, a new one, the warden had fitted him out, and went to the door. "Good-day, Mr. Fosdick," he said, still smiling, and went out.

Mark threaded his way through the crowded streets with the awkward feeling of a recluse suddenly thrust out into the world.

He had turned the corner into one of the more sedate streets and was passing the entrance of a fashionable clubhouse—the name was on the door over a brass knocker—when two young men suddenly emerged. Their exit was so abrupt that they nearly collided with Mark, and they both stopped short, staring at him with the eagerness of men seeking a long lost acquaintance.

"Stewed!" Mark thought, and pursued his way, looking for a restaurant.

He found one at the other end of the street, with a teapot on the swinging sign. It was down a few steps below the sidewalk, and, as he descended, he was surprised to find the two young clubmen at his heels. He took a seat near the door and ordered tea and muffins. But he felt resentment when he found the two young men had seized upon the table next to his and, without much pretense of eating, themselves, were unquestionably watching him drink his tea and eat his muffin.

They were both young, one big, about his own build, the other small and fat with red cheeks, and they were both fashionably and expensively dressed; they had the air of idle wealth. They were evidently disputing something between themselves, and Mark got the impression that he was their chief interest. It nettled him; he hurried his food down, drank his tea and paid his bill. It left him twenty cents. As he counted his change and thrust it back into his pocket he laughed bitterly to himself. How would Fosdick like to face his night in the city, with twenty cents? He was just rising from the table when his two young neighbors suddenly rose, came over, and pulling out the two empty chairs opposite, sat down, uninvited, at his table.

The stout young man leaned forward confidentially, his red cheeks growing redder.

"Pardon me," he said courteously, smiling across at Mark; "It's a wager—my speaking to you, I mean. If you've ever made a wager, you know how a fellow feels. I hope you don't mind our butting in this way. You see, it's all part of a bally bet I've made with my chum here."

"I see"—Mark still studied the pair. "I don't mind. In fact, I rather like it. What's the bet?"

"Oh, it's a thousand dollars, I—"

"Shut up!" Archie broke in suddenly, "you're only babbling, Ted. Let's get to business." He turned a little haughtily and faced Mark. "It's this way, my pal here has been getting into trouble with a lady, an elderly and exclusive lady, one of the smartest of the smart set; she won't have a man in her house who drinks too much, or gambles, or—" he shrugged.

"You know the usual things! Teddy was a prime favorite, but she caught him gambling, and then he got stewed, two of the cardinal sins. She's forbidden him the house, and he's sore. There's going to be an exclusive afternoon today, a big affair. Ted has no card. He's raw about it, and he's laid a wager with me that she'll all bunk about her rules, that she doesn't really know what her guests do, that any fellow—the first man we met in the street—given a clean shirt could pass muster. I've taken the bet. I don't believe she'll receive anyone without credentials, she'll find a way to freeze the newcomer out, even if a fellow took him in, unless she knows he's all right. Ted's bet me a thousand dollars that he can pick up the first man he meets outside the club, give him the clothes and get him in—if I'll take him past the door and simply say: 'This is Mr.—oh, any old name! Now, do you see?'

Mark nodded. "I see!" he said, and laughed. There was vigor in his laughter, a jubilant ring of freedom.

"I met you first outside the club," he said, "that's the whole of it. It's a wager—I made a boyish grimace—I don't want to lose my thousand dollars, Archie, here, is a bit stiff-necked about it. You—I wonder—he leaned back, thrusting his hands into his pockets and jingling his money rather obviously—"I wonder if you'll help me out? It's only for one afternoon, you know, at a tea, there'll be dancing no end of fun, but the test will be the dinner afterwards. She only asks the elect to that—the ones of Colonial dames, I call 'em. I bet she'll ask you."

"What do I get?" asked Mark. (To Be Continued)

Dutch Hear BBC On Miniature Radio

Dutch patriot workers have developed a pocket-size radio receiving set made to German specifications during the occupation of the Netherlands and used then to listen to Allied broadcasts, says the Brandon Sun. The existence of the tiny set was disclosed by a Hollander who approached British tank troops about to go into action somewhere in Holland. The man who had been a laboratory worker in a radio factory, asked a correspondent if he would "like to listen to the news." He then held out a pocket watch that immediately began to vibrate with the confident tones of a BBC announcer. It was attached to a three-tube radio set packed into small German-issued field dressing box with a Red Cross on the lid. The power came either from a battery or a hand-worked dynamo—also of pocket-sized. The set was one of many that had been built as experiments.
